"Dear Sir: We read in your remarkable little paper some weeks ago that if we were born, or if we died, or if we fell into the well, (actually I'm not so sure that falling into the well was mentioned), but anyway the idea conveyed is that anything that happened in the community was news and everyone was interested! I also suspect that it helps to make a local paper more readable! Now certainly, we all can't die, be born, or fall in the well just to please you and make your paper readable, but nonetheless we do have experiences and I had one I think worth relating.

During the previous cold snap, which is, of course, most unusual for Salt Spring, though not so unusual on the Outer Islands, my wife closed down the water pump and forgot to drain the water from the cylinder. Also she forgot to tell me until quite late in the evening, so I set out with a gasoline lantern across the fields, to drain the pump. I reached the pump-house quite uneventfully, drained the pump and had started back on the return journey, thinking of all the things of which farmers in these islands usually think such as the new ferry coming into Long Harbour and driving across the Island to the end of Isabella Point to find the proposed shuttle service (proposed by some persons interested in the development of Salt Spring) overloaded, with a subsequently cold wait, and generally thinking thoughts of all farmers on these Hawaiian Islands of the Gulf of Georgia. Quite casually, a deer of a large one with branching antlers, came from the side and entering the ring of light, trotted across on a course that would take him within a few feet of the lantern. Thinking that the animal was perhaps, blinded by the light, and being ready

LEGION ELECTS OFFICERS

D.G. Crofton was re-elected president by acclamation at the annual meeting of the Salt Spring Island branch, The Royal Canadian Legion, held Monday night at the Legion Hall.

F.W. Kirkham was elected 1st vice-president and F.A.E. Morris 2nd vice-president. R.G. Atkins will serve another term as sergeant-at-arms, and F.L. Jackson continues as secretary-treasurer.

Members of the executive committee for 1963 are: J.R. Sturdy (immediate past president), A.L. Campbell, E.E. Groff, J.H.M. Lamb, W.A. Mailey, W.H. Saunders, J.C. Smith, W.E. Trelford and J.P. Waterfall. Appointed an honorary chaplain was Rev. S.J. Leech, who now joins Archdeacon G.H. Holmes in that office.

The new officers were installed by Wm. Macguire, of Duncan, commander of the Cowichan and Mid-Island Zone of the Legion, who complimented the branch on its strength and work, particularly in the field of service to needy veterans, widows and families. He said the number of cases handled successfully during the year in respect to pensions and assistance was an eye-opener to him.

It was announced that work on the addition to the Legion hall would start in the spring. The hall was packed to overflowing at the annual meeting.

OLD HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

The 73 year old home of Mr. C.E. Baker and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Helene Baker, was destroyed by fire late Tuesday night. Mr. Baker, a Salt Spring Island old timer, and Mrs. Baker were able to escape only with the clothes they wore.

The S.S.I. Volunteer Fire Dept., which answered the alarm at 11:30 p.m., was at the scene of the fire in approximately five minutes, but the fire had gained too much headway.

According to Mrs. Baker, smoke was smelled earlier in the evening, but no fire was detected at that time. Just before 11:30, still smelling smoke after airing the house, Mr. Baker went to a closed-up living room. Flames shot out as he opened the door.

The property had recently been sold to Mr. & Mrs. John Stack of California who are to take possession this coming spring.

The house and contents were partially covered by insurance.

DRIEST JAN. ON RECORD

According to Mr. H. Carlin, Ganges Weather Observer, the .98 inches of precipitation, including the 4 1/2 inches of snow, was the driest January on record. This compares to the 3.23 inches recorded in 1962, the 10.52 inches in 1961 and the record deluge of 15.55 inches of precipitation recorded in 1953.

With Salt Spring Island having the distinction of being the warmest spot in Canada, once in January & again last Sunday, Feb. 3, when a high of 61 degrees was recorded, the high temperature in January was 52 degrees on Jan. 1st. The low of 17 degrees was recorded on Jan. 11th. This compares to the high of 53 and low of 17 that was recorded last year.

