Hans Hazenboom gets instruction from Georgette Pauker during adult computer night

Computer connection at Fernwood

The open-door policy at Fernwood Elementary School has been extended to the area of computers. About 20 Fernwood parents met last week with teachers Georgette Pauker and John Cameron to investigate the use of the school's Apple and Commodore computers.

The hands-on session was the first step of a six-step project in which parents can become better acquainted with the ways in which their children are learning while using the machines. As a result parents may co-ordinate the use of computers in the home with that of the school.

The school will communicate to parents the criteria it uses to evaluate and select educational hardware and software. As well, later communications will list programs chosen by the school and detail what each is designed to teach.

Fernwood parents who attended this first session or who become familiar with the machines are invited to come into the school and make use of the equipment whenever it is available. These parents are encouraged to copy any of the hundreds of public domain programs the school has collected and to use them at home. As well they can try any of the school's commercial software. The school has begun negotiations with its suppliers to extend prices to parents who have participated in the program. Finally, Fernwood hopes to dedicate at least one computer and software to a take-home program, again available to families participating in the project. This computer would be signed out for a few days at a time, much like a library book.

Although the Fernwood home-school program has just begun, already several parents have volunteered to help children at the school's computer lab during regular class instruction.

Loes Holland, Pat Lee win January Classic

By STEPHANIE ROWLEY

The first event of the 1985 tennis season at Salt Spring Island was the January Classic, a mixed doubles tournament held Saturday at Portlock. A good day of friendly competitive tennis was enjoyed by all 32 players.

Number 1 seeds Pat Lee and Loes Holland won by two game points on the overall day's play over second-seeded George Coelho and Carolyn Mouat.

The day was followed by a potluck supper and organizational meeting for the upcoming season, at the Olson's home.

This is the first time the Association has sponsored a tournament in January. It is planning to follow this with an indoor clinic for advanced strokes and net play at Oak Bay plus another tournament event, both for February.

Row composting method yields high-energy product

Here we go again weaving solar energy—eternal universal energy, the same thing—into thoughts; thoughts into words; words into methods; methods for capturing and converting solar energy into greens; greens to supply us with captured solar energy; energy to power the beat of our hearts, and to power our thoughts; to weave thoughts into ideas, into music, joy, love, new human beings, and all the other stuff we do.

It is utterly amazing what we make out of this solar energy. From Arabs in tents, to zeros behind numbers, from asparagus in rows to zucchinis on vines; from aspirations of all sorts, to zygotes full of the promise of life. And although this list is well nigh endless, it also includes compost, somewhere along the way. Boy, what a way to go, mucking around with the stuff of life, piling its leftovers in heaps, to the joy of numberless hordes of lively bacteria, and to see it turn, miraculously and unfailingly, into the sweetest, richest humus imaginable.

This may be done slowly, with a minimum of turnings, to result in humus in a period of six months to a year, as with the Indore method. Or it may be done in as little as three weeks, with lots of turnings. In the former method, composting materials are added to a pile as they become available. The latter method depends on the assembly of a pile all at once. For this, the scraps and bits are stored under cover, and when sufficient materials have accumulated, a mixed and layered pile is constructed. The minimum size for any pile is three by three square by four feet high; or one by one metre and, let's say, 1½ metres high.

Within 48 hours, this pile will heat up to about 150° F, or 65° C. It is then turned over completely, with special care to transfer the outside material into the middle of the new heap. This process is repeated every two days, and in three weeks it will have turned into that incredible, sweet and wholesome humus, to cause a joyful commotion in any gardener's heart.

For this, and also the slow method, it would be best to have two or three open bins, made of wood or wire, adjacent to each other. With two bins, one heap can be turned into the other bin alternately for the fast method, and with three bins, the first one is the accumulator, the second is the cooking one, and the third is the finishing bin, for the slow method. And although the high temperature of the fast pile destroys weed seeds and pathogens, it also released much of the stored solar energy as heat into the atmosphere. Thus some of the retained energy in wastes is lost to us in this process.

