

Senior citizens' home in sight as bids examined

Bids ranged from $628,640 up to $823,000 when tenders for the new senior citizens' housing on Salt Spring Island were opened Monday afternoon.

Receiving the tenders was Santy Fuoco, who was standing in for Fred Brookbanks.

Bids came in by taxi and private car during the final half-hour, with one bidder flying in with his tender.

There will be no decision until at least the end of the month, said Fuoco, because each tender provides for the design submitted by the bidder. No specific plans have been drawn and tenders are based on the design selected by each contractor.

Tenders were, in the order of opening:

Scansa Construction, $734,900; Ango Construction, 673,305; JCR Construction, 692,600; Aral Holdings, 685,500; Marvet

Construction, 664,800; Quinney and Fuller Construction, 688,617; Jim Dent Construction, 628,640; Homewood Construction, 642,000; Sunco Ventures, 675,000; Farmer Construction, 683,895; Falk Bros. Construction, 649,500; Durwest Construction, 823,000.

The Salt Spring Society for Seniors' Accommodation will analyze the proposals before passing them on to architect Jonathan Yardley for his evaluation.

The society is formed of Salt Spring Island Lions and Rotary Clubs and the island branch of the Royal Canadian Legion. It was formed after a plea from island residents for adequate accommodation for the elderly who could no longer keep up their own properties.

The project will be substantially funded by government programs.

There's only a matter of 93 years between them. While Miss Sarah Thompson sits in front of her 100th

Birthday party Saturday

100 years marked by message from Queen to Sarah Thompson

"I am very pleased to hear that you are celebrating your 100th birthday," said Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth in her greetings to a Salt Spring Islander.

Staff and patients at the Extended Care Wing of Lady Minto Hospital also paid tribute to one of their own members on Saturday when Miss Sarah Agnes Thompson celebrated her 100th birthday.

"I send congratulations on this happy occasion and my good wishes," concluded the Queen's message.

A resident of Salt Spring Island since she was 88, the centenarian has been a patient in the extended care unit since it was opened. She is the senior patient there.

Miss Thompson is better known in the Cariboo, where she spent many years operating a hotel in Quesnel.

TO VICTORIA AT 19

She was 19 years old when she left her native Britain and set out for Canada, early in the new century. Her first stop was Victoria, where she worked for a lawyer for a year or two. From Victoria she moved to Revelstoke and worked there until she had enough savings to start her own business.

She moved to Quesnel, where she acquired the Hudson's Bay Fort on Carson Ave. and converted it to a hotel. From 1920 until 1945 she operated her new business. Not only was she a familiar figure to many of those living in the Cariboo, but she Bob Foulis years before, when he was a regular guest at the hotel. Retiring to Vancouver, she stayed for a week or so at the home of Mrs. Foulis' mother. She stayed for 20 years. In those years she became one of the family and a courtesy aunt to the Foulis children.

TO SALT SPRING

About 12 years ago she left Vancouver and came to the island, where she stayed for a time at Park Drive Guest Home. She then became one of the first patients of the new Extended Care Wing of Lady Minto Hospital and she has lived there ever since.

At 100 years of age she is delighted to have had a party to mark the event.

There was Louise Foulis, with her children, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Foulis and their family; Mr. and Mrs. Fergie Foulis and family; Mr. and Mrs. George Leukfeld and family and Alison Foulis.

Besides the royal greetings, Miss Thompson received congratulations from the Governor-General Ed Schreyer, Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau; Lieutenant-Governor Robert Rogers; Premier Bill Bennett; Finance Minister and Islands MLA Hugh Curtis and Highways Minister Alex Fraser, MLA for the Cariboo, whose message recalled the years when she presided over the Travellers' Rest.

Dog licence fees up in Regional District

Dog licence fees are going up in the Capital Regional District.

Animal control officer Bill Leach has announced that fees will be "substantially increased," effective March 31.

The $10 licence for a spayed female or neutered male will go to $15, while the $20 licence for an unspayed female or unneutered male will rise to $25.

There are three exemptions from the increases:

• New residents who move into after March 31.

All dogs over four months old must be licensed.

In an effort to encourage spaying and neutering, the animal control division is offering free licences to some dog owners. To qualify, the owner of a dog that has been licensed by the region must have his dog spayed or neutered. For example, if a dog was licensed in early 1983 and was spayed or neutered later that year, a 1984 license will be issued.

OTTAWA REPORT

Eight-point program would help ensure fairness in labour force

BY JIM MANLY, M.P.

Recently Ed Broadbent, national leader of the New Democratic Party, detailed some practical steps our federal government should take to ensure a fair economic deal for women. Before I outline these, let's look at the present situation.