AKERMAN vs TOP FIGHTER IN B.C.

Morrie Akerman of S.S.I. will box against the recently declared Emerald Boy and Jr. B.C. Champion, Fred Fuller, in the semi-final feature of the boxing card to be held on Saturday at Fulford Hall. Fuller, 118 pounder from Vancouver, has just returned from Washington where he beat the best they had to offer.

SALTSPRING ISLAND SCIENCE CLUB

The next meeting of the Club will be held on Thurs. Feb. 14 at 8:00 p.m. in the Grade 7 room of the School.

Mr. J. Blaney of the UBC Extension Dept. will give a talk on: "Study Discussion Problems and what the University can offer in this field".

In Club business there will be a discussion on the future of the Science Club. Proposals will be put forward.

 for a little fun, I walked quickly forward, and was within reach of the deer, when he stopped, and turning his head away, seemed lost in thought for a second or two. Then, without any movement that the eye could see, the buck turned, and in a flash charged the lantern and sent it flying! The mantles were broken and it ceased to give light, and by the time that I managed to turn the flame out, the deer was gone. I was a little shaken, as I couldn't help wondering what I would have suffered if the animal had decided to charge me! Now I wonder if it's safe to carry a lantern across the fields at night. I think that it might be wiser to let my wife drain the pump anytime after dark!

Now Woody, please don't print my name, or otherwise identify me, if you use this for your paper. In my journey through this life, I try to be truthful, & although this is quite truthfully what happened, I'm quite sure that no old timer here will believe it, and they will think that I am just a wee bit off plumb, or that I have given up my habit of truthfulness. Being an old timer myself, (you will recall that an old timer is one that has lived here, without break, for at least fifty years!) I would be distressed to have this happen. Nevertheless, I feel that newcomers, who have been here only thirty-five or forty years, may believe my account, and perhaps find it interesting!

(Signed) A Night Walker."

"Dear Sir: It has been brought to my attention that a number of visitors to the hospital are using the small door at the south end of the corridor, when entering or leaving the premises. I would like to draw to the attention of those concerned that this door is not for public use. Your cooperation in using only the proper entrance will be appreciated by both management and staff.

(Signed) J.G. Reid, Chairman, Board of Management, Lady Minto Gulf Islands Hospital".

"Dear Sir: Like most fish stories, yours of last week is slightly inaccurate, at least insofar as Weston Lake is concerned and I suspect was written without first hand knowledge of the situation here.

About 200 yards down the creek that drains the lake there is a dam which serves to conserve an adequate supply of water for the Fulford Water District because the lake level can become very low at the end of a dry summer. In order to prevent escapement of trout from the lake I have for some years maintained a screen in the dam. This should prevent fish from going through the dam except for one thing. Occasionally, when there is a heavy run-off, the screen will become clogged with debris and to prevent the lake level from rising too high, it is necessary to remove the screen. This has been done twice this winter and with the dam wide open for a day or two some fish can escape and no doubt this is how the fish you mention got into the creek, though too many should not be lost that way. Three Fulford men, the day your story appeared, inspected the creek from saltchuck to the dam and did not find any more trout. The size of the fish reported, if they came from the lake, should indicate they had been there a considerable time - perhaps also that they are smarter than the fishermen who try to catch them.

Possibly spawning conditions would be improved by placing gravel along the creek bed which at present is mud and clay.

(Signed) Tom Butt".

A VOICE IN THE WILDERNESS

"The Sons of Freedom are trying to get a message across to us", said Lance Whittaker, owner and editor of Oak Bay Leader, and former news editor of Victoria Times, in an address to Canadian Press Women's Club in Victoria recently. "They are trying to tell us to go back to the Bible before we destroy ourselves. We don't understand their message and we are not interested", he said.

