Hearings at Galiano to consider zoning changes

Public hearings next week will invite Galiano residents to express an opinion on three planning proposals.

The hearings will be held in the Galiano Community Hall at 7 pm on Friday, Aug. 13.

First proposal, Bylaw 23, calls for the amendment of boundaries of the Agricultural Land Reserve on Bluffs Road, overlooking Active Pass.

The ALR boundaries have been amended by the B.C. Land Commission to accommodate the three-parcel subdivision and the present hearing provides for the change of zoning boundaries to follow the Land Commission's ruling.

The second hearing will consider a list of 18 properties to be designated development permit areas. The zoning is unchanged. Effect of the measure will be to require a development permit should any development take place in the future. Properties affected have been listed in an advertisement by the Islands Trust.

Third hearing will consider an application for rezoning a property on Madrona Drive from village residential to commercial. The property lies between the post office and the Salt Spring Lands office. It has been sanctioned by the Galiano Island Trust Committee because it conforms with the community plan.

Islanders rally to save Trust

Residents of the Trust islands rallied during the past week in an effort to save the Islands Trust from elimination.

A committee was formed at Ganges on Tuesday evening of last week to prepare plans to fight the government's Land Use Act, which included a clause to abolish the Trust.

Within less than a week, two signs were raised on the shores of Active Pass calling for retention of the Trust and over 1,100 signatures were obtained from opponents of the government's proposal.

The Salt Spring group erected a sign Saturday morning on Helen Point, Mayne Island, at the southern entrance to Active Pass. The sign, bearing the words, "Save the Islands Trust", consisted of 22 sheets of plywood. Another sign, bearing the same inscription, was erected by a group at Galiano Island in Bellhouse Bay.

The Helen Point sign was the target of arsonists on Sunday evening when kerosene was used in an attempt to set it on fire. Damage was slight, however, and the sign was repaired earlier this week.

On Friday and Saturday several volunteers gathered signatures on a letter to Premier Bennett from shoppers in Ganges and from travellers at the Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen ferry terminals.

But the B.C. Ferry Corporation didn't take kindly to the move. At Swartz Bay only 17 signatures were obtained before corporation officials stepped in and stopped the protesters, even though they were conducting their campaign outside the ferry terminal compound.

Islanders were more fortunate at Tsawwassen, where 400 signatures were obtained before officials ordered them to stop.

By Tuesday morning more than 1,100 signatures had been obtained on the letters, which ask Premier Bennett "to retain the Islands Trust to keep the islands as we know and enjoy them".

Union set to strike Thursday

Talks between the provincial government and the B.C. Government Employees' Union broke down Monday night.

Spokesmen for the 40,000-member union said that a general strike will begin at 12:01 am Thursday unless Premier Bennett agrees to meet with union negotiators.

There have been reports that the union will picket ferry terminals if a strike takes place, which would mean a disruption in service.

Power cut

When Kerry Akerman was working last Thursday he cut the power on Salt Spring Island.

Akerman was working in Fulford hoisting a pole when it hit a small tree which hit the power lines at the south end.

The power was cut off to the island for approximately 30 minutes as a result.

House adjourns; bill not passed

• Interview with Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm — Page Two.

The British Columbia legislature adjourned for the summer recess last week without passing the new Land Use Act.

The government was expected to approve the new act, which would have abolished the Islands Trust, before MLA's took their summer break.

The move left Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm angry and critical of his cabinet colleagues. The minister expressed disappointment that the bill wasn't passed and said "it was a gutless measure to drop it now".

Vander Zalm said the bill would be at the top of the list at the next sitting of the legislature.

Co-ordinator of the Salt Spring Island group, Bev Unger, told Driftwood Tuesday that the letters will be delivered to the legislature this week, probably on Wednesday.

Presentation of the letters to a member of Premier Bennett's staff will be made by Salt Spring trustee David Lott and members of the local committee.

Unger said arrangements are being made to have a goat accompany them to Victoria. The animal will wear a placard saying, "You've Got Our Goat".

Ferries not too busy on weekend

B.C. Ferries weren't overly busy on the B.C. Day weekend, reports Bob Anderson, terminal agent at Long Harbour terminal.

"Traffic was heavy but we never worry about this weekend. There's no great surge of people coming on to the island all at once during the summer. Tourist traffic is more gradual throughout the summer. Every morning sailing out of Tsawwassen is full during the week and reservations are necessary for the 4:30 out of Long Harbour."

Traffic was heavy, Anderson added, but nothing like the spring long weekends.

Traffic and passenger statistics weren't available from B.C. Ferries at press-time Tuesday.

VANDER ZALM:

Desecration of islands 'is last thing I want'

Special to
Gulf Islands Driftwood
BY SID TAFLER

One of the largest contingents of Gulf Islanders to gather together in Victoria in recent years assembled on the lawn of the legislature last week. They were protesting the government's land use bill, which would have abolished the Islands Trust.

The islanders went home victorious and Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm appeared to be the big loser as the government adjourned the legislature on Thursday before Vander Zalm's bill was passed.

Vander Zalm lashed out at his cabinet colleagues, calling them "gutless" and accusing them of "backing down miserably" in the face of opposition to the bill.

On Thursday evening freelance legislative reporter Sid Tafler talked to Vander Zalm in his office in the legislature about the future of the Islands Trust and his vision of the Gulf Islands.

Question: Did you expect to get this much opposition from the Gulf Islands to your proposal to eliminate the Islands Trust?

Vander Zalm: On an issue like the Islands Trust, people can be very divided. Because people don't fully understand it, you could soon use that lack of understanding and stir it up in an anti-sort of way. It's unfortunate though, that a lot of people still have the impression that there's an attempt by myself or government to put the islands to developers and see them desecrated or abused, and that's the last thing I want.

When I was mayor of Surrey I fought that sort of thing. I'm not against the principle of devising ways within the existing structure that would assure the protection of what we hold dear on the islands. But I'm also aware that once people take a position in government and a bureaucracy begins to build it can only grow and no government anywhere appears to want to tackle the elimination of some facet of the bureaucracy.

It's a tough sort of thing to do and I guess in part that helped to hoist the thing when it came to the final moments of the session.

Question: Mr. Minister, I'm wondering to what extent you understand the feelings of the people in the Gulf Islands. It seemed like an attempt to slip something by at the end of the session, to suddenly add the section eliminating the Islands Trust. There was no notice given, no discussion with the Trust itself. Don't you think that anybody with even slight misgivings would become greatly opposed under these circumstances?

Vander Zalm: I didn't feel comfortable with the fact that it came in at the very end. It's not my style. My style is to get feedback and to present things in advance. The Islands Trust removal was the result of restraint. It came on suddenly.

All of these restraints moves are coming on much quicker than we had anticipated. The whole thing appears to be caving in around us. This was one of the things a decision had to be made on very quickly, because the legislation was proceeding and this was the one opportunity we had to do something.

Question: I think everyone understands that in these difficult times governments can't afford everything. But the Islands Trust represents local control. I think the people who appreciate the resource of the Gulf Islands see the Islands Trust as a relatively small investment by government.

Vander Zalm: We have seven regional districts providing services now. And maybe they're not too involved with the islands. The suggestion has been made that instead of seven regional districts we should give the people on the islands the responsibility to decide if they want to belong to a particular regional district or if they should be one regional district.

Perhaps people on the islands should be permitted input not only in planning matters but in the tools of planning like sewers, water supplies, garbage pickup. It makes sense that those kinds of decisions ought to be tied in with planning decisions.

