ANGLICAN GATHERING ON ISLAND

Anglican Diocese covering all of Vancouver Island and the adjacent islands is planning a conference on Salt Spring Island in May.

The church delegates will gather on the island on May 6 to May 8. Their deliberations will centre on St. George's church in Ganges.

About 90 delegates are expected and they will be accommodated, largely, in private homes.

The conference will represent a first for the islands.

Police list 15 accidents in March

Motor vehicle accidents in the islands are holding up well.

RCMP Detachment at Ganges has reports on 15 accidents during the month of March. February was down, but there were 23 accidents reported in January.

These range from incidents where considerable damage was sustained, down to the trivial accidents where little or no damage is incurred.

No protest heard at hearing

Down-zoning, or application for change from commercial to residential use was the subject of a rezoning application heard at Tuesday's public hearing in Ganges.

Reg Taylor asked for his Scott Point property to be rezoned for a dwelling house.

It would benefit the neighbourhood, he told the hearing.

There was nobody to argue the claim and the application was heard without any opposition.

PIPE WILL CARRY POWER BUT NOT FOR MANY YEARS YET

Reader from Galiano was very concerned over a report last week from Galiano that a submarine had been undertaking a survey for a pipeline to the island.

This week Winnie Liver offered more details on the story.

The small submarine operated by Horton Submarine Explorations, of North Vancouver, was skippered by Tom Sawyer. It was engaged in a survey of the sea bottom on behalf of the B.C. Hydro.

The pipeline referred to by the crew is a pipe carrying cable, not liquid and the project is by no means imminent.

The submarine has surveyed the rocky bottom of the sea and the information will be on file for

They are all watching their weight at Mayne Island

Tops, it is! Here are the Mayne Island Tops Club members, seen by Bill Best in the Agricultural Hall at Mayne Island. The non-profit, weight-reduction club was formed in

Pearl Brau and Kay Adams; back row, Annie de Rousie, Val Baldwin, Sallie Burden, Barbara McFarlane, Margaret Bennett, Bertha Easton and Mabel Johnston.

The three-way split —

What the voter wants

—for the anxious Canadian

BY PARTYMAN

What the average Canadian voter wants is not always very clear.

As the responsible voter in the local municipality....or regional district....he wants the provincial government to allocate more funds to the local scene in order to reduce the burden of property taxes.

He wants the local scene to enjoy a greater voice in the affairs of the community and he eagerly calling for financial participation by both senior governments.

As a provincial voter he wants to see a reduction in the tax burden which is threatening to throttle the province and he wants less demands from these municipal and regional councils always trying to get a greater share of the provincial budget.

Speaking as a provincial voter, he feels very strongly that the national government should allocate far more funds to the provinces and that the talks on federal-provincial sharing are getting along pitifully slowly.

The whole picture of Canada and its constitution needs some changes and speaking as a provincial voter, Mr. Canada knows exactly what these senior governments should be doing, right now.

MORE CLEARLY

Of course, when there is an election in the federal area, then he sees the picture more clearly. The federal government has its very important functions to perform and if the provinces would quit snapping at Ottawa's heels we might see the nation in a strong position from which it could assert itself with the authority it needs. That this position must be braced by certain inevitable expenditures is very clear, so the sooner the provinces and regional governments in this country get off of the federal government's back, the sooner we can hope to see some action in respect of Canada's position in the world today.

Of course, this trichotomy; this stratification of the voter's mental processes, goes much further than in the realm of national financing. In the world of finance, he knows exactly what he wants. The Canadian voter wants all national revenues earmarked for three separate and distinct functions and it's up to the experts to figure out how to do it.

NO EXPERTS

The politics is tougher. There are no experts in that area.

As a municipal voter he wants to see this noisy guy in office. He wants his man elected so that he can be heard. So he's a commy, so what? He says it the way it is and that's what this municipality needs!

He doesn't want any pinks in his government! That's why he goes to the far right and elects those guys. They won't stand for any nonsense. They'll make sure that we got law and order when we need it and if there's any squawk coming, let's here it in our jails! And as for welfare and pay-outs, let's tighten up a bit and there's lots of work somewhere else and....