The average wage for women is only 60% of that of men. Close to two-thirds of all minimum wage earners in Canada are women. They often have to settle for part-time work with no fringe benefits; three times more women work part-time. This is not necessarily by choice. Recent surveys show that 62% of women working part-time would rather have full-time jobs. They show, too, that most women work because they are either heads of households or that their incomes are needed to provide basic support for their families.

A 1983 government report estimates, too, that one job out of four will disappear through technological change in the finance and insurance fields. Of course women will be hardest hit: 73% of employed women are confined to these clerical and service industries.

Because of these glaring inequalities on the job front, 45% of all single-parent families headed by women live under the poverty line. Because of the lack of adequate incomes that would allow saving or investment, and because of inadequate pension plans, an even higher proportion of all elderly women live in poverty.

In Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands these concerns are directly relevant. The lower part of Vancouver Island generally shares a higher percent of senior Canadians than the rest of the country. In addition, with the very high levels of unemployment we are experiencing in fields such as forestry, many women are trying to supplement the family income or provide a basic income for families already hit by unemployment. When they are laid off, because of their low salaries and because they often work part-time, women receive very little unemployment insurance.

The New Democratic Party has proposed the following changes which would go a long way to ensure fairness for women.

1. Equal pay for work of equal value legislation would recognize the value of many underpaid jobs now being done largely by women.
2. Many affirmative action programs should be extended to private sector corporations with 50 or more employees when those corporations come under federal jurisdiction or enter into contracts with the federal government.
3. Federal labour laws should require more employee consultations and job protection when technological changes are introduced.
4. Women must have equal access to job creation and training programs. Because of federal guidelines, this has not always been the case here where many women have difficulty demonstrating "attachment to the labour force."
5. Labour statutes must be expanded to include part-time workers on a pro-rated basis.
6. We must make provisions for the needs of children through improved parental leave provisions, for fathers as well as mothers. Federal funding must be provided for federal-provincial cost sharing for day-care.
7. The old-age security pension must be increased immediately. The Canada Pension Plan must be expanded to provide a benefit equal to 50 percent of pre-retirement earnings up to the average industrial wage. All pension credits earned within a marriage should be divided equally between spouses.
7. Finally, women need greatly increased accessibility to post-secondary education through improved loan programs and policies that allow people to take educational leave through their working lives.

I believe this eight-point program of the New Democratic Party would make economic equality for women more of a reality, and make Canada a better place for all. If you would like more details please write, postage free, to Jim Manly, M.P., Parliament Buildings, Ottawa.

CWL meets at Ganges

The Catholic Women's League of Canada, Ganges council, met on March 14.

Arrangements were discussed for having a Sunday Mass at which all parish women and CWL members would attend and sit together. This has not been finalized.

The 1984 diocesan convention of the CWL will be held in Ladysmith May 14 and 15. Anyone wishing to attend should contact president Ursula McEwen before March 30 for information.

The CWL regional meeting was held at St. Patrick's parish in Oak Bay on March 5. Monsignor Hanley reminded the members of the importance of reading the CWL magazine, as it contains many varied items of interest.

Val Gyves is working as an archivist collecting items of interest on the history of the CWL on Salt Spring Island.

The 1984 provincial convention of the CWL will be held at Vernon, B.C., on June 19, 20 and 21.

Plans have been made to hold a flea market at the Ganges Church hall on May 26 from 10 am until 1 pm. Members are asked to save their "treasures" and contribute them for this event.

Madeline Franz gave a summary of the life of St. Francis of Assisi, and the Order of Franciscans.

After the meeting the members enjoyed coffee and tea and a social visit.

Contract talks still on

Close but not quite, describes contract negotiations between support staff and the Gulf Islands School District.

The two sides have been talking for more than a year in an effort to reach an agreement. The previous contract expired January 1, 1983.

The support staff is represented by Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 788.

The current talks, said Mike Marshall, superintendent of schools for the Gulf Islands, hinge on wording changes suggested by the CUPE representatives. He described the union suggestions as a "significant number of changes."

In line with an earlier agreement, job classifications for the Gulf Islands workers are being brought into line with the Saanich school district. Marshall indicated that only one classification remains to be worked out.

He expressed optimism that the two sides could reach an accord for a two-year package with a possibility of the agreement being extended to three years. Regardless of the length of the deal, one year at least will have to be retroactive to cover the time since the previous contract expired.

FREE DELIVERY TO THE GULF ISLANDS AND UP-ISLAND

Ask not for whom the bell tolls at Musgrave Landing.

It tolls for all the islands!

The proposed subdivision at Musgrave Landing—some 24 to 30 city-sized lots around the waterfront of this tiny and unique wilderness harbour—would flagrantly conflict with the clearly stated goals of the Community Plan and the basic purpose of the Island Trust.

If Musgrave harbour cannot be protected from urban-style development, no other island site will be safe from similar assaults. The islands will be defenceless against an invasion of profit-hungry carpetbagging speculators, and promoters.