Farming and Gardening

BY PETER WEIS

With Alvin Seifert's method of making perma-compost this energy is retained, and results in a high quality compost which actually gains in fertility as it ages, hence perma-compost. Seifert allots 10% of his total garden area to generate, from garden wastes, sufficient compost for all his gardening applications. It is a row composting method, consisting of two side-by-side rows, each three feet (one metre) wide, and as long as required to amount to 10% of the garden area.

Composting materials are heaped at the beginning of one row, as high as it will go, to result in a cone-shaped pile. As more material becomes available, and this can be on a day-to-day basis, it is added to the side of the pile along the row, to result, eventually, in one long cone-shaped row of compost. As soon as the initial height is reached, the beginning of the pile is covered over with a six-inch layer of grass clippings. And as the pile lengthens, the blanket of grass clippings is extended accordingly.

The pile may rise somewhat at first, akin to sourbread dough, and then it will shrink and subside somewhat. At this point, the by now thoroughly matted grass blanket is carefully lifted, the semi-decayed compost is turned over into the second row, and covered again with the same grass mat. Eventually, we have a continuous process, with finished compost at the far end of the second row, and fresh material being added at the near end of the first row. There is never a lot of work all at once, as the continuity of the whole process is maintained by a few minutes' work every few days.

Fresh compost materials are added continuously, with an eye to great variety and a rough balance of three to one of carboniferous materials to nitrogenous ones. Everything brown, stiff and dry is rich in carbon; and everything green, soft and wet is rich in nitrogen. At intervals clay is sprinkled over the accumulating mixture to provide a rich mineral balance, in a ratio of roughly one part clay to nine parts compost material, along with a light dusting of hoof or bone meal.

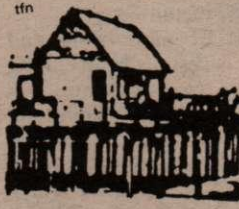

The pile is never allowed to dry out, or to get soggy, but is maintained at a condition similar to a semi-saturated sponge. As the internal temperature of the pile should never exceed 75° F (25° C) Seifert advised to locate the composting rows in semi-shade in hot areas.

In our coastal climate though, even full sun exposure will rarely result in internal temperatures higher than recommended. Over heavy clay soils, the base of the rows should be slightly raised in the centre to provide ready drainage of excess moisture. At first this process will be a bit slow; but as micro-organisms and worms accumulate in the soil under the rows, the process will accelerate considerably, and the worms will actually follow the pile through its cycles.

Altogether it is a nice and easy method which yields high energy compost in the most relaxed procedure yet devised. All composting materials should be shredded, chopped or crushed as for any other composting method, so that the bacteria have plenty of open surfaces to work on, as this speeds things up considerably. And do not forget the weeds.

As most of you know, I grow much of our garden in sheared weeds, for their rich contribution of a great variety of minerals, as well as their energy-rich substance. They are free solar energy collectors, all of them, and if allowed to live, inexhaustible.

Watershed 1

Trust will try again to change minimum lot size

Another attempt to increase the minimum parcel size in the Watershed 1 zones on Salt Spring will be made by the Islands Trust Committee.

The proposed minimum parcel size has been set at 8 hectares (ha) or 19.75 acres. The permitted minimum currently stands at 4 ha (9.88 acres).

A public meeting to discuss the proposed changes has been called for February 12 at Central Hall.

Last year the Trust Committee submitted a zoning amendment calling for a minimum of 12 ha (29.64 acres) but the minister of municipal affairs refused to sign it.

The minister, Bill Ritchie, did sign an amendment which increased the minimum parcel size in the Stowe Lake watershed, zoned Watershed 2, to 4 ha (9.88 acres) from 2 ha (4.94 acres).

Support for the change has come from both the Salt Spring Water Preservation Society and the North Salt Spring Waterworks District.