HE'S THE ONLY ONE

The only man to lead Canada into the place it should hold in the world today is that centre-of-the-road guy out there. So the centre-of-the-road comes marching home to victory.

What is all this doing to the Canadian voter? He's a chocolate-vanilla sundae; a down three roads at the same time. If he is closely concerned with school administration, he is probably fighting for a fourth.

This is where the Canadian voter is getting; this is where Canada is at!

Maybe Ottawa is right. Maybe we only have one choice; either federalism or a mental home. And even here, the Canadian voter will probably experience a terrible time deciding which is the more attractive.

Scott takes six awards at fish show

Young Salt Spring Island hobbyist has taken an impressive range of prizes at the Victoria Aquarium Society's second International Fish Show.

Show was in Victoria last week at the Hillside Mall.

Scott Slocombe came home with first prize for aquarium beautiful, intermediate; first prize for medium cichlid (pair of jewel cichlids) and first for Rift Lake Cichlid Telematachromis caninus).

He gained second prizes for his large cichlid (cichlasoma friedrichstalii), small tetra (penguin) and photography.

Scott is 15 years old and has shown his fish there for the past three years.

Not likely to go that distant

There has been a rumour on Salt Spring Island lately that elementary school students from the Beaver Point area will be commuting to the proposed new school at Fernwood.

Wilf Peck, secretary-treasurer of Gulf Islands School District, told Driftwood on Monday that it would be "most unlikely".

He said that no definite plans have been made yet, but it would be unlikely that any students would travel past Ganges to the new school.

The new elementary school is to be located on property purchased by the School District from J.H. Harkema. It is situated on Fernwood Road near the junction with North End Road.

A total of 6½ acres has been bought, at a cost of $48,000

Hall will be ready in March

End of March is the deadline.

According to the Salt Spring Island Legion branch, the renovations to the hall on Hereford Ave., will be completed by the end of the month.

Extension to the building has been carried out with the help of a government grant.

Easter postal service

All islands post offices, as well as postal stations and sub post offices elsewhere will be closed for Easter.

There will be no rural route service on Good Friday, April 8 and Easter Monday, April 10.

Service will be normal on Saturday, April 10.

DEADLINE FOR CLASSIFIEDS MONDAY 4 PM

ISLAND TEAM GOES DOWN

Short of players: short of goals

BY DRAW BACK
Salt Spring Orange, 1
Evening Optimist Santos, 6.
A classic this game was not.

The weather was miserable, the field was a quagmire, the refereeing was questionable and the score was a disaster, as the Orange succumbed to the Santos.

The Orange line-up featured a few new faces in it as many of the regulars were missing. In fact, there were only eight regulars and consequently the Orange borrowed four players from Division 4 and a player from Cordova Bay to have a full squad.

Theoretically, the local team should have been completely outplayed but to the contrary the Orange actually outplayed their opponents in the first half.

A combination of missed opportunities by Salt Spring's forwards and miscues in the defence allowed the Santos to build up a 2-0 lead. Then a glaring mistake by the officials led to the Santos third goal, as three of their forwards were well offside on the play that led to the goal.

FUTILE ATTEMPT

The Orange tried to come-back in the second half but the pouring rain, chilly temperatures and bog-like field conditions made Salt Spring's attempts futile. The bigger, stronger Santos players, who used a more direct kick-and-run style of play, built their lead up to 6-0 before Salt Spring was able to tally. A combination between Marty Legg and Arne Hengstler put Wayne Reynolds in the clear. Wayne slid the ball into the far corner for Salt Spring's only goal.

When one considers the local side had four players who were four years younger and another who is three years younger than their opponents, the performance was reasonable. With a little luck and a chance to practice together those boys quite easily could have won the match as the play was not reflected in the outcome of the match. Special thanks to George Legg and his four players, MacLean, Legg, Hengstler and Walker for their assistance and effort.

