Ladies' invitational held at the Golf Club

BY PAT DOHERTY

There were 22 ladies out for nine holes last Wednesday at the Salt Spring Golf Club. Anne Sober won low gross after throwing out her worst hole.

Edna Reddington won the putt pot and she also chipped in on number five, which usually means she gets to hold the Connie Porter Trophy until the next nine-holer chips in.

The 18-hole ladies' golf was rained out on Tuesday although eight or so brave souls ventured forth and got nine holes in before getting completely soaked.

The Salt Spring Island Fifth annual ladies' invitational was held May 3 and 4, and the following were the winners. Low gross: Jean Smith, Gorge Vale, 171. Low net: Lois Popkin-Clurman, Salt Spring Island, 139. Low gross runner-up: Diane Phillips, Uplands. Low net runner-up: Brenda Parker, Royal Colwood. A Flight low gross: Lorna Rooper, Uplands. Low net: Irene Hawksworth, Salt Spring Island. B Flight Low gross: Joan Prendergast, Qualicum Beach. Low net: Cae Morrissette, Port Alberni. C Flight low gross runner-up: Frances Partridge, Uplands.

Salt Spring Island; Closest to pin number 2, day 1: Mary Fortune; day 2: Genny Boden. Closest to pin number 11, day 1: Doreen Baker; day 2: Obie Proudfoot. Consolation, day 1, Anne Monro; day 2, Dorothy Evans.

The tournament was its usual well run success, and chairman Jo Stone wishes to thank all the club members for their assistance and moral support throughout the entire operation. thanks also to Don Atkinson and his staff for their diligence and co-operation.

The men's section have had their first competition of the season. The Morris and Mouat Cups were played for and the qualifying for the Matson Cup took place at the same time. There was a very good turnout with 44 starters.

The Mouat Cup, which is for low gross, was won by Malcolm Robertson with 77. Two strokes back in the runner-up spot was Richard Nemeth. The Morris Cup, which is a low net affair, was a tie between Richard Nemeth and Harry Portingale with net 69's. They will play off for the title.

The matches for the Matson Cup are now on the notice board, and all the men who played on Saturday should now read the board and arrange to get their games played off within the stipulated time slots.

Don't forget to bring your unused items to the garage sale May 12. Bring them to the club Friday afternoon. No garments, please.

The ladies played golf last week at the Salt Spring Golf and Country Club. There were 90 entrants in the Fifth Annual Ladies Invitational and Lois Popkin-Clurman of Salt Spring, left, shows a triumphant smile as winner of the low net as ladies team captain Mildred Mitchell pins on a corsage. Popkin-Clurman shot a 139. Above, Jean Smith, right, of the Gorge Vale Golf Club, accepts the Salt Spring Insurance Trophy for low gross from Connie Hardy. Smith touted the course for the two-day tournament taking only 171 strokes to lead the lady golfers.

33 walk five miles at Pender

Thirty-three people gathered Sunday at the Pender Islands Health Clinic to start a five-mile walk over the bridge to South Pender and back to the clinic.

The oldest walker was Peter Flannigan, 94, and the youngest was Caroline Forbes, 5. Almost all of the walkers had had open-heart surgery.

All 33 completed the five miles, most of them in an hour but all were back to the starting point in two hours.

This is the first year the walk has taken place on the Penders and the money raised will assist the work of the First Open-Heart Society of B.C.

The walk was organized by Mr. and Mrs. W. Godin and they hope to make it an annual affair. Mr. Godin has had open-heart surgery.

Dr. Don Sutherland saw them off from the clinic and the ambulance stood by at the far end of the walk. Dr. Sutherland said his concern was not with those who had had open-heart surgery but with those who hadn't.

On May 26 local artist Nancy Robson will have an exhibit of her recent art at the Community Hall.

A Part 2 Learning Experience is what Nancy calls her exhibition; it will include drawings, oils and lithograph prints. The exhibit will be from 1-5 pm.

At 7 pm next Wednesday at the medical centre there will be a public meeting concerning the new softball diamond at Winter Cove. The parks people will be in attendance. Anyone may attend.