If those seven regional districts aren't the proper vehicle, I wouldn't be adverse to working with the people to see that an alternative could be brought about. Maybe it's true that every ill wind carries some good.

Question: I think you did something a little out of step today in publicly disagreeing with your cabinet colleagues in their decision to delay the Land Use Act. Why did you decide to make this statement and break solidarity with the cabinet?

Vander Zalm: I felt very strongly about this issue. I felt more strongly about the fact that something would come so far and then fall apart, than I did about the bill itself. I didn't think it would be honest of me to say I'm happy, that my colleagues made the right decision, it wouldn't be truthful.

When I leave this place on the weekend I want to know that I did what I believed to be right. Maybe that really isn't kosher in this system, but so be it.

Question: Mr. Vander Zalm, as far as your proposal to turn the planning authority on the islands over to the regional districts is concerned, are you quite sure it would have saved the government money in the long run?

Vander Zalm: The regional districts have their elected people from the islands, they have various functions on the islands, they have their staff in place, they have planners. I don't think the extra work would really hurt them an awful lot.

Question: What about this issue of local control? In many cases only one island representative sits on a board of 30 or 40 people. They claim that really isn't enough control over the destiny of the islands and the Islands Trust provides a better vehicle.

Vander Zalm: The act makes provisions for them to establish advisory planning commissions. Certainly all those sorts of things can be referred to them as a matter of policy within the regional district. Those advisory planning commissions could be made up of local people, every island could have one.

Question: Do you share in this vision of protecting and preserving the islands in a similar state as they are now - mainly agricultural and rural?

Vander Zalm: I share that vision for the whole province. But I can certainly appreciate that the islands are the most suitable type of candidate for this type of attitude. But I don't believe that suddenly everything will change. Everything has been worked on for many years, the planning protections have been brought about, they're all in place.

Question: Do you agree with the contention that the Gulf Islands are special places and therefore they need special protection?

Vander Zalm: They're special places, but the Okanagan is a special place, the Kootenays is a special place, you can carry this thing to the limit. If some people are saying we live here now and we like it the way it is, don't ever change it, I don't agree with that. Like every other place, it's a provincial resource.

Question: Has the Islands Trust been obstructionist, standing in the way of subdivision or development?

Vander Zalm: No, I've gotten along with them well. The one argument I can recall was where the Islands Trust in their preparation for a plan for Thetis Island wouldn't allow any tourist accommodation. I disagreed with that and they said they didn't want any tourists or travellers. I took exception to that.

Question: I think the whole issue revolves around people wanting their voices to be heard. Many people feel they will be heard through the Islands Trust but not through some other vehicle.

Vander Zalm: The Trust was very necessary when there were no plans, no subdivision bylaws, no controls back in 1974. But we've come along way since then. If we could simply do all things and didn't have to prioritize we could well carry on with the Islands Trust.

Why do we need the flack? I don't want the protests. I don't particularly enjoy going out there and facing an angry crowd. We could avoid all that trouble if we could simply go on as we have over the years ignoring it because who cared if it was $100,000 or $500,000, it didn't matter much.

But nowadays as government revenues are falling, those other considerations tend to impact.

I knew you were in London, she said. I read all about you in Buckingham Palace. But it wasn't me! Honest!

Thinking of travelling, I was impressed with the pay phones in Spain. The top of the money box has a chute and you put three or four coins there. The distant party answers and the first coin disappears. When your three minutes is up there is no interruption. The next coin drops automatically. It is particularly pleasing after fighting the British phone meters and their propensity for killing the call while you struggle to force a coin into the slot against the better judgment of the machine itself.

I've been reading the Paston Letters, written in the 15th century in England. One letter is dated 1440 and exhorts the recipient to destroy the letter for fear it might be read by another person. The exhortation is interesting because after 500 years the letter is not only still in existence but being read by hundreds; perhaps even thousands.

I am a keen mechanic. It's not an accomplishment. It's a gift; probably inherited. My father was not only skilful, but inventive. He taught me many things about tools. For example, a liberal greasing of an ordinary tenon saw would permit its use for years without sharpening. And a pointed poker heated to red heat will serve as a drill through any piece of wood. His finest accomplishment was the discovery of a pair of dividers. He lived out his life without ever knowing their intended purpose. He drove a car, at one time, with a petrol can on the running board. It was a common practice to carry a spare two gallons of gas in case of emergency. The automobile maker had a neat little screw clamp to secure the can, and in order to safeguard the supply from thieving motorists, the screw was not equipped with a hexagon head or anything so simple. It had two holes in it and a special tool with two studs was provided to manipulate it. The original tool was long lost when I recall my parent's conviction that a pair of dividers had been made to fit these little recesses and enable him to remove the can. He could have described them in any one of a dozen languages but he never read up their purpose in one of those languages. That may be why some of my projects end up the way they do. I may have inherited his skills. Gee! I hope not!

Just after the end of the war I was happy and without a care in the world. Then the operating room nurse in a military hospital invited her brother to a hospital party. I went along because I had nothing to do. For 38 years I didn't see her again. She moved to New Brunswick and it was too far away. And that was how I got married. Women's Lib was nursing in the same hospital. Last week Nan Aird came west and visited us for a few days. If it hadn't been for her I could have been still without a care in the world!

A dearth of alcohol

This week sees yet another strike looming as the provincial government employees want up in a downswinging economy.

The strike will represent an inconvenience to many and a disaster to some. Among the services to be jeopardized will be the government liquor stores. The sale of alcohol will be suspended until after the dispute.

To drink or not to drink is scarcely a question meriting great concern. But when the supplies are constantly on again, off again, each time there is a labour dispute in the province, the alternative of direct-sale liquor outlets becomes attractive.

There is not a patron of the government liquor service who will suffer from a dearth of liquor. Some dispensers of alcohol will have nothing to dispense. Nevertheless, these constant strikes and threats of strikes bring to the fore the value and merit of following the trend established in most of the world, of selling liquor in grocery stores.

Chink in the armour

Every island could have an advisory planning commission, said Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm in an interview last week.

The minister is the author of the unsuccessful Land Use Act which foundered on the floor of the legislature in Victoria last week. He is also responsible for the plan to abandon the Islands Trust.

It is odd that the minister who is so concerned about island planning and a new concept of planning for the whole province would make the suggestion. Every island could have a commission whereby the community could take a greater part in the planning function, says the deeply concerned minister.

Bully for him!

But, surely, he should know, as the concerned father of provincial planning, that the islands have had advisory planning commissions for the past decade and more?

Such comment reveals the chinks in the armour of the author of the land use bill. It might be well if the minister were to do a little homework when he looks at these islands.

A worthy project

The province appears to consist of a tightly-governed community watched over by ministers looking for new projects. Why not take a look at simplicity?

It would be a project worthy of even the most profound of our elected ministers to undertake the simplification of law in British Columbia. It would be a challenge to the learned and the shrewd and the hard-headed among our leaders to eliminate archaisms and substitute modern, intelligible phrases. Latin has no longer any place in British Columbia law. Re-write the book so that every British Columbia citizen can hope to understand what the courts are talking about.

It is more than 100 years since Dickens was pleading for the same amendments in Britain. It is a project, then, honoured by time and urgently needed.

Do we hear a volonteer?

LOCAL PUBLIC HOUSES may be facing stiff competition from a quarter that they never would have expected to get into the entertainment business.