SOCCER BANQUET

A reminder for all parents and players in Juvenile soccer - the Soccer Banquet is Saturday, April 2 at Fulford Hall, starting time, 6 pm. Pot-luck style dinner. Door prizes (tickets sold at door) Players have free entry, parents' cost, $1.50.

BY ELSIE BROWN

Back on the island after a month on the mainland. Glad to report that friend husband is recuperating satisfactorily after surgery at Royal Columbian Hospital in February. Visited friends and relations in Burnaby, New Westminster, Delta and Surrey, before returning to the island.

Lots of activity on Mayne during our absence. Will report on some of the major events.

Coming events include the following:

Paint and Sketch Group 6th Annual Art Show at the Agricultural Hall, April 9-10, 1.00 - 5 pm. Admission 25c, Tea 25c. All new pictures since the last show. Exhibition is for members only. For further information contact Kathleen Dought.

Next meeting, Silver Maynes Monday, April 4 at Agricultural Hall, 2 pm.

Movie Night, sponsored by Silver Maynes, Monday, March 14, was most successful. The films were preceded by a pot-luck supper provided by the members. Three films were shown and were provided by West Coast Audio Visual. One on Newfoundland dealt with its history since it joined Canada, and described the fishing industry which is still main way of life for many of its inhabitants. A tour of Europe was enjoyed and another film, entitled Twilight Forest, described the cutting and harvesting of trees in the Tropical Rain Forest in Nigeria.

Harry Adams was the projectionist and Ted and Blanche Anderson were responsible for obtaining the films. Another evening of a similar nature is planned for May 16.

Mayne Island Carpet Bowlers entertained West Vancouver Community Centre Bowlers at the Agricultural Hall, Thursday, March 24. Those in attendance, from Vancouver, were Mr. and Mrs. Heron, Mr. and Mrs. Bonar, Mr. and Mrs. Atwater, Mrs. Dean, Mrs. Caudwell, Mrs. Holl and Mrs. MacKenna. Mayne Islanders were Frank and Verlie Cooter, Bill and Doreen Ferguson, Vic Griffiths, Sophie Betts, Meg Drummond, Joe Fassler and Wally and Margaret Twamley. From all reports, it was a tie game.

The Annual Red Cross Drive on Mayne is progressing favorably. I would like to thank all my canvassers who have worked so hard in my absence. There is no deadline but March is always Red Cross month and it is nice to get

THOUGHT FOR FOOD

BY NIGEL DESBOTTES

President Nyerere of Tanzania said: "The real question is whether each of us is prepared to accept the challenge of building a state in which no man is ashamed of his poverty in the light of another's affluence, and no man has to be ashamed of his affluence in the light of another's poverty."

This brings us to the sixth and final myth dealt with in TEN DAYS FOR WORLD DEVELOPMENT, the broadsheet distributed by the five major Christian denominations in Canada: "Hunger should be overcome by re-distributing food."

The Institute for Food and Development Policy disputes the oft-repeated phrase "North America is the world's last remaining bread basket."

When food security is measured by the reserves held by metropolitan countries, we are made to feel that the burden of feeding the world is ours alone.

True, we eat too much and we waste food. We should take every possible measure to correct both faults. But we are not individually responsible for deprivation in other parts of the world, and we are right to feel resentful when told that our eating habits cause starvation elsewhere.

Food re-distribution is a simplistic view of the problem. The real villain, as we have shown in past weeks, is the control of food-producing resources. Whoever controls the land determines who can grow food (all who need it, or the powerful monopolies); What is grown (luxury non-food or basic staples) and where it goes (to the hungry or to the world's well-fed)

THAT WON'T DO IT

Redistribution programmes like food aid, will never solve the problem of hunger. Instead we must face up to the real question: How can people everywhere begin to democratize the control of food resources?

Beginning with the knowledge that people can and will feed themselves if allowed to, the question becomes not "What can we do for them?" but "How can we remove the obstacles preventing them from feeding themselves?"