Sunday is Mother's Day and the Pancake Breakfast runs from 9-12. Adults $3, children $1.50. This traditional breakfast is sponsored by the Lions.

Raffled at the pancake breakfast will be a hand-embroidered tablecloth with four matching napkins done by Flo Jacks and a hand-knit sweater, size 12. Tickets are $1 each or three for $2. School-age Saturna children will gladly sell you a ticket. Proceeds go to the activity fund.

Mary Copeland has a friend visiting from England. It has been 16 years since her friend visited.

Lorraine Campbell has a distant relative from Palmerston, North New Zealand, Bill Frecklington visiting. Bill and Lorraine share a great-great grandfather. Bill has travelled from Guatemala to Saturna. His family has a sheep farm in New Zealand so life at Campbell's farm is comfortable and familiar to him.

The first barbecue work bee of the year got lots of wood cut, split and stacked for July 1. The idea is to get the wood drying.

Joe and Jean Van Essen had a barn/workshop/chicken house warming Saturday. All of their Lyall Harbour neighbours and friends shared in their pleasure and pride of accomplishment.

At the 10th Lions Charter Night Davina and Jack Vincent celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary. Well done!

Saturna General Store is going on summer time Sunday, 11-5 pm.

May 19 is the indescribably delicious whole pig barbecue at the community hall. Tickets at both of your favourite stores. Proceeds to the fire department.

Cindy Hogg hand delivers these news columns to the Driftwood office. Thank you, Cindy.

Taimi and Bob Hindmarch had most of Bob's family visiting this weekend: His oldest sister, Isobel from Vernon, niece Joan, and brother Jack and his wife Eileen from Duncan. Bob is getting healthier and healthier these days.

The Women's Softball Team needs you. Come and join, smack that ball and rant and shout, hurl insults and soft balls. Phone Bea Carpentier if you are interested.

Trace elements have important role

I am getting quite excited these days, for several reasons. For one, the typewriter and I can now produce as much as one line of intelligible material on occasion without interference from assorted cultural, mental and mechanical idiosyncrasies.

It is such a pleasure to see a clear line, here and there, among half-words, false starts and inexplicable occurrences.

Another is the editorial of this month's issue of Organic Gardening. This chap Robert Rodale is beginning to sound just like this writer, and I quote: "If animals or people eat plants that have grown on mineral-poor soil, their own bodies begin to reflect the same mineral deficiencies that the land suffers."

He goes on and cites the well known example of goiter, a massive bulging growth on or around the neck which results from a deficiency of iodine. For this reason iodine has been added to salt since North American soils are generally iodine deficient.

COMMON SENSE

Our concern with the full spectrum of trace minerals in our soils is nothing more than good, common sense, considering the simple fact that we have evolved in an environment which contributes 60 trace elements to our substance and well being. NPK is just not enough.

It is only within the last 100 years, since the arrival of chemical fertilizers, that we have neglected, and used up, the natural trace mineral levels of our soils.

Let us follow this through a bit to understand this fully. We call them "trace elements" because they are required as "trace" amounts in our soils and ourselves. Thus the ideal boron level would be at a concentration of one part per million. At this "trace" level boron is easily exhausted if not replaced.

In the natural course of events where all wastes, including ours, are returned to the soil, this level is easily and constantly maintained.

IN 15 FUNCTIONS

Boron plays an essential part in 15 vital plant functions such as cell division, nitrogen and carbohydrate metabolism, flowering and fruiting. A deficiency in boron causes stunted plants and fruit, poor bloom and fruit set, and other degenerative diseases due to the resultant feeble

Farming and Gardening

BY PETER WEIS
Foxglove Nursery Consultant

metabolism of plant life, and such specific malfunctions as internal cork in apples, yellow of alfalfa, cracked stems of celery, and heart rot and girdle in beets.

And there are 50 others, aside from the major elements, which are just as essential and vital. Since we choose to return our wastes to the sea, and since we do not replace what has been removed, we suffer the consequences of unhealthy plants and unhealthy people.

Rodale also recommends the use of seaweed as a source of minerals as all minerals find their way to the sea eventually and become part of the weed of the sea.