Whether that competition materializes depends on a decision by Island Savings Credit Union to continue its Friday afternoon floor show.

Just before six o'clock last Friday credit union staff and customers were treated to a strip show. And I'm just thankful that there wasn't a Driftwood photographer on the premises to catch my act.

Last week I wrote of the motorcyclist's biggest danger: the other driver. His second biggest danger is bugs.

As I rode into Ganges on the afternoon in question, I could feel a bug crawling up my arm. After I'd covered two miles, he'd covered a couple of feet and was soon heading across my back.

I was standing in line at the credit union when my passenger, whom I'd forgotten, decided to attack.

The sting came quickly and painfully but equally quick was the response by Louis Renaud, who was ahead of me in the line.

Death was instant for the wasp when Louis pronounced the last rites (in French, of course) and gave it a good squeeze while it was still in my shirt.

The strip show followed but removal of jacket and shirt was all that was required to locate the attacker.

If there is another show this week, don't expect to find me there. I think I'll stick to newspapers.

THE SWEET SMELL of Alberni pulp is in the air this week as an ex-islander is on Salt Spring for a visit.

Jennifer Cudmore brought with her news from Port Alberni where, I understand, officials are about to create the position of honorary mayor.

Number one candidate for the position should be IWA president Jack Munro.

HONESTY IS on the wane. Last year, roughly 65% of travellers on the Long Harbour-Tsawwassen ferry proved to be honest. This year the figure is in the high 50's.

The statistics were calculated following a check of our own records. Two weeks ago, 58% of the travellers paid for their copy of Driftwood, which is available at an honour box on the ferry.

A SALT SPRING ISLAND MAN is trying to come up with the means of unloading several barrels of goat's milk soap.

In exchange for building a chimney, stonemason Andrew Currie has been offered soap in lieu of cash. But now he's wondering what he can possibly do with it.

It's easy, I told him. He could offer to supply it to the ferries in exchange for free travel, to local restaurants in exchange for meals and to the laundromat in exchange for clean laundry and showers.

He still wasn't convinced.

I'M NO LESS fond of computers despite the problems I've been experiencing with some software I purchased for my TRS-80.

I've been delaying buying programs because learning how to write some of them has proved fascinating. Unfortunately, those I've written have been rather useless.

So I bought a payroll program. It was a big step. My computer was about to go to work for me, instead of providing hours of fun and frustration.

I entered the company payroll, pressed the necessary keys, and out came the figures.

I am, to say the least, very satisfied with the results.

My computer tells me I'm getting paid $700 an hour, which ought to be just about enough.

THE ONLY TIME I ever remember jokes is when I'm sitting at my typewriter. So here's another.

Donation made by association

Sir,
The front page of your July 21 issue carries a picture of the Trustee for Pender handing a $1,500 cheque to the Superintendent of Facilities for the Gulf Islands School Board, stated to be "from groups on that (Pender) island" as a voluntary payment to help the cost of energy.

I would like to correct that statement. The $1,500 contribution was made by the Pender Island Recreation and Agricultural Hall Association, not by "groups" on Pender Island.

The request from the School Board for assistance was made too late for the Hall Association, which administers the Pender Islands Community Centre, to recoup the expense from the groups using the facilities.

Letters to the Editor

Islands are unique Canadian resource

Sir,
I have become concerned recently by a number of comments I have heard in reaction to the Government's proposed repeal of the Islands Trust Act. In particular, it seems from comments one hears on the street, that most residents of Salt Spring Island seem to support the Government's action. Curiously this position proceeds from misunderstandings about the function and policy of the Act and its Board.

The comment I have most often heard in the last six days is "it's about time" or "I am glad they're getting rid of a bunch more bureaucrats".

As David Lott pointed out in his factual letter to you of July 26, the Trust and its staff in fact does not create what the Minister has described as an extra level of government. Since shortly after its inception, the Trust was given the chores of creating Bylaws for zoning and land use, concerning itself with subdivision, development and the proper use of land within its regional jurisdiction.

Every one of these functions must be performed by some body. If the Islands Trust is not the body, then the Regional District will do the job, or (as under the new Planning Bill) a more centralized planning body will be charged with the work. Surely we all can appreciate that the public will, and should, employ officers to perform these tasks. Whether they be staff of the Islands Trust or some other body, makes little difference, and to charge a duplication of government effort and expense is simply untrue.

The Minister has said the Trust has largely completed its job. He describes that job as preserving and protecting the Gulf Islands, at a time when they once faced substantial development pressure. That is a fundamental misstatement.

The task of the Islands Trust has always been "to preserve and protect, in co-operation with municipalities and the Government of the Province, the Trust area in its unique amenities and environment, for the benefit of the residents of the Trust area and of the Province generally". The Trust area is, of course, a huge region in the Gulf of Georgia comprised by scores of islands. It is noteworthy that in the definitive purposes of the Trust, the Legislature acknowledges the Trust area to have both unique amenities and a unique environment.

If they were genuinely unique in 1974, they are unique now. If the islands in 1974 had a vulnerable lifestyle or delicate environment worth protecting for their inhabitants and the taxpayers of the Province, they are worth protecting today. To suggest that over the passage of time the Gulf Islands have become better protected or defended from the conditions which concerned the Government in 1974, is sheer nonsense to anyone who has the slightest concern for the unique amenities and environment of the islands.

What the repeal of the Act does achieve is a centralization of planning control, a dissolution of local control and the assurance that the Gulf Islands will be viewed as a region of land like any other in the Province so far as planning, environmental protection and land use are concerned. The move will not save money, and it will not guarantee a higher level of efficiency in the bureaucracy.

We should think twice before praising the Minister for his zeal in doing away with the only watchdog we had.

Community rallied to help

Sir,
It's nice to know that in these difficult economic times there are still people willing to help those less fortunate than themselves.

When Wayne De Vane had an accident two weeks ago the community rallied together to get his house finished so that he would have somewhere to come home to.

Cubbons donated all the interior panelling for the house. Materials were also donated by Windsor Plywood, Gulf Island Windows, Burgoyne Enterprises, Gulfstream Supply, Steve Ondre, Colin Drummond and Bob Andrews.

What wasn't donated was purchased with contributions from Salt Spring Lands, Flowers and Wine, Island Garage, Pharmasave, Miller and Toynbee, Marsim Crafts and Heritage Boutique.

When all the materials were together, neighbours and friends came out for a work party. It was a nine-hour day, filled with the good will and cheer of people working to help a friend in need.

A heartwarming experience. Thanks to all.

Islands are no less unique today

Sir,
I enclose a copy of a letter which I have sent to the Honourable W. Vander Zalm with regard to the abolition of the Islands Trust Act.

I trust that all Islanders will join in making their feelings known to their elected representatives and to give support to the Island Trustees in their endeavours to save the Island Trust Act.

Dear Sir,
It is with great regret that I hear and read, that in your proposed Bill 72 - Land Use Act, clause 190 states that the Islands Trust Act is rescinded in its entirety.

As a resident of Salt Spring Island and a professional Architect involved in development of these islands, I find this to be a most retrograde step. I support wholeheartedly the concept of the Islands Trust and wish to see it preserved.

In the proposed abolition of the Islands Trust Act I have two major concerns:

1. That the object of the Trust as defined in clause 4 (1) viz. "It is the object of the Trust to preserve and protect, in co-operation with municipalities and the government of the Province, the Trust area and its unique amenities and environment for the benefit of the residents of the Trust area and of the Province generally.", must be included in any replacement legislation, and

2. That local representation is mandatory for the successful protection of these environmentally sensitive islands. Under clause 5 (1) of the Islands Trust Act "There shall be two local trustees elected for each designated island." This must be retained.