Since some of these obstacles are being built with our taxes, in our name and by corporations based in our economies, our task is clear: We must stop any economic aid (government, multi-lateral or voluntary) that reinforces the use of land for export crops. We must stop support for agribusiness penetration into food economies abroad through tax incentives and from lending agencies.

We must stop military and counter-insurgency assistance to underdeveloped countries: it is used to oppose the changes necessary for food self-reliance. We must work to build a more self-reliant food economy at home, so we become less dependent on importing food from hungry people.

We must strive for land reform and support worker-managed producers and distributors, to counter monopolistic control over our food supplies. We must educate, showing the connection between government and corporate power, and how this works against the hungry abroad and against the food interests of the majority at home.

CONQUERED BY THEMSELVES

We must counter despair. 40% of all people in underdeveloped countries have managed to eliminate hunger through their common efforts. Newly liberated countries in Africa and Asia are reconstructing their agriculture along the principles of food first self-reliance.

"Most fundamentally," concludes the broadsheet, "We must recognize that we are not a 'hunger' movement. Rather we all can become moulders of the future who have chosen to use the visible tragedy of hunger to reveal the utter failure of our current economic system to meet human needs."

Sister Mary Evelyn Jegen, S.N.D., sums up our obligations: "It does not matter that we may be personally innocent of acts we perceive as unjust. Our institutions do our sinning for us. We must therefore examine our consciousness more than our conscience about apathy in the face of human destruction."

LABELLING BY SOURCE

Dr. Jack Warnock recently issued a challenge to Canada Safeway which we should heed. He asked for fresh produce to be clearly labelled as to its source. Canned goods should be similarly identified, so those who want to support local farmers and processors can do so. It is our duty to examine what we buy - not just considering the price, but also where it comes from and what it contains.

We owe it to our bodies to know what we eat; we owe it to our province, our country and the rest of the world to be aware of where our money is going, and to whom we are giving power with our spending dollars.

"Think before you eat" and "Think before you buy" should be our slogans for 1977.

SATURNA SCENE

BY KUKLOS

Elections and meetings were major news on Saturna this week.

Monday night saw the annual general meeting of the Community Club at the Hall, and the election of officers for the coming year.

The new executive consists of: president, Michael Hayes; vice-president, Stella Coutts; secretary, Terry Siemens; treasurer, Melanie Gaines. Bill Sheffield becomes past president, and the directors are Walter Bavis, Geri Davidson, Les Crosby, Graham Howarth, Jim Money, Harvey Janszen, Jack Vincent and Ann Bavis.

LIONS CLUB!

Tuesday night the Lions Club also installed its roster of new officers.

The executive now reads: president, Bob Hindmarch; first vice-president, Bruce Corkill; second vice-president, Bob Wilkinson; secretary, Frank Copeland; treasurer, Em Coombs. Lion Tamer, Tom Barnett; Lad Twister, Steve Maskow and new directors, Lloyd Smith and Dave Crooks, with continuing directors, Walter Bavis and Andy Siemens.

A highlight of the evening which was open to the public was a demonstration and film, sponsored by the Heart Fund, and explained by Jack Donald, a visiting fireman of many years' experience.

On a very sophisticated sort of dummy, the processes of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and a kind of heart massage, were demonstrated, and tried out by different members of the audience. It was a very enlightening and worthwhile event for everyone participating.

WATER UTILITY

On Wednesday a meeting was convened at the Hall by the Comptroller of Water Rights, Howard De Beck, and other personnel from Victoria, including Angus Davie, secretary of the Water Utilities, lawyer Dennis Doyle, engineer J.F. Farrell, chartered accountant R.L. Kuss, and John Stadt, Engineering Technician with the Water Supply division.

Mr. DeBeck opened the meeting with introductory remarks, then heard the application of Jim Money, representing Money Brothers and Pederson, to have its water licence revoked.

Then speakers Laurel Benham, Assistant Regional Health officer, and Mike Hayes, for the Community Club, were heard.

The Saturna community asked for time to conduct a feasibility study for the purpose of creating a public water utility on the island.