NEW CLOVER

Another bit of good news is a new clover called kura. It hails from the Caucasus in Russia, thrives in dry or wet soils, with a pH as low as 4.8, is wet winter hardy, and although it takes two to three years to establish, will remain productive for 20 to 25 years.

Extremely disease resistant, including viruses which affect other clovers, it is easier to digest than alfalfa and contains up to 24% protein, although yields amount only to two-thirds as compared to alfalfa yields.

Excellent for marginal soils, both wet or dry, and ideal for our conditions, it has a high mineral content and white, fragrant flowers with easily accessible, high sugar content. This makes it ideal for honey, fodder and green manure production.

We shall see if we can get some for our boggy meadow around the lake.

For information write to: Dr. Derek Allinson, University of Connecticut, Storrs, Conn. 06268.

R. James Cook, plant pathologist for Washington state, has found that "take-all" disease of wheat, probably the world's most damaging wheat pathogen, is easily controlled with organic fertilizers, such as manures and compost, and with crop rotation.

Also, poor soil can be "inoculated" with the addition of rich, organic soil, high in microbotic soil life, to "seed" deficient soil with microbotics and the addition of organic matter provides a continuing life base for these organisms. Disease organisms are still present but are suppressed by the beneficial soil life.

It is nice to see that scientists and other minorities are coming around to my point of view. I just wish that the same would happen for my method of learning how to type.

Three teachers will take early retirement

Three teachers in the Gulf Islands will take advantage of early retirement this year.

The Gulf Islands School Board decided to use some of the surplus budget money from previous years to set up an early retirement fund. The idea was one way around having to lay off teachers in the face of the provincial government's restraint program.

The three are Ron Stacey, science teacher at Gulf Islands Secondary School, Edith Smith, Grades 1 and 2 teacher at Fernwood School, and Tom Wright, who is the librarian and learning assistance teacher at Fernwood.

Stacey has been with the Gulf Islands schools for 20 years while Wright has taught here 17 years and Smith for 15.

The early retirement fund pays the teachers on a sliding scale according to the number of years before they reach the official retirement age of 65 years. In addition, the school district will cover its share of fringe benefits for the teachers until age 65.

For instance, if a teacher has six or more years to go to 65, the retirement pay for those years adds up to 100% of one year's salary. The percentage of one year's salary reduces according to the amount of time left to 65.

At five years, the percentage is 90%, 75% at four years, 60% at three years, 40% at two years and 20% at one year.

Tires missing

A fire truck at Ganges is without a spare tire this week after someone took two large tires from a lot Saturday night.

The tires, size 1,000-20, would only fit a large gravel truck and had been left outside in the Ganges Auto Centre yard. The large tires had been left outside to allow the fire department access to them if needed.

Down Through the Years with Driftwood

Twenty Years Ago

Pupils of Grades 1 and 2 at the Ganges school presented Sleeping Beauty to the delight of a capacity audience in Mahon Hall. Robbie McCowan as the commentator set the tone for the cast with Cindy Reynolds as Sleeping Beauty, Jim Pringle as the king, Marlene Moulton as the queen and Scott Stepaniuk as the prince.

Dry weather during April was the report from Ganges weather-water Howard Carlin. Only .38 inches of rain fell. High temperature hit 62 degrees while the low was registered at 31. The previous year, 1.98 inches of rain fell with high and low temperatures at 61 and 34 degrees.

Plans for May Day were finalized by the Fulford Athletic Club. A dance, with music supplied by Mike Byron's Hillbillies, would be held in Fulford Hall. Bob Atkins would be parade marshal while Doug Dane would be master of ceremonies. The May queen and her attendants would be named during the festivities.

The Queen of the Islands returned from refit to take up her duties on the mainland run from Long Harbour. She would sail three times each day and travellers were reminded that reservations were required.

Senior high school students would be presenting King Cole's Court at Mahon Hall in Ganges. Teresa Mollet would be director and Gail Slingsby would be producer. There were 13 students in the cast. Proceeds from the 25¢ per person admission would go to the graduation fund.

A party was planned for Dave Maxwell's 91st birthday. He had been born on Salt Spring. His father had settled a farm in the Burgoyne Valley in the mid 1800's.