I am composing this letter travelling aboard the Queen of Saanich between Tsawwassen and Swartz Bay and to port and starboard I see these magnificent islands.

They are special. They are unique. They are a Heritage for future generations. They must have special measures for their preservation as a unique Canadian and World resource.

A quotation comes to mind from a joint report prepared by the Nature Conservancy of Canada and the Islands Trust, entitled "Natural Areas Inventory", December 1975, which states:-

"The Islands Trust Area as part of the Strait of Georgia, Puget Sound region can be readily considered the most important area for outdoor recreation in North America. Few other areas of the world offer such a diversity of recreational and aesthetic values. In general the area's dry mild climate, outstanding marine resource and unique flora and fauna make it one of the most interesting environmental regions in Canada.

It should be emphasized that the Islands Trust area represents an environmental, recreational and aesthetic recreational resource of international significance. In the past few decades this resource has been enthusiastically recognized by many people resulting in extreme pressure for year-round or second home development. At the same time visitors to the area by car, ferry, sailboat or motor launch are making ever increasing demands for space and facilities. Although the total population of the Islands remains relatively small at 10,000 residents, close to six million people in Greater Vancouver and Seattle live in close proximity to the area."

Please may I receive your response to my questions.

Dissolution would deny islanders' rights

Sir,
This letter has been forwarded to the Hon. Hugh Curtis with copy to the Hon. W. Vander Zalm.

We, as members of this island community, are concerned as to the possible long-term effects of the proposed Land Act and, in particular, of that section of the Act which dissolves The Islands Trust.

We believe that, over the years of its existence, the Trust members have acted in good faith in the best interests of all the islands people. The Trust decisions have been made by elected representatives of the islands who have knowledge of local problems, who are aware of the needs of the island communities and who seek to preserve the unique character of the islands.

There has been a peaceful continuity of planning and progress since the inception of the Trust based on individual representation of each island as an integral part of a geographic unit. To remove this cohesive element and divide decision making between differing "regional" bureaucracies can lead only to bitterness, unfair preferences and the danger of uncontrolled development.

The argument that dissolution of the Trust will save thousands of taxpayer dollars can hardly be upheld as each region concerned will require additional staff and work-time to cope with the burdensome task of governing these "troublesome islands".

Furthermore, arbitrarily to divide and transfer the Trust's responsibilities to officials who are removed from the islands, who may consider their own local urban affairs more worthy of their immediate interest and who do not have the support of the island people is, we feel, to deny the democratic right of the island people to have a voice in decision making policies of their government.

We would request, Sir, that you, as elected representative of the island communities, use your good office to ensure the continuation of the Islands Trust — and the continuing support of your constituents.

Trust had become top heavy

Sir,
There will be much controversy over the death of the Islands Trust. It could have been a good thing but as so often happens became top heavy. Why pay salary and expenses to non-resident persons to come and solve Galiano problems?

Should be possible to have a small effective council on Galiano of perhaps five members; these should be unpaid retired persons, with expertise, but without any current business connections and with a whole lot of good common sense.

I am sure such people can be found who are interested in preserving Galiano Island for the good of everyone.

Missing clothing sought

Sir,
I am writing in the hope that I might succeed in recovering an item of personal property that I greatly regretted losing; and with a possible chance of helping someone else recover something they lost, which I found.

I was on Salt Spring Island during the weekend of July 16 to July 18, and in the course of a scuba dive at Beaver Point, found a single U.S. Divers Rocket Fin that must have been lost not too long ago (since it shows no signs of deterioration) by a diver in that area.

Later that same day, while waiting for scuba tanks to be refilled at the Gulf Marina in Ganges, I placed a tracksuit top of mine (which had got wet earlier) on top of a Windsurfer on the roof of my car to dry in the sun.

I forgot to remove it before driving on, and it was naturally missing when I got back to the cottage near Southey Point where I was staying for the weekend.

The tracksuit top was navy blue in colour with a navy and white striped ribbing, had a hood with an orange drawstring, and a "kangaroo" pouch in front. It is made of nylon/cotton fabric and had no zipper.

I would really like to recover it if I can. Anybody who may have found it, or just saw it can call me collect at 879-8322 (work) or 228-0351 (home) in Vancouver.

If the diver who lost the fin I found at Beaver Point contacts me, I would be pleased to return it to him or her.

Despite the loss, I enjoyed my stay on Salt Spring as much as I always have in the past. It is a remarkably beautiful island and has a warm, friendly and gracious community.

Islands being opened up to uncontrolled development

Sir,
Like England, to quote Shakespeare, the Gulf Islands are "gems in a shining sea". As you pass them on the ferry they seem like beatific havens for the tired and restless souls of the cities, for the men and women who have lived in the maelstrom of urban life most of their lives.

The beauty of the islands may best be appreciated by a ride from the mainland of North America in the evening in summer. As the sun slowly dips over the western horizon the colours change on land and sea; the contours of the hills and shores gradually become dimmer; the light changes from golden to purplish on the moving sea and rocks; the islands become enveloped in a kind of mist, their shapes fading with the darkening horizon. It would take the skill of a great seascape painter to do justice to the scene. Nowhere in the world is there a more thrilling ride on narrow waterways.

We who live here, coming from the megalopolises, or from the smaller towns of the U.S. or Canada, seek peace and beauty, the companionship of sea birds and song birds. We tolerate the traffic congestion of our village, its untidiness and sprawl, because we have beauty around our homes, whether it is Scott Point, Southey Point, or any area of this hilly island.

What the politicians want to do with our precious islands in the bill now being debated in the legislature is to open them up to uncontrolled development. The NDP by creating the Islands Trust created the best land-use controls in North America, and many dedicated men and women, elected or not, have worked hard to implement them.

The Regional Plan they produced is a masterpiece of land planning which should get an award from some of the numerous professional organizations in this field. If the Socreds succeed in forcing their destructive bill down the throats of the islanders, their next move will be to kill the Agricultural Reserve.

These two moves would spell the end of the ambience and serenity which the Gulf Islands enjoy. Every one of us must fight these moves to the last ditch.

Visitors were impressed

Sir,

As a visitor from California I would like to compliment Ganges for its friendliness and kindness. As we pulled into Ganges Harbour Marina just before six, a man at dockside helped us tie down our boat and then raced us in his car to a local market.

We did not get his name, so we cannot thank him personally here. The people at the market allowed us to shop, though it clearly was closing time by the time we reached their door.

Later, after washing clothes at a laundromat in Upper Ganges, I became disoriented and walked a good distance in the wrong direction. It was growing dark as I realized I was "lost", so I hailed a passing motorist, Mr. Tom Watson, who not only told me where I was, but turned his car around and delivered me safely back to my worried family.

Your islands are lovely, but the greatest beauty can be found in the hearts of your people.

Youngsters reported missing

Two boys were missing long enough to cause their father concern on Monday night.

Two sons of David Barkley of Hillcrest Road, Fulford, went missing on Monday and by 8:20 pm Barkley was worried. He reported the missing lads to the RCMP detachment at Ganges and the Salt Spring Island volunteer fire department was notified.

The two boys were picked up shortly after Barkley reported their absence. They were found two miles from home.