A summary of the Musgrave situation

In March 1983 the Island Trust unanimously and strongly recommended rejection of the developer's proposal to the Highways Department (which has the key authority to approve or reject).

The Highways authority rejected the application, pointing out, like the Island Trust, that it did not conform to the Community Plan.

The developer re-submitted a slightly modified proposal which the Island Trust pointed out was no more satisfactory.

A month later, June 2, 1983, Hon. Alex Fraser, Minister of the Department of Highways, wrote to Makaroff and Little:

"...my Ministry has received all the agencies' comments. For your information, the subdivision as proposed has been refused."

The developer's modified proposals impressed neither the Trust nor, apparently, the approving authority.

Then the bombshell!

On September 20, 1983, the Island Trust received a copy of a preliminary layout approval dated September 14, 1983, which reversed the Highways Department's previous position without any prior submission to or consultation with the Island Trust committee or its planners. Nor was any effort made to inform those of us who had clearly and energetically expressed our opposition to the subdivision, which we considered to seriously threaten our interests.

What had changed Highways' mind?

We still don't know, and the department has so far refused to reconsider, in spite of a storm of protests—from property owners, the Salt Spring Community Planning Association, the South Salt Spring Residents' Association and a number of public-spirited citizens outraged at such irregular and disturbing high-handedness.

On Oct. 3, 1983, Mr. Raven (Highways Department), in a covering letter to our attorney Mr. Lawrence Fast of Victoria, enclosing a copy of the infamous preliminary layout approval, notes "...the proposal does not vary significantly from the original..." (our emphasis).

Nothing seemed to be happening at Musgrave Landing by the end of the year. Our hope that the authorities would come to their senses began to dissolve when a letter from the Minister of Highways to the Island Trust, suggesting a meeting between the developers, the Trust and Highways officials, indicated that the developers had not yet given up.

Now there is disturbing evidence of unwarranted appropriations for work on Musgrave Road, and conflicting statements from Highways and from Federal bureaucrats as to who ordered the work.

And a meeting has been arranged for March 27, 1984, obviously following the suggestion from the Minister himself in December, 1983.

On March 16, 1984 we instructed our attorney, Mr. Fast, to file a petition with the courts against approval of this subdivision.

We have also asked him to request that we, accompanied by our attorney, be invited to participate in that meeting.

We suggest that others who feel their private interests and/or public concerns are seriously affected by decisions being made and about to be made in this case approach the Ministry requesting invitations to audit and/or participate in that meeting.

It is rumoured that the government is considering legislation to change strata regulations to allow subdivision approval whether or not it conforms to Community Plans.

The Island Trust and the Community Plans have been key bulwarks against anarchic, unwise and destructive and exploitative development. They urgently need support and strengthening. They are now in serious jeopardy.

A final note:

Perhaps, too, we should stop temporizing and take a critical look at this peculiar anachronism which is now no longer functional, where final authority in matters involving the future direction and character of the community (now dependent on so many technical, economic, esthetic and social factors) should be irrevocably decided by road engineers.

GALIANO NEWS

Link with Spain strengthened by visit with royalty

BY KATHLYN BENDER

Two hundred years ago the west coast of North America in the region now known as British Columbia was being explored by both the Spanish and British navies. Place names such as Galiano, Valdez, Bodega and Alcala remind us that the Spanish flag flew from ships sailing among the Gulf Islands.

Never, though, has this area been graced with Spanish visitors as illustrious as those who came to Vancouver and Victoria this past weekend, the King and Queen.

Galiano's Cultural and Historical Society, whose main project is to fund the building of a replica of the 18th-century Spanish boat, Sutil, seized the opportunity to strengthen Galiano's long neglected link with Spain in two ways. Plans to produce an etching of the Sutil were accelerated so that the first print could be presented to the king in person in the newly-named Quadra Square.

The artist, Ronaldo Norden of Montague Harbour, was introduced to both the King and Queen. Later on Saturday evening Edrie Holloway, president of the society, and Jack Kendrick who has done much research on the original Sutil, were granted an interview with the King in his suite at the Hotel Vancouver.

They reported that he was both good humoured and gracious and agreed to consider becoming patron of the Galiano Cultural and Historical Society.

Bird watch

Those of us who are fortunate enough to live where we can look out over the water are extraordinarily fortunate at this time of year in the variety of birds we can study from the comfort of our living room.

One Galiano Islander did more. She registered for a course conducted at Vancouver Community College by Ian Robertson of the department of fisheries. The high point of the course is a bird-observing expedition by boat from Vancouver Island through the Gulf Islands.