May Queen for the Fulford May Day festivities would be Nicola Toynbee. Her princesses would be Fiona Seward and Patricia Deas. The three girls were chosen by the students of Gulf Islands Secondary School and would preside over the May Day activities.

Two men had drowned during the money in the Gulf Islands. In mid-April, a Burnaby man, Bertil William Grunberg, drowned in Magic Lake on Pender Island when he fell from a boat while fishing. In early May, Walter James Edgell, 82, of Ganges, drowned in Ganges Harbour.

Papajohn reported from Saturna that while reading a book he came across a Latin word which described Dr. Parfitt's 16-sided cottage. The word was sextodecimo. He also reported that 24 children from Pinel, California, visited the Saturna Free School.

The Die-Hards of the Ganges Legion bowled 1,007 to set a record for high score in one bowling game. The team of Jack Lamb, Kitty Lamb, Rowena Dixon, Howard Byron and Ken Dods turned the trick.

Sechelt Queen had been refurbished and returned to duty in the Gulf Islands. She would replace the Queen of the Islands which would be transferred to a route with lighter traffic.

The proposed Islands Trust was not wanted on Salt Spring, a meeting of residents unanimously agreed. Various speakers such as Capital Region chairman Jim Campbell and Salt Spring CRD director George Heinekey spoke against the concept. Hugh Curtis, MLA for the islands, explained the concept as well as the legislation which would create the Trust.

The school tax mill rate for the Gulf Islands was set at 21.1 for the year. The rate was down, explained school board chairman Charles Baltzer, because property assessments had risen. One mill would collect $57,000 in the Gulf Islands. The provincial average mill rate was 34.06.

The Ganges Plan was being readied for a public meeting, said the chairman of the Salt Spring Planning Association, W. J. Stepaniuk. The plan would be discussed by residents at a meeting to be held in June, he said.

Response to an opinion survey on the international park proposal was "very impressive", noted Driftwood. Hundreds of islanders had filled out and returned the ballot which had been printed in the newspaper. The replies would be sent to the federal government to show how islanders felt about the issue.

The fresh-water fishing derby was won by Penny Jones, 6, of Salt Spring. The Rod and Gun Club sponsored the event and Penny came first with a one lb., one ounce fish. She had won the event the previous year as well.

The ferry crew had won the chariot race at the Lions Club walkathon. "A" Watch from the Long Harbour ferry responded to their success by donating $25 to the Lions Club.

The Galiano Lions Club held its annual election of officers. Bob Knowles would be president for the year with John Liver as vice-president. Bill Bamford was chosen to be secretary and Cam Prior would be treasurer. Taitwister Frank Basarab and greeter Tom Carolan filled out the slate.

Five Years Ago

An official of the land management branch said the lease issued to Pinchin Holdings for docking facilities in Bennett Bay on Mayne Island was not subject to Islands Trust approval. He said the owners of Mayne Inn could build the dock according to the development permit as long as it didn't block access to the beach.

The building fund for the Salt Spring Island library had grown to $49,000. The amount represented $11,000 in private donations, said library board chairman Don Kertland. $1,000 had come from the Parks and Recreation Commission and $37,000 from the provincial lottery fund.

The provincial election neared. In the Gulf Islands, Hugh Curtis, Social Credit, was seeking re-election. He was challenged by John Mika, New Democratic Party, and John Green of the Progressive Conservatives.

A log dump in Fulford Harbour was rejected by the Salt Spring Island Trust Committee. Otter Bay Logging Company had applied for permission to use the Cudmore dump. A petition signed by 130 south-end residents opposed the dump.

Fulford Inn Salties won the season-opening softball tournament held on Salt Spring. They won all five games and outscored their opponents 78-4. The Salties would be playing in the Duncan league for the season.

A May Carnival would happen at Salt Spring Elementary School. Lynn Mathews had an army of parents sewing, cooking and collecting in preparation for the bake and craft sale. A softball game between teachers and parents would be part of the fun.

Victoria group presents fashion show at Pender

The Anglican Women's Guild of Pender Island hosted a fashion show presented by the Greater Victoria Festival Society April 29. Joy Ridley and Ann Fairweather organized the event, and Lily Miles introduced the participants.