Lions go to work on hall

It was the Salt Spring Lions Club's turn to get active in the restoration of Mahon Hall recently, when members gave the hall a new coat of paint. The island's service clubs have played a major role in assisting with renovations to the Ganges landmark.

Theatre workshop at Ganges

A workshop will be held at the high school gym in Ganges on the weekend for theatre zone members and island actors.

The workshop will be given by professional actor Colin Gorrie who will be visiting from Victoria to hold the study of playwright Eric Nichol's recent play, Atom and Eve.

Theatre B.C. is celebrating 50 years of theatre this year and Atom and Eve was written to mark the anniversary.

The play, to be performed at Government House in Victoria on September 26, takes place in a theatre just outside heaven.

I sit on a seat in our little rowboat
Quite adequate to keep us afloat
Then along passes by
Silhouetted in sky
Great cruising homes - sea going
Beautiful lines, all kinds of space
Our craft smaller than dinghies they're towing
But isn't it great to be able to share
In something that money can't buy
For in our little boat
We enjoy the same joys
Of the landscape, the sea and the sky

REPORT FROM THE COMMONS

Messages for Ottawa

BY JIM MANLY, MP

"What message would you like to send back to Ottawa?" A few days ago, when I asked this question on the doorsteps of several dozen people in Colwood, I was impressed by the direct, down-to-earth answers people gave.

"Bring down the interest rates" and "create jobs" summed up the greatest number of responses. In many cases people linked both of these together.

The wife of an accountant said that while her husband still had the same number of clients, business was so slow for most of them that they had little need for an accountant.

One woman said bluntly "Find a job for my son", who had been unemployed for eight months. Another mother spoke of the need for technical training and a decent apprenticeship program as most countries in Europe had. One man in his mid-30's said he had never been unemployed before in his life - but now there just weren't any jobs to be found.

On one street, four workers and their families had just learned that the proposed three-week layoff at the B.C. Forest Products mill had now been extended to an "indefinite" period. The 650 employees affected by this will not have too much money to spend in local stores over the next several weeks. And so the vicious circle continues.

PAYMENTS DOUBLED

People told me about renewing their mortgages at rates which caused their monthly payments to double. One man talked ruefully about being locked in for three years to a 19 1/4% mortgage rate.

Still others knew that their mortgage was coming up for renewal in the next few months - and they wondered what rate they would have to pay. One of these homeowners pointed out that they had already cut all their spending to the bone as they try to get a small amount ahead so that they could reduce the principal when the mortgage came due. But he didn't know what he would do in the event of an emergency such as needing major repairs for his car.

Some folks said they were doing just fine, thank you, although they realized that their neighbours didn't have it quite so easy. Many others said that they were getting by okay - at least they had jobs and were able to make their payments. They seemed thankful for the present but rather uneasy about the future.

One older man expressed gratitude that he no longer faced the insecurity of unemployment. He and other pensioners said they were doing alright although they felt the pinch of inflation and wondered if their pensions would keep up to rising costs.

COULD GET BY

Government workers or their spouses generally said they thought they could get by on the salary cutbacks but expressed resentment at being singled out. "If there are going to be wage controls for public servants, there should be price controls and interest rates should be brought down."

Several people mentioned the need for the provinces to stop their bickering with the federal government and for all Canadians to start working in unity. Others mentioned the need for Canadians to take strong steps to regain our economic independence from the United States.

One man mentioned the need for stiffer sentences for people who commit sexual violence. Another spoke of his concern for our fisheries. A small businessman pointed to the inequity in income tax regulations which require him to make quarterly remittances based on last year's earnings which were so much better than this year's. The wife of a health food store owner spoke of the difficulty in importing some foods because of our official language legislation.

These are some of the concerns of a small group of Canadians from the southwest corner of our country. They want to work, they want to own their own homes, and they want a decent future for their children.

With a decent government, committed to the wise use of our resources, we should be able to deliver that much - not only to the people of Colwood, but to all Canadians.

To celebrate anniversary

A Salt Spring Island couple are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary this week.

Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Moffat were married in Vancouver on August

4, 1932 and will mark the anniversary at the home of their daughter, Lilian Browne of North Burnaby.

Native British Columbians, Les and Laura Moffat moved to Mayne Island from Vancouver when the former retired. They moved to Salt Spring about seven years ago.

Taking part in the anniversary celebration will be son Bill of New Westminster, daughters Lilian Browne, Alice Friedman of Miami, Florida, Sylvia Thompson of Port Angeles, grandchildren Alberta, Julie, Russ and Allie Browne, Laura and Karen Friedman, Carlotta and Joe Donisi, and great-grandchildren Sol and Louis Moran.

Boats hit by thieves

Residents and boat owners of the Sunset Drive area on Salt Spring Island are being hit by thieves.

Over $1,000 worth of marine equipment has been stolen from boats during July.

Ted Oldfield of Southey Point reported approximately $300 worth of fishing tackle stolen from his boat. Ted Coombs of Sunset reported $500 worth of materials taken from his boat.

Tom Toynbee of the same area reported a loss of equipment totalling over $700 in value.

Police at Ganges are investigating the thefts.

It was the biggest ever

Driftwood photos by Frank Richards

A pair of cooks took on the preparation of the Lions salmon barbecue in Ganges on Sunday afternoon. And here are Les Ramsey and Santy Fuoco debating the future of the salmon steaks.

It was the biggest ever when Salt Spring Island Lions Club staged the annual salmon barbecue and refreshment garden in Ganges on Sunday.

The cool weather that sponsors had expected to drive away the hungry visitors had the opposite effect, reports Ted Gear, who took a big part in the preparations.

The afternoon's activities opened at 3 pm in the area between Mouat's and the K & R food store. Loyal Central Saltspring Temperance and Dixieland Jazz Ensemble entertained visitors.

The salmon barbecue was set up by Les Ramsey and Santy Fuoco as hundreds filed past the serving tables.

Taking part in the afternoon's event were a group of Japanese students and their hosts from the Richmond Lions Club on the mainland.

The mainland visitors were staying at Lakeshore Camp on Lang Road. The young Japanese are exchange students spending the summer months in Canada.

At the close of the afternoon's program, the students were each presented with a souvenir pin from the Salt Spring Island Lions Club by Fred Brookbanks. The students are all children of Lions Club members in Japan.

In charge of the visiting group was Al Smart of Richmond.

'Excellent turn-out' for classes

Art classes at the elementary school in Ganges were booked throughout July and for their final week at the beginning of August.

Community Arts Council member Suzanne Gagnon reported an excellent registration turn-out. It's the first year that the art classes have been held. The classes will probably be repeated next year because of the high registration.

Instructing the classes were Ron George and Merle Box, both of Ganges.

"I was surprised at the kids because we showed them how to do things but we didn't need to show them what to do," Box explained. "Everyone had ideas about what to make and if someone was stuck the other children helped him out."

Artercraft at Mahon Hall will be holding a display of the children's work from August 20-27.

Children from six to 13 were invited to attend the classes which finish on Friday.

Susan Box was one of the 60 children who participated in the art classes at Ganges this summer.

Beat the manager day held

BY PAT DOHERTY

The ladies' 18-hole section at the Salt Spring Golf Club had their annual "beat the manager" day and Malcolm had a net 71. However, only one lady bettered that score - Marjorie Russell with a net 70.

Prizes were also awarded to Ruby McConnell and Helen Kernaghan who had net 71's.

Best putters were Anne Monro and Gloria Lloyd with 27. Malcolm wasn't asked to keep track of his putts, which is just as well.