Questions were also taken from the floor.

Mr. De Beck adjourned the meeting, and will be making a ruling about the application for cancellation. His findings will be announced later.

SERIES ENDS

The second series of Cultural Programme offerings has concluded at the school.

Special thanks are due to members of the community who participated in one or both of the series of afternoons: Melanie Gaines, sewing; Juanita Hutton-Potts, cooking; Frank and Pat Neumann, woodworking; Fritz and Karen Muntean, drawing; Laura Coombs and Marjorie Ratzlaff, knitting; Terry Siemens, cooking; Annie Popperwell, drawing; Flo Ratzlaff, carving; Susan Rice, Linda Cote, and Stu Cooper, working with clay and Karen Boser, who helped the children to make apple dolls. The students will have a chance to practice with their new interests and talents during the Spring Break, from March 28 to April 1.

On Friday, April 1, the last skating excursion to Victoria with the LIP workers will take

Info-Health By Dr. BOB YOUNG

The word 'peer', used as a verb, means to look intently. As a noun it can mean a person that has equal standing with another.

Perhaps both meanings can be read into the phrase 'peer review', a term commonly heard in medical circles.

Doctors are becoming increasingly subjected to peer review, a mechanism whereby their work can be examined and assessed by professional colleagues, and if found wanting, can be corrected.

Peer review is carried out in all hospitals. Case records are checked for accuracy and completeness, and reviewed to insure that investigation and treatment has been of a high standard.

Tissue removed at an operation is examined to confirm the diagnosis - a strong deterrent to the occasional overenthusiastic surgeon.

REVIEW COMMITTEES

Death review committees, infection committees, and credential committees all serve to maintain a high calibre of hospital care.

Office practice is reviewed by the College of Physicians and Surgeons, the B.C. Medical Association, and the B.C. Medical Plan.

When the computer identifies an unusual practice pattern, that physician's practice profile is examined by the B.C.M.A.'s Patterns of Practice Committee. When necessary the doctor is asked to appear to defend his methods.

Every year several doctors in B.C. have their licenses revoked because of personal problems, unprofessional conduct, fraud, or incompetency. This major decision, which deprives a doctor of his livelihood, is also made by peer review methods.

TOO LENIENT?

The layman may feel that peer review is too advantageous to the profession - that doctors sitting in judgment of other doctors may be too lenient or forgiving.

The Medical Act gives the medical profession the responsibility (and privilege) of governing itself, and this includes policing itself.

BY ROLLY FORD

Sherlock Holmes, whose uncanny powers of deduction held the literary world spellbound at the turn of the century, was widely recognized as an authority on anatomy, chemistry, geology, botany and British law.

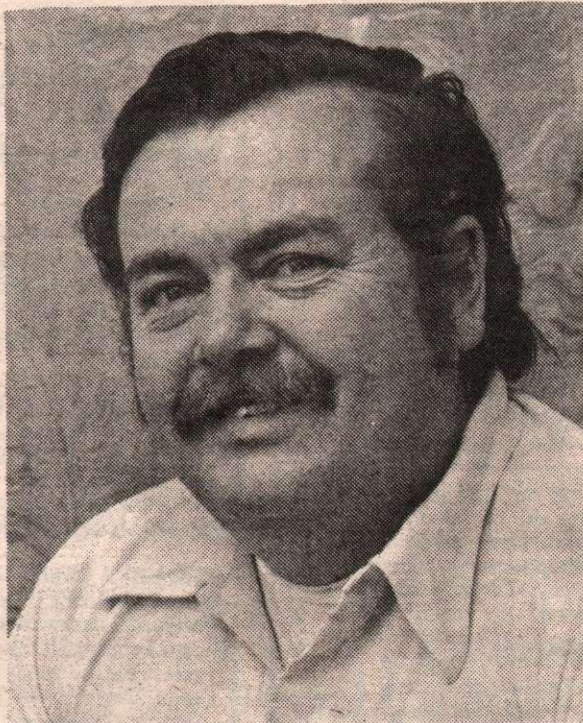

Less known was the famous sleuth's involvement in photography. Dr. Watson, his faithful assistant, was sworn to secrecy, having been press-ganged into performing the necessary dark-room rites.