Mr. Whittaker has studied the Doukhobor problem for several years and has many Doukhobor friends. He traced the history of the sect from its origin in Russia in 1725 to the present day, & drew attention to the lack of any real effort on the part of succeeding provincial governments to understand the problem of the British Columbia members of the sect.

In 1725 the Russian Czar ruled that every family must give one able-bodied man to serve in the army. The priest-ridden peasants were already supplying one son from each family for the church. The new order left them unable to run their farms properly & obtain a livelihood. Peasants in the south Ukraine defied the order, and not only rebelled against the state, but also completely renounced the church and priesthood, & decided to live by divine law only.

From that time on their lives were governed by their literal interpretation of the Bible. Mr. Whittaker quoted the commandment: "Thou shalt not kill", as an example. To the Doukhobor it means exactly that - no killing of anything, at anytime, for any reason.

The rebellion brought terrible persecution, which continued for almost 200 years. Some patriarchs living in Canada still bear scars of (Contd to P. 5)

FIRE PROTECTION

DISTRICT MEETING

by Elsie Worthington.

S.S.I. Fire Protection District must surely hold the Island record for short annual meetings. Last Wednesday evening reports were received and adopted; officers elected, and other business concluded, in the short space of thirty minutes. The firemen, being used to hurrying when called to duty, wasted no time over their annual meeting.

Fire Chief Fred Donaghy reported 22 calls answered during 1962; ten less than the previous year. The volunteer firemen fought 5 house fires, 10 chimneys, 4 bush, 1 car, 1 logging machine and 1 overheated stove. Estimated value of property protected was $125,000, with total damage estimated at only $2700.

Damp summer weather was held responsible for fewer bush fires, but the number of house fires was up. In at least two instances prompt attention by the brigade and use of adequate equipment, confined fires to minor proportions and prevented complete destruction.

The Fire Department personnel has increased to 16 men, but five more men are needed to bring the complement to minimum strength. Ganges has 14 volunteers & needs another man; Fulford has two men and requires at least four more. Future plans contain provision for a small fire hall at Fulford, which, it is hoped, will attract more volunteers from that section.

Weekly practises have been held, covering the regular training schedule of hose and ladder work; lectures on hydraulics; combatting inflammable liquids; & other aspects of fire fighting. The Fire Marshal's Training

Unit provided special instruction in artificial respiration and use of Fire Department inhalator. This valuable piece of equipment is expected to be in full use this spring.

Additional equipment acquired during the year has provided most of the crew with protective clothing. One self-contained breathing apparatus has been purchased and a good start made toward acquiring the full complement of 2 1/2 inch hose required by Canadian Underwriters.

A knee injury sustained by one of the firemen during a November practise is expected to be covered by Workmens Compensation Board.

Inspection of school, public buildings and other places is proposed for the coming year in the interests of fire prevention.

Treasurer's report showed assets totalling $35,501.

Federal government winter works program provided $1278 toward cost of the fire hall. The year ended with a surplus of $597 on the books. Commenting on the report, Chairman W. Hart Bradley said a fraction of a mill added to taxes to bring total assessment for the fire district to two mills, would have permitted greater progress in district fire protection.

Officers for 1963 are: chairman, W.H. Bradley; secretary, Mrs. Nels Vodden; Treasurer, Mrs. G.E. Croft; auditor, C. W. Harrison. Donald Goodman was re-elected by acclamation to serve a further three-year term on the board of trustees.

Chairman Bradley praised the volunteer firemen for their fine spirit, maintained since the initial excitement of acquiring a new fire engine three years ago. Such week-by-week loyalty and co-operation is rare, he said.

The general public was represented at the meeting by two people - your reporter, and one other interested resident who arrived after conclusion of the meeting. According to Salt Spring custom, this seeming lack of interest in the annual report of a group functioning on behalf of the public is actually meant to be a stamp of approval, but is hardly calculated to boost the morale of the public-spirited people involved. Great credit is due to these volunteer firemen who stand ready at a minute's notice, around the clock, to protect our homes, and if need be, our very lives.