Crossing from Vancouver by ferry to Swartz Bay the group walked to Canoe Cove where they embarked in two boats to sail to Active Pass, Trincomali Channel, Long Harbour and Ganges Harbour. During their voyage they spotted the two goldeneyes (common and Barrow's), the three species of scoter (black, surf and white-wing), merganser (common, red-breasted and hooded), bufflehead, old squaw, harlequin, lesser scaups and the American wigeon.

As well as these ducks there were several members of the alcidae family: common murre, marbled murrelets and pigeon guillemots. Of the three kinds of cormorants, only one flies in long skeins on their daily forays to feed in Active Pass. Three of the five grebes which may be seen in these waters were observed.

In the near future these birds will be leaving here to go north to their breeding areas as soon as the rivers there are free of ice. Most of the other birds seen will also be migrating northward except for some of the murre which will go in the opposite direction.

Golf club

At last Saturday's annual general meeting of the Galiano Golf Club four new directors were elected, Harold Wike, Bill Cook, Dora Darling and Frank Sarsen. Executive officers for the coming year are Frank Sarsen, president; Bill Cook, vice-president; Marnie Burton, secretary; and George Stephen, treasurer. Helen Hoole is ladies' captain, and Lloyd Hoole men's captain.

The ladies' section will open the new season with a luncheon to be held in the clubhouse on Tuesday, Apr. 10. Those planning to attend should leave their names with Helen Hoole at 5397.

Lions seafood dinner

Saturday was an evening of gastronomic merrymaking as 160 islanders enjoyed ample plates of a great variety of seafood at the Lions Annual Seafood Dinner coordinated by Ian Hooley.

A further after-dinner pleasure was dancing to the music of the Newmans. As it happened also to be St. Patrick's Day there were coincidental festivities at the Lodge and Pink Geranium. Did anyone stay home on the 17th?

Garden club

For 90 minutes last Wednesday, members of the Garden Club were transported to an exotic world of orchids, bougainvilleas, palms, eucalyptus, bananas and mango trees through the slides and accompanying commentary of Dr. Gerald Straley of the department of botany at UBC.

Dr. Straley, who is co-authoring the book Rare Plants of B.C. and who writes for the magazine Western Living, recently had an extended trip to Australia, and enjoyed to the full his first experience of a southern hemisphere, tropical winter. Dr. Straley invited members to visit UBC's Botanical Garden either on May 10 or June 7.

Details of this field trip will be finalized at the next Garden Club meeting on April 11 when the speaker will be the B.C. Gardener of CBC, Bernard Moore.

Service club

Last Monday's meeting of the Ladies Service Club was one of organization for their annual rummage sale to be held on April 14. President Pat Ford asks islanders to save cuttings and young plants for the plant stall and contribute to the home baking stall.

Donations for the other stalls of paperbacks, clean used clothing, shoes and purses will be picked up by Helen Hoole (5397). The next regular monthly meeting of the Service Club will be at Eva New's house on Whaler Bay on April 9.

A little list

A century ago theatre-goers were being amused and entertained by a series of comic operas which flowed from the pens of composer Arthur Sullivan and librettist W.S. Gilbert.

The latter wrote sharp and biting lyrics aimed at politicians, bureaucrats, the military and all kinds of people whose behaviour met with his disapproval. These operas are still very popular both when performed by professionals or indulged in by amateurs, for their own enjoyment if not for the audience's.

Probably the most popular of the operas was and still is The Mikado which was recently produced at the Stratford Festival and a version aired on CBC TV. At one point the Mikado expounds his theory of crime and punishment, and reveals that he "has a little list of those who never would be missed."

Included in the "criminals" is the pool shark who would be condemned to an eternity of playing on a warped table "with a twisted cue and elliptical billiard balls."

Someone on Galiano has a little list. In it are entered all those residents, businesses and institutions which fail in some way or ways to comply with one or more of the regulations or bylaw clauses by which we are governed. In fact it is not such a little list for it is said to include nearly 200 entries.

Also in the opera is an amusing and all too human character called Pooh Bah, who at one point in his career held several important offices in the Mikado's administration, including Lord High Executioner and Lord of the Treasury.

On March 13, the Mikado of Galiano went to the capital to present his list to Pooh Bah. What was the purpose of this action?

In compliance with the minister of education's dictum that all readers must answer a skill-testing question, we put this in multiple-choice form.

The compiler of the Galiano list: (a) approves of the initiative of people who do not allow their enterprise to be shackled by regulations;

(b) disapproves of the wholesale disregard of bylaws fearing that it might lead to anarchy;

(c) wishes to have his name added to the list;

(d) all of the above. Readers who wish to enter the competition must make their selection and mail it to this column, writing their name in the top left-hand corner if they wish to be added to the list.

However, they may choose to remain anonymous, as may the compiler, unless he, she or they wish to reveal their identity in a letter to the editor.

Coming events

Islanders are reminded of the very important annual general meeting of the Galiano Club previously postponed to this Saturday, and to be held in the South Community Hall beginning at 8 pm.