There was some action on Victoria golf courses this week. Jean Cunningham and Barbara Maguire played at Oak Bay against Gorge Vale but, unfortunately, lost.

Our ladies' team travelled to Uplands and won the Brass Bell Trophy (it really rings) by five points. Result was 26½ to 21½.

Also at Uplands was the second annual Heart Fund Field Day and 140 ladies participated. Irene Hawksworth, Mona Coulter, Dorothy Sneddon and Lois Popkin-Clurman played on teams that placed third, fourth, seventh and "somewhere down the line", respectively.

We have no news from the nine-hole ladies' section but we know that happy group is very active.

The Wednesday night mixed two ball continues to be popular despite the demands of summer visitors upon some of our members. It was therefore gratifying to have 25 golfers for the third "Eats Night" of the season.

There was good weather, good company, good fun and good food. The choice of chili con carne was a particularly good choice since the evening turned quite cool.

Next month's big night will be August 25 when a pot luck meal is planned. Be prepared - you'll be getting a call about it.

In the men's section the Parsons Cup is down to the semifinals and the four survivors are Tom Butt, Gord Alexander, Eric Bracher and Gord Parsons.

Entries are still coming in for the invitational tournament on August 14 and 15. If you are considering an entry you would be advised to act quickly.

July and August are busy months on the golf course and a large proportion of our greens fee revenue comes in this short spell. Members are asked to relax, be patient and extend their usual hospitality to our guests.

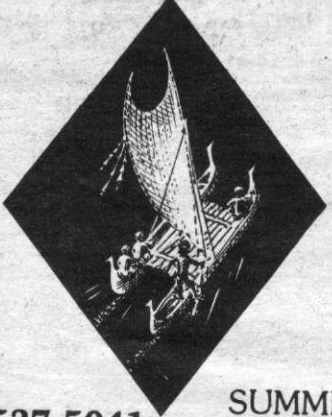

By the way, more spotters are required for the tournament. If you would like to help please put your name on the list on the notice board or phone the Pro Shop.

A team is being organized to invade Pender on August 8 to do battle for the White Trophy.

Ladies take trophy with win over Driftwood

Contributed
BY KATHY TOYNBEE

This year's women's softball league tournament was organized by dividing the six teams into two sections: Fulford Inn Boomers, Byron's Babes and Ganges Ladies in one and Kayes Kuties, Fulford Ladies and Driftwood Dazzling Derelicts in the other.

The teams in each section played off for first, second and third-place standings, then the teams with the same standing from each section played to determine the overall standings from first to fourth place.

A decisive victory was gained in section one by Ganges Ladies who took the Boomers 24-8 and pulled ahead of Byrons to win 9-8, thanks to a grand slam by Marilyn Moen.

With one win and one loss for each team in section two, a point-spread count was used to determine a victor. In a tight 10-inning game between Fulford and Driftwood, Fulford snagged the game, leaving the score at 6-5 in their favour. Driftwood won the second game with a score of 13-4 over Kayes. In a see-saw game between Kayes and Fulford, Kayes finished ahead with a score of 15-14 in extra innings.

Calculations put Driftwood on top with an eight-point margin, Fulford in second with a zero margin and Kayes in third place with a minus eight margin.

Byron's played Fulford on July 28 to decide third and fourth place finishes. These were the teams believed to be in contention for first and second place, as they had maintained the top standings all season. Byrons ended up taking third place against Fulford with a 15-13 win.

The final game for first place was between Ganges Ladies, who won the trophy last in 1973, and the Driftwood Dazzling Derelicts, who won the trophy last in 1980.

The pressure was on because of the controversial position of both teams - Ganges Ladies being in third place for the league and Derelicts wiping up the rear. It was definitely a pitcher's game with 12 strike-outs and one walk by Marilyn Moen and 11 strike-outs and no walks by Maureen P. Horner.

The first run came in the third inning by Lee-Anne Gordon to make it 1-0 in the bottom of the third. Karen Davies hit a ball over second base to bring Linda Woodley and Marilyn Moen in for the first and second runs for the Ladies, making it 2-1 for the Ladies in the top of the fourth.

With bases loaded Rose Bernie made a crucial steal for the Derelicts to bring the game to a 2-2 tie at the bottom of the fourth. Both sides were at a stalemate until

Davies, Margaret Moulton, Linda Woodley, Joanne Moger and Joey Moger. Ganges Ladies are sponsored by Ben Martens at Windsor Plywood.

Marilyn Moen hit a home run in the sixth to bring the game to a 3-2 lead for the Ladies.

With the next inning and a half being scoreless, Ganges Ladies held the one run lead to beat the Driftwood Dazzling Derelicts 3-2 for the trophy.

For baseball fans who feel left high and dry, there are still more games to be played. The Driftwood men's team play the Driftwood ladies' team Saturday at the Little League diamond at 11 am.

Seed is bridge between life and death

Like all gardeners, I have a reverence for seed. The gardener knows intuitively or consciously that seed is created by life to sustain life: its own life, that of others and ours.

We sow the seed, watch its life unfold as we care for it, and then use leaf, fruit, root or seed to nourish our life. The seed is the bread of life, and in our case, even literally so, for the seed of the grains is our bread.

This knowledge and understanding is the gardener's reward for gardening. And we come to know that there are female and male blossoms, often combined, or male and female plants, but all carry semen and ovum.

We too carry the seed of our kind within us and we have our origin just from such seed. And we come to know and understand that all that life produces, in life and in death, serves to create more life.

SEED IS BRIDGE

The decay of all living matter is that which creates fruitful soil out of barren soil. And the seed is the bridge between life and death, the eternal thread of life, the carrier of the force of life.

Anyone who has sown lobelia seed, for instance, must marvel that a seed, just barely large enough to be seen, carries with it the plan, the purpose, the pattern and enough nourishment to get started, to produce flower, ovum and pollen, to make seed, and so to carry on its life, that of others, with the life force bequeathed to its seed.

In the case of the lotus flower, this life force is known to be viable for 1,000 years. Can you believe it?

The seeds we are most concerned about, those of our vegetables, are not nearly as long-lived as the lotus flower, but it still amazes me that a pepper seed can be viable for up to 13 years. This is under ideal conditions.

COOL, DARK, DRY

Ideal conditions to preserve the life force in the seed are cool, dark and dry. Seed is best stored in tightly sealed containers, with low humidity of about 60% and temperatures just above freezing.

The following is a list of seed viability of our most common vegetables, given with minimum and maximum life expectancy under at least favourable conditions.

Asparagus, 4 to 8 years; beans, 3 to 8; beets, 3 to 10; broccoli, 5 to 10; cabbage, 3 to 4; carrots, 4 to 9; celery, 8 to 10; corn, 2 to 4; cucumber, 4 to 10; eggplant, 6 to 10; lettuce, 5 to 9; melons, 5 to 9; onion, 2 to 4; parsley, 2 to 6; parsnip, 2 to 4; peas, 2 to 7; pepper, 4 to 13; pumpkin, 6 to 8; radish, 3 to 10; spinach, 5 to 7; squash, 4 to 5; tomato, 4 to 13; turnip, 5 to 10.

USE WITH CAUTION

In the case of bought seed these dates should be used with caution, as transport and distribution conditions are hardly ideal. Distributors of seed are also aware of the average viability of seed and often hold seed for some years, which is perfectly alright, especially with the longer lived seeds.