Estimated big game harvest in B.C. in the year 1961 was: 67,000 deer, 18,000 moose, 1,000 caribou, 3,500 elk, 1,900 mountain goat and 1,000 mountain sheep.

DOUKHOBORS

physical violence meted out to them in Russia. In 1898 writer Leo Tolstoy, with the help of the Quakers, brought 4500 members of the sect to Canada where they were settled on government land in Saskatchewan.

The speaker said it is untrue that a special dispensation against bearing arms was granted to the Doukhobors. The sect was given special mention, together with Quakers and Seventh Day Adventists, in the existing law regarding conscientious objection to military service.

When land grants in Saskatchewan were made to the Doukhobors, it was not explained to them that an oath of allegiance to the crown was necessary before they could acquire deed of ownership. This fact was not understood by the people until later, said Mr. Whittaker, when, after five years of land improvement they applied for ownership.

Doukhobor religion forbids a vow of allegiance to any monarch; nevertheless most of the sect complied with the order. A small group, a segment of which is now known as Sons of Freedom, refused to take the oath and in 1907 were brought to B.C. by their leader, Peter Verigin, and settled in the Kootenays.

Mr. Whittaker reviewed Doukhobor leadership from the time of their arrival in

B.C. under Peter Verigin the Great, a wise and strong leader, the colony prospered until his death in 1923. So successful did they become that bitterness was aroused among their non-Doukhobor neighbours.

The death of their great leader proved to be a turning point in the fortunes of the Doukhobors. His son, Peter Verigin, dissipated his own wealth and that of the colony. Internal troubles led to disintegration and in 1933 splinter groups began to break away from the main body. Financial troubles developed and the government took over the land mortgage. In 1954 a board of inquiry recommended to the government that something be done to help the people acquire ownership of the land but no action was taken.

Orthodox Doukhobors, who constitute the main part of the sect in B.C. have become well integrated, said the speaker. He told of one family - pacifists - whose air-force son had been awarded the DCM and was later killed in action.

Freedomite Doukhobors give blind loyalty to their leaders and will carry out any command without question, said the speaker, who said that the Sons of Freedom blame their leaders for bombing outrages.

There is no substantial evidence to prove that the Freedomites burned anything but their own property, said Mr. Whittaker. He described the sparsely furnished interior of a Freedomite house. Of late years such worldly possessions as rugs, curtains, radios, and other luxuries have been gradually introduced by the younger people. The patriarchs, unable to condone such worldliness, rebuked the young people for their sin and warned them to destroy their unlawful possessions. If a second warning went unheeded action was taken, but no complaint was ever made to the police. The young people would not commit the worst of all sins - betrayal of their elders. In some instances a strong sense of guilt was felt by the offending members, who in remorse, would either abandon the sinful objects in a field, or burn the house and its contents to the ground. Freedomite nudism has no root in their doctrine, said the speaker. It means only that they are standing before God as simple children. The excitement caused (Cont'd to P. 8)

NOTHING IS WHAT IT SEEMS TO BE

Nothing is what it seems to be. This is the most indicative sign of our times. Much more so than such symbols as atom bombs, populations explosion, emerging nations or space exploration. Everything we do, don't do, or want to do, must be covered by a facade or a veneer that masks the intent of our actions. Duplicity, like professional wrestling, is no longer a vulgar sport but a way of life; a way of life where the only crime is to be caught and the little white lie is larger than the truth.