Marjorie Aldersmith of the Victoria Society was the commentator. She began the show by demonstrating the lighted carousel, a table centre. The carousel turned to music, displaying the 20 eight-inch dolls dressed in replicas of Victorian costumes and the costumes of four queens.

Of the 40 costumes shown by the models in the show, four were originals dating from the mid-1800's and were from private collections. The others were replicas made by the wearers and in many instances were worn with matching parasols, purses or reticules. Bustles were very much in evidence, and the audience was given simple hints on "how to create a bustle."

As well as day dresses and evening gowns, many with embroidered capas or coats, there were riding habits, one even sporting a crinoline. The show stopper, however, was a bright yellow bathing suit with long sleeves and pantaloons and worn with a matching floppy hat.

A different note was struck by the modelling of a leather suit of a voyageur, and the costume of a Cree Indian woman.

During the first intermission the Pender Island Barber Shop Quartet, Desolation Sound, sang a number of songs.

The fashion show concluded with the models taking part in a waltz, accompanied on the piano by Nick Apivor, a Pender Island resident.

Dessert and coffee was served by the members of the Anglican Women's Guild.

The Greater Victoria Festival Society has been in existence for four years. It is common for 50 of their members, dressed in period costumes, to visit functions in many cities in the United States, to promote the City of Victoria.

Energy Data

Energy Analysis of Your Home

If you're thinking of improving the energy efficiency of your home, a physical examination of the building is a necessary first step. You have to know what you've got in the way of insulation, windows, etc. before you can determine where improvements are needed.

The job begins with a review or energy audit, which is a thorough examination and measurement of your home. When this is completed your data must be analyzed, and here a computer can be a big help. Priorities can then be set and work plans established.

One way to get an energy audit and analysis of your home is to hire a contractor to do it. Before committing yourself, be sure to get quotes from several individuals.

Alternatively, you can do the audit and analysis yourself. Your public library should have articles and books to help you.

A third option is to follow the instructions in one of B.C. Hydro's data sheets for your audit, and then send the results to Hydro for computer analysis. You will receive a printout giving specific recommendations for improving the energy efficiency of your home in areas where energy waste is seen.

If you're interested in the B.C. Hydro energy analysis, ask at your B.C. Hydro district office for the data sheet "Energy Conservation Advice Questionnaire for Existing Homes". At home, arm yourself with a tape measure, paper and pencil, trouble light or flashlight, and a step ladder to allow you to get into the attic space. (An assistant wouldn't be a bad idea, either.) Follow the instructions in the questionnaire to systematically describe your home type, detail existing insulation, window area, fuel type, etc., and measure the house. Be sure to measure carefully—if you don't provide accurate data, the computer cannot provide accurate results.

Once completed, the form should be returned to the local Hydro office. The printout you'll be sent will show estimated savings for increased levels of insulation and improved windows, as well as estimated payback periods for these improvements. It will also list other energy conserving tips, such as reducing thermostat settings when the house is unoccupied, caulking air leaks, and improving the weatherstripping of doors and windows.

Whatever home energy improvements you make, you will get the most benefit from them by observing a few simple pointers. For instance, faithfully turn down the thermostat when you're away from home. Don't set the water temperature inappropriately high. Don't leave windows wide open when the heat is on. For energy conservation savings, life style is probably the most important factor.

For help on how to go about making your improvements, as well as further energy conservation tips, B.C. Hydro district offices have a variety of literature available. Among them: data sheet EC 200, "Energy Conservation in the Home", an overall guide on conservation basics and handy hints on saving energy; "Insulate—Save Energy", a pamphlet describing how to upgrade the insulation in your home, with information on storm windows and storm doors, weatherstripping and caulking; and data sheet H 210, which guides you in determining the required level of insulation and the proper way to install it. More computer programs are also available.

It's a good idea to give your home an energy check-up, because whatever problem areas exist are costing you money. If we can help, give us a call.

Harbours branch finds problems with plans

Redevelopment plans for Centennial Park in Ganges have encountered a potential roadblock in the small craft and harbours branch of the federal department of fisheries and oceans.

Jonathan Yardley, of the Centennial Park redevelopment committee, wrote to the branch about plans to fix up the park.