Also beginning at 8 pm but in the North Community Hall is an illustrated talk on violins by Cam Trowsdale.

This Sunday, Yves Wiseman of the Vancouver School of Theology will lead the service at St. Margaret's beginning at 10:30 am. A half-hour of Praise Sing will precede the regular service from 9:45 to 10:15 am.

Field trip approved

The field trip to Strathcona for Gulf Islands school children has been approved by the school board, for this year at least.

The school trustees are considering the possibility of keeping the children closer to home beginning in 1985. Dave Williams, school trustee for Salt Spring, feels that areas of the Gulf Islands could offer the children as much to do as the extended visit to the provincial park on Vancouver Island.

School trustees and teachers are talking about changing the annual field trip to a Gulf Islands focus.

Bridge winners

Gulf Islands Bridge Club winners March 12 were:

East-west: Joe and Madeline Frantz, Bunny Jordan and Isabelle Richardson, Ailsa McKay and Corinne Forster, Marian Ashmore and Fred Melhuish. North-south: Liz Dafoe and Dawny Scarfe, Dr. and Mrs. Hyslop, Nora Day and Phoebe Stevens, Bee Thompson and Margurite Hall.

Tuesday night: Shirley Love and Marian Ashmore, Dr. and Mrs. Hyslop, Fred Struve and Jean Jefferies, Lois Popkin-Curman and Mona Coulter.

In Memoriam

Many Salt Spring Islanders shed many bitter tears this week after half a dozen beloved old friends were executed in Ganges Sunday. May they rest (in the log boom) in peace. Memorial service will be held later this week at Hillbanks Sawmills.

BOOK REVIEW

An irreverent look at current affairs

BY FRANK RICHARDS
Beside Raeside, cartoons by Adrian Raeside. Musson. $8.95.

Adrian Raeside is a constant grin with a pencil. He has grinned his way across the known world. He went off to the States with a grin and came back to wisecrack about it. Smart at all times, sometimes alecky, he lives as he draws, derisively, tauntingly, but always funny.

Raeside has one constant redeeming feature. He can take it as well as give it.

Cartoonists are a form of life entirely alone. And we are truly thankful. If a cartoonist is good, you end up by wanting to kick him, hard. That's the whole reason behind cartooning and it's a damned good reason to kick, if you get your kicks that way.

The cartoonist has all kinds of special privileges shared by no writer. He can say what he thinks in a dozen jeering strokes. If any reporter were to write the same message he would spend the next 50 years in a dungeon beneath the law courts.

I have known Adrian since he started his very successful career a few years ago. Some of his first cartoons appeared in Driftwood.

I have always enjoyed Raeside and his work and his progress into a greater and greater awareness of national and international affairs has been a delight to his readers. This collection will also be a delight to those who enjoy an irreverent expose of their masters.

And if you want to know who this fellow Raeside really is, I can't help you. I haven't known him all that long. He came here from Ontario and England and New Zealand, where he started out. He draws for about 150 publications and enjoys success even more than he enjoyed the anonymity which led the way.

You know, he even writes the way he draws, that fellow!
 Try it: you'll like it!

Co-ordinators meeting

Area co-ordinators of the Peace Petition Caravan Campaign are meeting with their canvassing teams this week and next in preparation for presentation of the petition April 7 on Salt Spring Island.

Anyone interested in joining the local activities is invited to contact Bis Whitby, Tom Gossett or the Peace Centre.

Candidate addresses meeting

A candidate for the leadership of the provincial Liberal party spoke out against provincial cutbacks in education and services to the elderly, the poor, the handicapped and youth at a meeting in Duncan recently.

Art Lee told the annual meeting of the Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands Federal Liberal Riding Association that a "greater social investment in tough economic times" was the proper role of the provincial government.

The meeting re-elected Duncan lawyer Mike Coleman as president. Kathy Clout of Duncan was elected vice-president; Barrie Luff of Ladysmith, secretary-treasurer; Rose-Marie Rioux of Ladysmith, women's representative; and Gerry Wright of Duncan, policy chairman.

Soviet prisoner's release priority for Amnesty group

Salt Spring Island's Amnesty International group will hold a potluck supper and slide show Saturday at the home of Hank and Maggie Schubart, 444 Old Scott Rd.

The affair is open to both members and non-members of Group 72.

The slide show will depict conditions in the Guatemalan refugee camps in southern Mexico, which were visited in February by Gary Sawdon of Salt Spring Island.

Sawdon will outline a program he has to provide help to refugees.

At last month's annual meeting, the group decided to make the release of an adopted Soviet prisoner of conscience one of its highest priorities. Valery Tyurichev, 37, has been held prisoner since 1981 in a psychiatric hospital in Smolensk.