Like all accepted facets of the accepted thing to do, duplicity has to start at the level of the individual. It is not at the top that duplicity begins. It is not the statesman, who says nothing but in carefully couched words; words that can offend no one, be taken in any way, and always denied. It does not even begin with a government piously standing against liquor and gaining a major portion of its revenue from the sale. It does not start with a press agent who depicts a glamour queen as a home body, while he plants words of wit in her mouth & defends the principle that white is not black even though the roots show the imperfect dye job. Duplicity does not start with the manufacturer who sells blubber concealing girdles, or built-in bulges for breastworks or long term warranties for items of planned obsolescence. The beginning of easing the conscience by ignoring what would hurt you cannot be blamed on a motel operator who pipes in soft music and ice water for all the young and passionate and musically minded, thirsty, Mr. & Mrs. John Does who

NOTHING (Cont'd from P.7) cannot register their true names because a pseudo-Puritan society, which insists upon hamstringing love until knot-tying time, wants duplicity as long as it is practiced on the side of the "right".

We could go on giving every day examples, from the black art taught in vacuum cleaner sales manuals to dishonest, attention-getting headlines in newspapers; from finding goodness in atomic bombs to finding horror in peace (peace = unemployment); from the pornographic literature we read under another guise to the butter-coloured margarine we eat with our eyes.

What we are trying to say, in our bumbling way, is that duplicity has been with us since the first woman tempted the first man, but today, there is a difference. Today, it is a way of life, scientifically practiced, learned, taught and condoned by everyone in everyplace.

DOUKHOBOR (Contd. P. 5) by their public undressing in the presence of non-Doukhobors has been used by them as a means of gaining attention, he said.

Referring to Sons of Freedom resistance to schooling for their children, Mr. Whittaker noted that Saskatchewan has been free from such troubles. The government of that province offered the curriculum to the Doukhobors in 1900 and asked them to name the subjects they would allow their children to study. These were substantially: reading, writing and arithmetic. By the end of 1914 the whole curriculum had been adopted by the colony. No B.C. government had been willing to modify the curriculum in an effort to meet the objections of this group, said the speaker.

Bombings by the Sons of Freedom are a form of protest against sinful scientific living which they say will lead all of us to destruction. Mr. Whittaker likened the sect to the Puritans who burned witches at the stake, but produced a fine people and many great leaders for their adopted country. He described the Doukhobors as individually fine people - clean, industrious and generous. There is great respect for their elders and no juvenile delinquency in their ranks.

Mr. Whittaker stressed the necessity of establishing communications with this difficult group, and talking over their ideas and problems with them. He noted that this method has been used with success in other trying situations. E.W.

The annual Fulford hall meeting is re-scheduled for Feb. 14th at 8 P.M. The meeting was to have been held on Jan. 29th but it was a very cold night and no one turned up anyway - (I don't call that a surprise do you?)

FERNWOOD NEWS

by Doris DeLong

Where would you find so many kind hearts as on Salt Spring Island? All they need to know is, that help is urgently needed and they rally to the call. The response to an item in Fernwood news 2 weeks ago, asking for help for the destitute in Korea, Greece and the Middle East showed how thoroughly DRIFTWOOD is read from cover to cover.

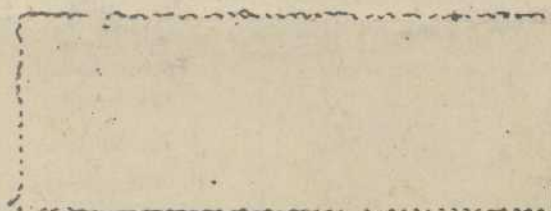

In all 9 cartons were sent on Wednesday by courtesy of Mouats for trucking & the kindness of Dave Winter for delivering to the clothing depot at 1117 Wharf St., Victoria.

What can you find for the ladies to work on? Piles of diapers are made from old flannelette sheets & more are needed. Also scraps of yarn to keep our knitters busy. Ivory soap, 4 large safety pins and a towel are needed in each layette. Mrs. Wells of Ganges Pharmacy has kindly offered that parcels be left there as well as at DeLong's store at Fernwood & the home of Mr. & Mrs. Edward Adams, Fernwood.

NOW IS THE TIME TO RENEW YOUR Subscription to DRIFTWOOD