It was Watson who developed the films, in the dimly flickering glow of a ruby safe-lamp.

IT WAS WATSON

It was Watson who secured the negative and the printing-out-paper in the glass frame and set them out in the sun for an hour until the rich-toned image

Peter Redekop President of Wall & Redekop Realty is pleased to announce that Ron McQuiggan has earned the Silver Sales Award in recognition of his high sales volume during 1976. appeared.

When things went wrong, it was Watson's head that rolled on the darkroom floor. At times, poor Watson would gladly have changed places with the Hound of the Baskervilles.

The snapshot era had arrived. Films were now fast enough to photograph action. New types of lenses led to the design of an amazing assortment of equipment, including the so-called detective cameras.

Holmes, of course, was completely bitten by the camera bug. Between consultations he could be found browsing through the photographic establishments, looking for cameras disguised as waistcoat buttons, pocket watches, or built into the handles of walking sticks, hats or hidden in the hollowed-out pages of a book. His favourite was a boutonniere with a Schlott glassworks lens, dewlike in its disguise as a rose bud in his lapel buttonhole.

MISSING HEADS

Invariably at the scene of a crime, Holmes had one or another of his detective cameras clicking away, surreptitiously recording every important aspect of the case.

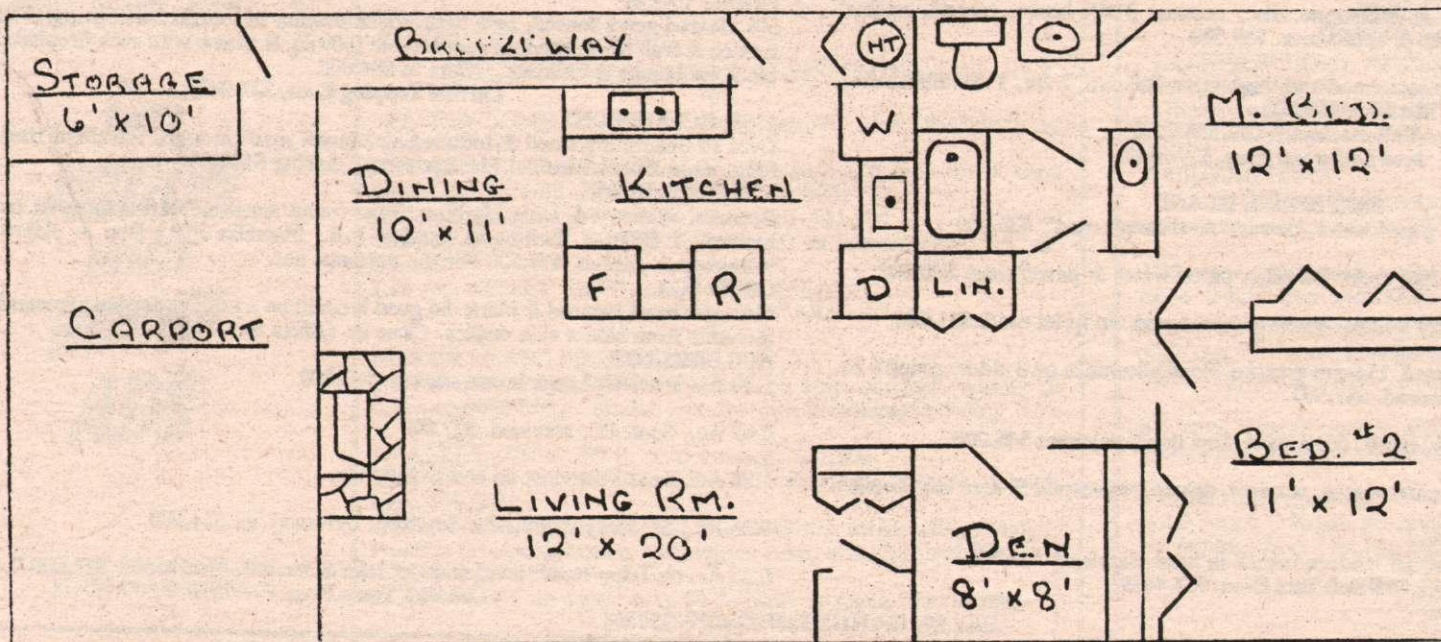