Amnesty spokesman Murray Reiss says these hospitals are operated like prisons—surrounded by watchtowers and barbed wire, armed guards and dogs. The orderlies, he says, are convicted criminals recruited from forced labour camps.

"Arbitrary, often sadistic and sometimes fatal beatings of inmates have been reported again and again."

The hospitals are for those who "represent a special danger to society." In 1979 Tyurichev wrote an article critical of socialist economics. In 1980 he and his family renounced their Soviet citizenship and applied for permission to emigrate. Permission was refused and later that year he and his wife demonstrated, carrying placards, in Red Square.

According to Reiss, Tyurichev was arrested in March 1981 and was offered a sentence of six months' imprisonment and five years' internal exile if he testified against himself. He refused and "now he is subjected to powerful, mind-eroding drugs."

In Amnesty International's

experience, many prisoners such as Tyurichev have been released from psychiatric hospitals because of external pressure and publicity. One group in New York took up a Soviet prisoner's case in May 1975. He was released in June 1979—four years and over 400 letters later.

Reiss points out that you don't have to be a member of Amnesty to write a letter. There are pamphlets available in the Peace Centre at Ganges with addresses of Soviet officials and suggestions for what to write.

Granville Island. Friendly Neighbourhood Jobs.

Granville Island. An Update:

Five years ago you wouldn't call Granville Island a particularly friendly neighbourhood. Aging industrial buildings. Decay. All right in the heart of Vancouver. But funding from the Government of Canada, as well as some careful planning and co-operation has helped transform it into an island of prosperity.

Jobs During Construction

Funding from the Government of Canada encouraged innovative renovation of the old warehouses and commercial buildings on the island. This funding also provided money for construction of a sea wall, paving-stone streets and new street lighting. It took a lot of work to turn it into what it is today, and that provided a lot of jobs. But the funding that paid the wages of hundreds of construction tradespeople also set the foundations for long-term permanent jobs.

Permanent Jobs In The Private Sector

Today the Public Market employs several hundred men and women hired by the independent operators of the fresh food stalls. The privately developed Maritime Market is also creating new jobs, as are the other businesses on the island. The Granville Island neighbourhood is not only attractive, but commercially self-supporting. You can watch the work from your table at one of the many fine restaurants overlooking the island.

Jobs For Artists And Craftspeople

Artists and craftspeople from many disciplines have opened studios with Government of Canada assistance. These artists pay reduced rents on their buildings. The Arts Club Theatre and the Waterfront Theatre have received financial help from the Canadian and provincial governments as well as the public. They've attracted solid support and a loyal following from the local populace as well as becoming a significant tourist attraction. The artistic community has helped make Granville Island a place to see and be seen. And the Government of Canada has taken real action to assist Canadian artists make it on their own.

Granville Island In The Future

There's a lot to look forward to. With EXPO 86 going up right across the water, Granville Island will soon attract more visitors and help create more new jobs. The popularity of Granville Island was really more than anyone expected, and steps are being taken to provide for better public access. There are more outstanding attractions planned for you to enjoy. Drop in sometime. You'll see how friendly our neighbourhood's become.

Two pruning methods can be used to advantage

We all know the old saying that faith moves mountains. Last week I did not have a typewriter and no means to procure even a used one. Other, more immediate needs always took their toll of our financial resources and a typewriter was shuffled, as usual, to the bottom end of a shifting list.

This week, an insurmountable obstacle has been shifted. I am now a most grateful recipient of a donated typewriter, and providence, as I found out, lives in Vesuvius.

With an equal faith as that in providence, augmented by unhurried patience, I have acquired an instructive book on typing in complete trust that my fingers will learn eventually to hit the right keys at the right time and that something legible will appear, like magic, on the waiting paper.

I just hope that this machine knows how to spell better than I do. This lies though, for now, in the future of our faith and in the meantime we shall concern ourselves with more immediate things, such as pruning.

TWO KINDS

Basically there are two distinctively different kinds of pruning. One encourages a great deal of new growth and the other does not, depending entirely on the time it is performed. Trees and shrubs which are pruned before new growth starts will generate a fair

Planning group meets

At last Wednesday's meeting the Salt Spring Community Planning Association discussed the Musgrave Road activities and heard the latest report on the sewer situation, including probable methods of taxation which will defray the debt over 21 years.

Sue Bradford reported on the concern of the Advisory Planning Commission that the principle of lot averaging is not working. The association was negatively inclined toward a noise bylaw, believing this may be a subject best dealt with individually. Such a bylaw would be ineffective and unenforceable against nuisances such as screeching tires and noisy motorbikes, the meeting felt.

Sweeping changes to the community plan were discussed, and it was decided to sponsor a public meeting next month to obtain maximum input from the community before going ahead with some of the proposals which have been received. Civic groups will be invited to attend the meeting, as well as all interested islanders.