These dates then apply only to known fresh seed stored under

Farming and Gardening

BY PETER WEIS
Foxglove Nursery Consultant

favourable conditions. It is always worthwhile to save all but the really short-lived seeds and to carry out a simple germination test just before sowing.

Take 10 seeds, place in a clear plastic bag either in moist peat moss or between moist paper towels, in a warm and light situation for most seeds as some seeds need cool or dark situations, or both, to germinate.

The plastic bag preserves moisture and lets us see what is happening. If only five out of 10 seeds germinate we have a 50% germination rate and we need to sow at a denser rate.

If the germination rate is too low, it is best to obtain fresh seed and to feed the old seed to the birds, the chickens, or to put them into the compost pile.

Thus, then, the seed is returned into the cycle of life, where nothing is ever lost, where life serves to create life, in death and in life.

DIRECTOR'S REPORT

Support Trust, islanders urged

BY YVETTE VALCOURT
Regional Director

Last Monday I accompanied several residents of Salt Spring Island to the rally at the Legislative Buildings against the abolition of the Islands Trust, which formed part of the ambiguous Land Bill introduced in the Legislature a couple of days earlier.

My stand on this issue is as follows:

1. I believe in the policies of the Islands Trust, "To preserve and protect the unique amenities and the environment of the Gulf Islands."

2. In the 1977 referendum on whether Salt Spring Islanders were in favour of the Trust or the regional district, the overwhelming majority, two-thirds, voted in favour of the Trust. Therefore, until a referendum is held, to show the opposite, I as your elected representative at the regional district have no choice but to work on your behalf towards what I know has been your choice!

3. I do not believe that you as islanders would be fairly represented at the CRD. Your two representatives for Salt Spring and the Outer Gulf Islands, have only one vote each out of 52 votes at the CRD board level. The system is on a weighted vote, where you get one vote for each 5,000 population.

Therefore, we would be grossly outnumbered, as has been in the past on issues which concern us all and affect our style of life.

The majority votes at the regional district come from cities, large municipalities and large urban areas, who do not understand our wishes and our needs, most of all the way of life on these islands.

4. I have been very critical in the past, and no doubt will be again, on the way the Islands Trust has implemented the Trust's policies. However, in the democratic process it is up to the people of the islands to change that, should they wish to.

It should not be the unilateral decision of a minister to dictate in this manner, rather than to hold a referendum on this most important issue, which should only be decided by the islanders.

I ask all of you to support the people who are working very hard to retain the Islands Trust. Please offer your help and support the Trust.

GALIANO NEWS

Only a battle has been won, not the war

BY BASIL BENDER

The land use bill, which died on the order paper last Thursday, was of vital concern to many Galiano residents. The absence of comment in this column was not due to lack of interest but to editorial action, which concentrated reports and views on this issue on the front pages, thereby excluding the Galiano contribution.

We had concluded that "the government would be wise to call a halt to this precipitous action and, after due time for consideration and discussion, give Gulf Islanders an opportunity by means of a plebiscite to let their wishes be known."

The premier and his cabinet, with the exception of Bill Vander Zalm, have now conceded that discretion is the better part of valour. No doubt the major factor was the almost unanimous opposition of B.C. municipalities and regional districts.

Charles Barber did a filibuster as lead-off speaker for the opposition in the legislature, holding the fort until the flood of protests from mayors and other municipal politicians convinced the government that the bill needed considerable change.

The role played by the many Gulf Islanders who took time to protest by demonstrating, phoning or in other ways putting pressure on their MLA may well have been crucial. They attracted much media attention and "held the pass" until the main force could be brought into action. However, only a battle has been won - not the war.

The Islands Trust is vulnerable to any government which decides to use its majority to destroy what most islanders regard as their best protection against undesirable development.

Weather Station

An accurate record of weather conditions is valuable information for many occupations including logging. The logger is particularly interested in humidity and a measure called field moisture content.

Macmillan-Bloedel have just recently installed an automatic electronic weather-recorder on Dave Laughlin's property at North Galiano.

This instrument records at 0800, 1200 and 1600 hours temperature, relative humidity, rainfall, wind speed and direction. The device is battery operated, includes a miniature computer and can print out information. It also has a memory bank covering the previous 30 days, and by using a selector switch and dialling back, the operator can obtain any of the readings recorded during this period.

Dave, who is contract logging for MB, reports to the head office of the Chemainus Division when conditions approach the critical level. The most important consideration in deciding whether logging should be suspended is the field moisture content. This is measured by the weight of a set of dowel rods which are able to absorb moisture vapour from the air in much the same way as slash. When the value falls below seven percent the woods have become too dry for safety.

Although this is not a meteorological station in the conventional sense it does record much of the information available in a weather report. However, Dave Laughlin is not the John Paschall of Galiano Island and will not be issuing weather forecasts.

Lions Directory

Galiano Lions Club have just distributed to each household a free copy of the Galiano Telephone Directory, 1982. This service to the community is paid for by the advertisers but the leg work was done by Lions Bob Knowles and Gordon Hodson. Edith and Terry Wishart did the typing and collating.

This year's edition has a more attractive and professional appearance than usual, which is not surprising as it was compiled by Lion Denny Oldroyd, retired commercial artist with the Province newspaper. The cover is a black and white version of a sketch of Montague Harbour Park and many of the advertisements are accompanied by Denny's charming drawings. The advertising text uses a great variety of type in the style of a century ago.

This is a publication of which the Lions may be justly proud. Additional copies may be obtained at a nominal charge.

Delinquent Defined

Garden Club member Audrey Cook has defined delinquent as "a person who fails to do his or her duty," and has handed down a verdict in the delinquent gardener case.

She tempers justice with mercy as "only the nearest and dearest to a person would accuse him of committing an offence and failing in the matter of duty towards gardening. When the time came for this person to apply all the profound knowledge so painstakingly and diligently acquired during long hours of reading and research on the subject of gardening, he failed to summon the reserve of energy sufficient to bring about an exchange of the favourite comfortable chair for a harsh confrontation with manual labour.

"Rather than regard the person who fails in his duty to enhance the beauty of a garden as a delinquent, I would err on the side of leniency if that person is, even indirectly, interested in the productivity and appearance of the garden. Where should we be without the great horticultural thinkers and planners?"

"Who would counsel and direct others less academic than themselves in the application of such knowledge? This person is never less than optimistic in the hope that ultimately someone else will, with a little persuasion, undertake the tasks that he finds repugnant."

Thank you, Audrey Cook, for the trouble you took to answer our question. It fits the bill admirably.

Volunteers Busy

On an island such as Galiano the well-being of individuals and the safety of their property often depends on the speedy response, at any hour of the day or night, of alert volunteers. During a period of 40 hours at the weekend five calls on the services of volunteers were made.

On Friday afternoon Harry Baines, North Galiano's senior fisherman, was out fishing in the Gulf when his wife, Devina, called over the radio-telephone that she felt unwell. Speeding straight back to shore Harry alerted the ambulance service, and Devina, with her husband beside her, was quickly conveyed by the Galiano ambulance, water taxi and then another ambulance to hospital in Victoria where she was given two blood transfusions and is now recovering well.

Early on Sunday morning, about 5 am, there were two more ambulance calls. Unfortunately one was phoned in on the emergency fire phones waking half a dozen volunteers unnecessarily. Beside every island telephone should be the number to call to obtain the ambulance. It is 112-595-9911. Dr. Hales was roused from his bed to deal with these two emergencies (Lion Frank Neal and an off-islander) before they were taken by ambulance and water taxi to hospital in downtown Victoria.