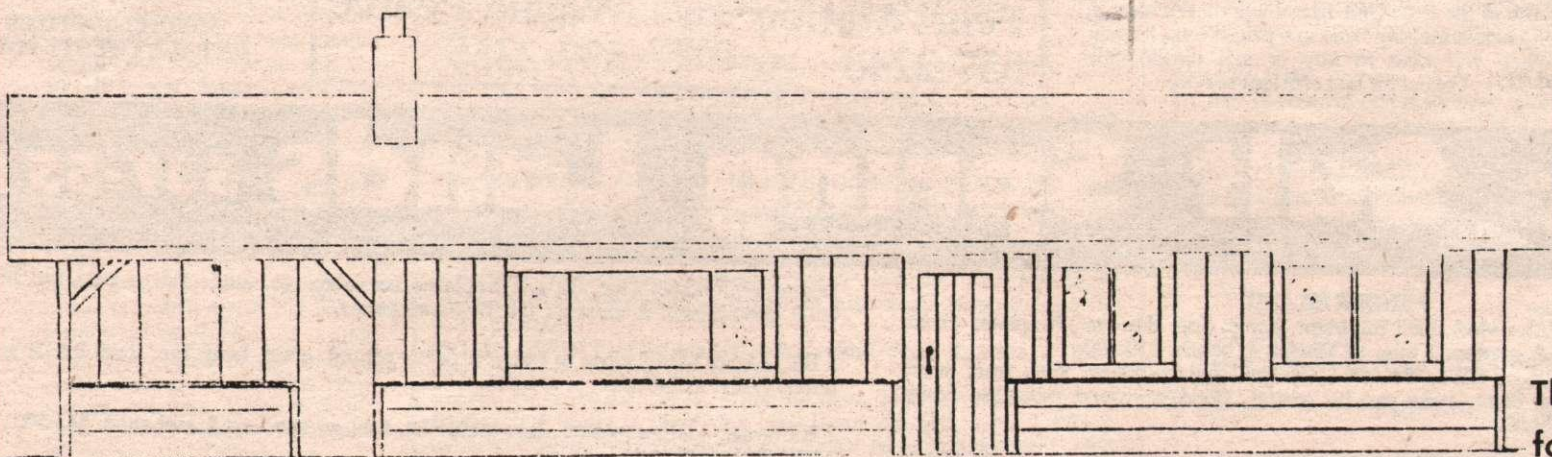

Over the years, his vast files of crime photographs would have put the Scotland Yard collection to shame. The photographs, of course, have long been missing. Perhaps they will turn up, eventually, covered with cobwebs and dust behind a secret panel at No. 221 B, Baker Street.

What a publishing triumph to relive the crimes of passion, travels to exotic lands, the tracking down of a mysterious killer hound on the foggy, steaming moors, case after case solved by Holmes and recorded for posterity in the annals of crime!

YOU AND YOUR CAMERA

graphs will ever show up. They have probably been destroyed by Dr. Watson or by Holmes himself. They were photographically a failure.

DEAD LOSS CAMERAMAN

The great Sherlock Holmes, who had never lost a case, was a total loss as a photographer. In every photograph the heads of the subjects were mysteriously missing. The feet, the legs, the body and the neck were technically perfect.

Above the neck, alas, there was nothing but the white upper border of the snapshot!

Holmes blamed Watson for the missing heads. It must be something to do with the development of the films. Too much agitation! The heads were being shaken off by Watson.

Watson experimented with slower agitation cycles. One film was left untouched by human hand during the entire processing period. Predictably, it was streaked rather badly by the oxidation products of development. The heads were still missing.