Details of time and place will be published in Driftwood.

growth of lateral shoots, most of it close to the pruning point and diminishing with distance from that point.

The spring pruning of our fruit trees falls into this category and therefore is appropriate if strong new growth is desired. This pruning may be carried out until the new blossoms just begin to open, which may be as late as early May for apples, for instance.

In any case, in our mild winter climate it is far better to prune in spring, as the rising sap will seal the cuts from the inside far better than anything applied from the outside.

Summer pruning of fruit trees, to which we shall confine ourselves here, has the opposite effect. It both restrains new growth, to the point of dwarfing if done consistently, and encourages the setting of fruiting spurs at the same time.

It does away with the alarming appearance of a wealth of new, vertical "water shoots" which leads to the disconcerting impression of a tree with its hair standing on end.

MAY USE BOTH

Actually, we may use both these methods to our great advantage, especially for re-juvenating old trees, and for shaping young trees as well.

We can encourage prolific new growth, including the inevitable hairy water shoots, by spring pruning and then stunt their exuberantly vigorous growth with summer pruning, to end, once and for all, the hitherto endless growth of new water shoots from the old, ad infinitum.

Thus old, neglected trees with the common endless laterals threatening to buckle under their load of leaves, never mind fruit, can be reshaped quite nicely and easily, by cutting the long old and weak laterals at a convenient point. The new, vigorous water shoots which are sure to follow may then be summer pruned for stunting, and the chosen ones left to grow into the desired shape. These may then be summer pruned when their desired shape as been obtained.

And as summer pruning encourages early development of fruit spurs, young trees pruned in their first year in this manner often start to bear fruit in their second year, or in their third, depending on kind; that is, if they are naturally early or late fruiting types.

TIMING IS KEY

The timing of summer pruning is the key to success and we shall consider this in detail next week.

Of more immediate concern for spring pruning is the recently discovered importance of leaving the rumpled collar of bark at the crotch of the emerging shoot or branch to be removed. Cut the branch flush with the outer edge of this bark collar, leaving the collar to grow over the cut.

This will result in better and more rapid covering of the cut with new bark, also eliminating the need for wound dressing. To encourage lateral growth, tip-prune shoots just above an outward facing bud and slope your cut from the top of the bud towards its bottom on the other side.

Pruning at outward-facing bud

Cut out all dead and diseased wood, inward growing branches and crossing or rubbing branches. Encourage an outward, vase or spray-shaped structure for maximum sunlight in the centre and throughout the tree.

Remove branches or shoots which grow downwards under a lateral as these will be constantly shaded and will never amount to much.

Use your common sense in all these things; if any one of the suggested prunings would remove about a third of the branch structure of the tree, stop there and let the tree recover for a season before undertaking any further pruning.

And if you should pass that way, have a look at some old, severely but expertly pruned trees in and about downtown Vesuvius, the aforementioned home of providence.

Twenty Years Ago

The birthday party marked the 17th anniversary for the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Royal Canadian Legion in Ganges. Special guest Mrs. W.A.C. Bennett cut the birthday cake. The ladies in attendance chipped in proceeds amounting to $205 which went to the local library.

The Fulford Athletic Club celebrated March 17 with a dance on March 13. The event was put on in Fulford Hall and proceeds amounted to about $150. The club was able to keep about $50, after expenses were deducted, for use in funding activities.

Cougar tracks on Mount Tuam raised concern on Salt Spring. A logging crew discovered the tracks. A hunter was to bring his dogs to the island from Nanaimo.

The young musicians from Salt Spring brought 11 trophies home from the Kiwanis Music Festival in Duncan. Big winner was Glynnis Horel, who came first in total aggregate in the junior class, first in sight reading, first in the under-12 class and second in junior piano. She teamed with Angela Bridgen to take the duet class as well.

Galiano residents maintained their tradition of being first in the province to reach the quota for the Red Cross fund-raising drive. The islanders met the mark of $1 per capita within a week.

The congregations of the Ganges United and the Anglican churches would join to celebrate Palm Sunday. They would gather in the United Church for the service.

The Fathom Phantoms of Salt Spring successfully recovered an $800 towing winch which had been lost overboard from a tug. Don Irwin and Lyle Brown dove to attach a line to the winch while Bernie Reynolds and Steve LaFortune waited in the boat to lift it aboard.

The Recreation Commission for Salt Spring reported on financial dealings for the island. The commission funded various groups and activities to a total of $623.85.

Fifteen Years Ago

The Salt Spring couple went fishing off Port Hardy and Mrs. Alan Hedger caught a 200-pound halibut. The fish had taken the hook and bait but snapped the line. Mrs. Hedger baited another hook, tossed it over the side and the halibut struck again. The second time proved fatal to the fish and to hoist the fish into the boat required the efforts of four men.