Our best wishes to Devina, Frank and our island visitor, and our thanks to Dr. Hales, and the ambulance and fire crews.

The volunteer fire department received two bona-fide fire calls. On Friday evening volunteers responded to a call for assistance from the Stephen residence at Salamanca Point where a chimney fire was roaring in a rather alarming way. The firemen followed the usual routine, hosed the roof as a precaution and soon had the fire out.

George was unperturbed as he had meant to have the chimney cleaned out anyway. The second call came from the Forest Service who had had reported to them from Tsawwassen a column of smoke rising from the forest near the power lines on Galiano. From long experience, the first place firemen investigate is the SWDA (i.e. the Dump). Sure enough, there was Ollie Garner, president of the Galiano Club which is responsible for the dump, taking advantage of the damp weather to set fire to the accumulation of combustible garbage. The fire number for South Galiano, 9-2122, is in the front of the phone book and should also be pasted on every island phone.

Batik Banner

A banner urging "Save the Islands Trust" has been erected by concerned islanders at Bellhouse Point to be visible from the port side of ferries leaving the north end of Active Pass, with a billboard with the same message at Helen Point on Mayne, for starboard side passengers entering the pass from the south end.

The batik banner is red with a repeating design in yellow over which the message is inscribed in large, deep-blue letters.

Coming Events

Saturday is the day so many people have been gearing up to for so long.

The Fiesta will begin with a grand parade which starts from the post office at 10:30 am and this will be led by a blue convertible in which will ride the Fiesta Queen, Jessie Bellhouse, accompanied by a bevy of beautiful ladies-in-waiting.

The Lions have chosen Jessie as queen in order to pay tribute to her unflinching generosity and kindness in allowing them to use her field, free of rent, over so many years that it is now known as the Fiesta grounds.

Also in the parade will be the B.C. Telephone Pioneer Band. The parade will proceed along Sturdies Bay Road and Burrill Road arriving at the grounds about 11 am.

At the Fiesta there will be a great variety of stalls, entertainment, games and competitions. Food and drink will be available. No Galiano resident should miss this important annual event.

On Wednesday, Aug. 11 the Garden Club will have Red Morphett of the Crystal Garden in Victoria as the special speaker. The meeting will be held in the North Community Hall and commences at 2 pm. Visitors will be welcome.

Public Hearing

The Galiano Island Trust Committee will be holding a public hearing regarding the re-designation of several parcels of land on Friday, Aug. 13 at 7 pm in the South Community Hall.

The three general trustees, John Rich, Gordon Wallace and Mike Humphries, will be present together with local trustees Ron Thompson and Christa Weiss. It is expected that there will be an opportunity to discuss some of the issues that have recently generated so much interest in the Islands Trust.

New outlet

Islanders who have been disappointed that Driftwood copies sold out too quickly in recent weeks may obtain personal subscriptions by phoning the Driftwood office at Ganges, at 537-2211. The paper is now available at the new outlet at Sturdies Bay Garage.

Trophy returns to Galiano

The Georgeson Rose Bowl came back to Galiano this year as the ladies' golf team finished up the round of competition between Pender, Salt Spring and Galiano. In 1964, Archie Georgeson and his sister, Ellen Stallybrass, gave the rose bowl for competition among the islands. For the past two years it has been held by the ladies' team of Salt Spring. Picture shows Archie Georgeson presenting the Rose Bowl to Marge Sarson, team captain.

Death of First War veteran Claude Conery at age of 89

Claude Clarence Conery died in Ganges on Saturday. He was within a few weeks of his 90th birthday.

A veteran of the First World War, Claude Conery was born on Salt Spring Island August 27, 1892.

He was born on his father's dairy farm in the Blackburn Lake area of Salt Spring and he received his Christian names in a ceremony at St. Mark's Anglican Church. He went to the Divide School in the 19th and 20th centuries.

In 1904 the Conery farmhouse was destroyed by fire. The loss was total: all their possessions were burnt. They pulled up stakes and moved to Richmond, Virginia, the same year.

Young Conery finished his schooling in the United States and remained there until 1914 when he came back west to enlist with the 67th Western Scots Regiment in Victoria. He went overseas and he was among the victims of the gas attacks at the battle of the Somme.

While in hospital in England, he met Leah MacFarlane, an Irish nurse. They were married and after the war came back to Pender Island, where they lived with their three children, Sybil Willson, of South Pender; Fred, who was killed in Normandy in 1944 and Claudia, who died in childhood. Claude Conery was well-known as a logger in the islands and up the coast.

He had been living in the extended care wing of Lady Minto Hospital.

He was predeceased by his wife in 1975.

There will be a memorial service in the Church of the Good Shepherd, South Pender, on Tuesday, Aug. 10. Canon Gordon Dickinson will officiate.

Goodman Jones Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Charged

When a Ford Torino was found off Lang Road in the swamp, owner Michael Murray was charged with driving without reasonable consideration for others on the road.

The Torino was found in the lake last Tuesday.

Class of '72 reunion held Saturday

The Gulf Islands Secondary School graduating class of 72 held a reunion on Saturday and three-quarters of the class attended.

Organizers Susan Spencer, Louise Empey and Jackie Stibbards were surprised when 37 of the 51 grads of 1972 arrived at the barbecue at the Salt Spring Island Rod and Gun Club on Saturday afternoon. Close to 110 people enjoyed the 10-year reunion, including teachers and children of grads.

Eight teachers attended the barbecue and about 80 people continued to party together at a dance held the same evening at the Rod and Gun Club.

One grad came from Toronto while the majority still live in this area.

Lamb for the barbecue was donated by class member Pat Akerman.

Corcoran brings back medals

15 bull's-eyes at 600 yards

When Denis Corcoran went to England last month he wasn't counting on a resounding success. But the Salt Spring Island marksman won two gold medals and four silver medals at the National Rifle Association shoot-out in Bisley, England.

His awards were won in individual competition. Corcoran also won the Queen's Bronze Badge as well as the Queen's "100" Badge.

Corcoran's most prestigious victory was the Queen's "100". With 1,600 competitors, Corcoran shot the multi-range match at 300 yards, 500 yards and 600 yards and made a perfect score at each range.

He tied with seven others for first place. In the shoot-offs, he shot 15 consecutive bull's-eyes into a 12-inch target at 600 yards to win the Bronze Badge.

The team of 18 from across Canada won seven of the 10 team matches including the coveted Empire match which had not been won by Canada for 19 years, Corcoran reported. He was one of the nine who qualified for the Queen's match.

Captain of the Victoria team, Eric Andrews, said that it was probably the finest shooting team ever sent to England.

All nine of the 18 team members received Queen's "100" badges which were awarded to the top 100 competitors.

The Queen's prize was won by A. Peden of Scotland who broke the record with a score of 295 out of 300.

Candlelight ceremony Friday

A short candlelight ceremony to mark the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki will take place in Centennial Park at Ganges Friday at 8:30 pm.

Henry Elder, a former resident of Salt Spring Island, will speak briefly on his personal reflections of Hiroshima two days after the blast. Elder was a member of the British Mission to Japan, which produced a report, Effects of Atomic Bombs at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. There will be short readings by Phyllis Webb and others.

Organizers say the ceremony is intended as a reminder of the destruction all peoples face if the atomic arms race isn't reversed.

It is sponsored by the Salt Spring Nuclear Disarmament Committee and will take place rain or shine. Participants are asked to bring their own candles.