It was not until recent years that the mystery of the missing heads was solved. Millions upon millions of heads, feet, arms and ears were lost.

Dogs were photographed bounding across the grass.

When the films came back from the photofinishers the dogs appeared to have spirited away, leaving a photograph of an empty lawn somewhat in need of trimming.

To put it simply, the camera was not being pointed directly at the subject.

MUST BE AIMED

When a photographer aims his camera at a subject, his eye must be precisely centred behind the viewfinder. If his eye is below centre, he will tilt the camera downwards in attempting to view the scene.

In tilting the camera downwards, he leaves the heads out of the picture. If his eye is positioned too high, he tilts the camera upwards. No feet! So think of Holmes and Watson each time you take a picture.

Move the camera up and down, left and right, and your eye will instinctively centre itself so that the camera is truly aimed at your subject. Then, and only then, press gently on the shutter release button.

Selling tickets for Kicks on house of candy in store window

They're selling tickets for kicks. For the Salt Spring Island Kicks to send the soccer team to Europe for a football tour. Bruce and Katie Campbell, of Beaver Point, donated the candy house to Steven Marleau and the soccer team. It will be awarded as a draw prize. Picture was taken through Mouat's window and neither the photographer nor his car is in the store.

Gardening Tip:

Plant marigolds as a border around vegetable gardens or your favorite plants. These pretty flowers should keep most insects out of your garden since beetles and other insects hate these plants.

Fishing from afar

Two islands fishermen have returned from a herring fishing trip up the coast.

Ken Silvey, of Galiano, had the highest catch at Knight's Inlet during the time he was there. Bruce Hildred, of Ganges, had the highest catch at Boogie Bay, near Minstrel Island.

Gardening Hint:

Plant seeds for seedlings in styrofoam cups or egg cartons. Cardboard egg cartons are good, too, since the seedlings don't have to be removed when they are planted in the soil. The cardboard simply decomposes.

He protests manner of showing maps and plans of zoning pleas information have been on the bulletin board in the Court House, but that this was not so last week.

Quentin Wilson, of Fulford, protested the manner of advertising the public hearing at which he was sounding his protest on Tuesday.

Mr. Wilson told the hearing in St. George's Church Hall that he had been unable to see the maps and plans for rezoning although it had been advertised in Driftwood that they would be available in the Court House in Ganges.

Finally, he protested the publication of the geographical location of a property concerned with an application.

Capital Regional District had described it as "west" of Jackson Ave., when, in fact, it lies to the east of Jackson, stated Mr. Wilson.

Mr. Wilson recalled that in the past maps and relevant

Director George Heinekey assured him he would look into it.

Looking for pictures to mark 70 years

Mouat's are marking the 70th anniversary of the Ganges store this year. The picture here shows the original Mouat's Store in 1906. The sign had been newly erected and the island store had been, until very shortly before the picture was taken, operated by Malcolm and Purvis. The picture is significant for the fact that it marks the initial days of Mouat Bros. Ltd. It also sounds the call for early pictures and mementoes of Salt Spring Island. Director of Mouat's Trading Co., John Lees is collecting the souvenirs of the past. The company plans to publish an album of historical pictures later this year. Readers who have early pictures of the island, letters or published pamphlets are invited to call Mr. Lees or the store. They will be copied and returned to the owner. The sponsors are looking for pictures of all Salt Spring Island and not merely of the store area.

Only one opponent to plea

There was only one written opposition to a plea for rezoning a Ganges property last week during a public hearing in St. George's Hall.

Application was made by Harold Day, of McPhillips Ave. for commercial zoning of his property.

The objection was not read out. Property lies a few yards west of the Trading Company.

Capital Regional Board had described it as west of Jackson Ave.

Cottage is ransacked on Pender

Police are investigating the forced entry into a cottage at North Pender Island recently. Report was made by Mrs. Petryphen on March 25 that a cottage on her property on Aldridge Way, North Pender, had been entered and ransacked. A window had been broken to gain entry.