A reply came back from Gary Norberg, acting manager of property and operations for the branch.

He noted: "Your proposal looks interesting but presents some problems for us in terms of cost and potential inconvenience to users of the harbour facilities."

Of concern to the branch is the proposed pedestrian walkway at water's edge around the park. The walkway is part of the proposals contained in the Ganges plan.

The harbours branch is concerned that the walkway "would appear to necessitate the elimination of the boat launching ramp." The ramp is the only all-tide launching facility on the island, Norberg noted, and it is used extensively by commercial fishermen and pleasure boaters. The breakwater protects the ramp and it is close to the commercial centre of the island, he pointed out.

"Relocating the ramp would not only involve cost, but could present a problem in terms of acquiring a suitable alternate site," he wrote.

The redevelopment committee also proposed moving the wharfinger's office to the moorage float and the coast guard office to a site close to the park.

Norberg said: "Moving the harbour manager's office would hamper his surveillance capability and not be as convenient to harbour users."

The committee also came up with a plan to open the breakwater at the Grace Point end to allow tides to exert a flushing action on the inner harbour. But the idea was not greeted warmly.

"Relocation of the breakwater would be extremely costly and be of no benefit to harbour users unless future float expansion was to be required," Norberg said.

Another point of concern to the harbours branch was a proposal for a common parking lot where the current government wharf parking lot is located. The parking proposal came out of a plan to close and move the parking lot on the Fulford-Ganges Road side of the park.

The federal lot, Norberg said, was reserved for use of harbour patrons, staff as well as service and emergency vehicles.

As the village developed, he said, "parking space for users will become more crucial." The potential traffic congestion will make it more difficult for service and emergency vehicles to gain access to the head of the wharf, he said.

Norberg concluded his letter by saying: "In general, our primary concern is to ensure that harbour development is carried out in such a manner as to reflect the needs of harbour users."

"Your proposals present some problems in this regard as they conflict with our objectives in relation to the operation of Ganges Harbour."

The redevelopment committee is composed of Jonathan Oldroyd as chairman, Patrick Morgan, Geoff Gay, Walter Davis, Arvid Chalmers and Yardley. Doreen Wheatley acts as secretary for the committee.

Park problem discussed

During the discussion Maureen Bendick said that her concern was that the chamber may not want the Farmers' Market or the mid-week vendors to remain in the park.

Oldroyd, in his letter, said, "We (the chamber) firmly believe that our constitution provides for the democratic participation of all interested parties at the local level so that the multi-function nature of the park can operate in the best interest of the island residents."

When Centennial Park was created in the mid-1960's, the Chamber of Commerce had been the driving force behind the idea. The organization leased the park from the ministry of lands, forests and water resources in 1966 for 21 years at a cost of $10 per year.

In 1976, the director of land management approved the assignment of the lease from the Chamber of Commerce to the Salt Spring Island Recreation Commission. The CRD entered the picture when the Parks and Recreation Commission was created in 1977.

Open house at hospital

Lady Minto Hospital in Ganges will be holding an open house and tour of facilities Friday beginning at 2 pm.

The event marks Lady Minto Hospital's celebration of National Health Day which actually falls on Saturday. The occasion for National Health Day each year, May 12, is the commemoration of the birthday of Florence Nightingale.

In addition to the open house and tour, tea and entertainment will be staged in the extended care wing of the hospital.

Police check

100 vehicles

Ganges detachment RCMP continued roadside checks in the provincial traffic safety program last week.

The police conducted roadblocks for nine hours and checked 100 vehicles from April 30 to May 7.

In that time, there were two property accidents and one injury accident with one person hurt. Seven charges were laid. Two drivers were charged with driving while their ability was impaired and two other drivers were handed drivers' licence suspensions for 24 hours. Not using seatbelts brought charges against two drivers.

The police also handed out four warnings for vehicle defects. In that span there were also three seizures of liquor and one drug seizure.

The RCMP have issued a warning against drivers who pass a stopped school bus. Several complaints of such actions have been made. Drivers going both ways are supposed to stop when a school bus, with flashing red lights, is taking on or dropping off children.