The Gulf Islands School District should be left on its own, said school board chairman Jim Campbell of Saturna Island. The ministry of education had been talking about creating larger school districts and Campbell pointed out that neither Saanich or the Cowichan Valley would understand the problems facing the Gulf Islands.

Papajohn reported from Saturna Island that to avoid problems he would remain in bed for St.

Patrick's Day.

A water levy for new subdivisions would be introduced by the North Salt Spring Water District. A fee of $125 per lot for subdivisions was suggested. During the past year, 64 new properties were brought into the system with 35 of the lots being hooked to the water line. The money generated would help cover costs of improvements to the system such as larger pipes to replace the old, smaller lines.

B.C. Tel had work crews busy burying six miles of telephone line on Saturna Island. The work involved digging a trench along Narvaez Bay and Harris Roads. Cost of the project was $21,000.

The Legion, Branch 84, for the Outer Islands held an essay contest. Kathy Deas, of Galiano, won the Grades 7 and 8 competition while Shan Edgar of Saturna took top prize in the Grades 1 and 2 portion of the zone contest.

Ten Years Ago

Tommy Douglas spoke to Salt Springers about the proposed international park joining Point Roberts and portions of the Gulf Islands. The only defense against the proposal was the federal government, he said. He urged the 60 people at the meeting to write letters to the federal and provincial governments to make their opposition known.

Papajohn reported from Saturna about the make-up of the Lions Club on that island. The newly-formed club was the 27,000th Lions Club in the world, he said. The club decided that a primary aim of the group would be to help the Community Club build an addition to the hall.

The Gulf Islands Schools Band took second place at the Cowichan District Music Festival. The island musicians lost out to Mount Prevost School Band although the adjudicator said the choice between the two had been difficult to make.

The Respond was raised from 80 feet of water in Whaler's Bay on Galiano Island. The fishing vessel had sunk at the beginning of March. She had been loaded with 30 tons of herring at the time of sinking. The salvage operation on the 51-footer required two tugs and two divers. She was taken to Vancouver for repairs.

Malcolm Muggeridge, noted author and commentator, left Salt Spring to return to England. He had lived on the island for the previous three months.

The Thrift Shop showed a good profit of $16,149 for the year, a meeting of the Auxiliary to Lady Minto Hospital learned. The money had been spent on items for the hospital such as wheelchairs, emergency lighting and general equipment.

Mayne Islanders were busy checking seed catalogues in anticipation of spring planting in the community vegetable garden. Canadian Packers had donated fish netting to keep the deer away from the vegetables to be planted in the garden on Wilbert Deacon's property.

Semesters would remain part of the school year at Gulf Islands Secondary School. The school board decided not to end the semester system when teachers and students expressed support for the split year.

Five Years Ago

Three documents dealing with planning on Salt Spring were signed by Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm. He put his signature to the amended Salt Spring zoning bylaws and subdivision bylaws as well as the Ganges plan addition to the Salt Spring community plan.

The septic field at Lady Minto Hospital was not working and the board of directors had decided on two options to correct the situation. The plans involved adding fill and more pipe to the field and diverting the effluent from the laundry to the old, unused septic field. Cost of the project, if approved by the Pollution Control Board, would be $15,000. Pumping the septic tank on a daily basis, with five pumpouts required, could cost the hospital $55,000 per year.

The theme for the Lions Walkathon between Ganges and Fulford would be "Take a rock for a walk." Prize for the best decorated rock would be given.

The five-year master plan for recreation on Salt Spring would cost $773,800 to implement. The plan called for tennis courts in Ganges and Fulford, improvements to Portlock Park and the ball field in Fulford, boat-launching ramps, a recreation centre and a curling rink among other projects. There would be no major tax increase involved. The Parks and Recreation Commission will study the report for action.

A digital radio transmission service between Mayne and Galiano Islands would provide better telephone service for the two islands, said B.C. Tel. The islands were joined by an underwater cable across Active Pass. The cable, however, had proven less than adequate. The new service would take advantage of microwave relays.

Open house at library

BY ELEANOR HARRISON

The Pender Lender Library held open house on Saturday afternoon.

The new executive and the 35 librarians have worked hard in the past few weeks, cleaning and polishing and tidying for the event, and the library building looked bright and inviting as a result of their labours.

The idea of holding open house was to encourage the many new residents of the islands to come and see for themselves what a fine library the Penders have.

The library is staffed entirely by volunteers and supported totally by the community.

The library was started 10½ years ago by a small group and operated originally in a tiny room in the United Community Church building. Seven years ago it moved to its present building on the old school grounds.

This year the play school comes twice a week to listen to stories, look at the books and borrow them if they wish, a new event to introduce children to books at a young age.

Many books are donated, but the Pender Lender raises funds to buy new books at the sale it holds on the first weekend of July each year.

Newly elected president of the Library Society is June Hall.