Mike Larmour, secretary of the waterworks district, wrote a letter to Ritchie explaining the reasons why the larger lot size should be approved. When it was read at a recent meeting of the Islands Trust committee, Tom Gossett of the water preservation group offered support for the arguments "right down the line."

Following is Larmour's letter to Ritchie.

Dear Sir,
We would like to respond to statements attributed to you in the December issue of Driftwood. As we understand it, the principal objection to large lot zoning in watershed areas of Salt Spring Island is that it is unfair to land owners in that it may reduce property values.

It should be pointed out that similar large lot zoning exists elsewhere—on forest and upland areas of Salt Spring and on agricultural areas, for instance, so that watershed property owners are not being asked for any sacrifices that many other people in the community have not already made.

The central point is, however, that the continued subdivision and subsequent development of watershed land is severely damaging a resource—the lakes—that is not owned by watershed lot owners, but is owned by everybody.

This deterioration in water quality has already resulted in potential health problems, aesthetic loss, as well as a considerable economic loss, including:

1. the cost of monitoring and studies made necessary by declining water quality (we estimate this expenditure by the provincial government at over $100,000 so far.)

2. the cost of increased treatment for domestic water. So far the North Salt Spring Waterworks District has not extended treatment beyond filtration and chlorination at St. Mary Lake pending the outcome of our attempts to improve water quality in the lake itself to an acceptable degree. We have, however, been forced to enlarge the filtering capacity of our pumping plant and acquire additional land to allow for the possibility of extensive future treatment processes if and when necessary. In addition, frequent flushing of mains must be carried out due to poor water quality, at an estimated cost to the district of $4,000 per year.

3. deteriorating water quality in St. Mary Lake has resulted in poor survival of trout as well as taste, odour, staining and other problems for water consumers. In an attempt to reverse this trend, and following the recommendations of the St. Mary Lake study, the Fish and Wildlife Branch, with the co-operation of the North Salt Spring Waterworks District, will be installing an aeration system. The capital cost, paid for by the ministry of environment, is an estimated $60,000 - $70,000. Initial annual operating costs, to be borne by the district, will probably be in the order of $10,000 per year.

Even more important than our present problems is the future of our lakes which is critical to the continued well being and growth of our community. Stephen Rogers, former minister of environment, indicated that, in the case of St. Mary Lake, much worse can be expected unless special care is taken to control the impact of all development in the watershed.

If the lakes do deteriorate seriously, large economic losses will be sustained by the water consumers, resorts and businesses dependent on water based recreation, land owners adjacent to the lake, and to a lesser degree, much of the rest of the community.

While we sympathize with and understand your concern that owners of watershed land not be unfairly penalized by large lot zoning, in this case we believe that this measure is both fair and necessary. It is fair because, in common with other pollution control legislation, it recognizes that restrictions must be placed on individuals and companies that, by their actions, contribute to pollution, and that the polluter must pay the cost of preventative or remedial measures. In the case of our watersheds the payment is in the form of reduced ability to make money through the subdivision of land.

Even if large lot zoning is deemed unfair we do not understand why it is singled out and rejected on that basis when almost all land use regulations everywhere (instituted for whatever good reason) governing density and land use could be considered similarly unfair. For instance, when land is zoned commercial or allowed greater than average density (as in the case of Ganges, Vesuvius, etc.) the value of that property and the potential to make money from it is increased considerably. This also, is unfair to other property owners who do not enjoy similar privileges.

Large lot size zoning in the watershed areas of Salt Spring Island is the most important single step we can take to protect our lakes. This measure helps to retain large areas of natural forest cover, minimizes the volume of waste entering the lakes from man made sources and reduces land disturbances associated with residential development, all identified as major factors in the deterioration of our lakes.

We understand that your ministry, in conjunction with the ministry of environment and the Islands Trust, is working on an alternative approach to preserving water quality in our lakes, based on relating land use to nutrient input to the lake. We anticipate that this approach will be technically difficult due to the large number of variables involved in nutrient generation and transport to the lakes, as well as the problems associated with developing and enforcing effective regulations on private land on a fair and equitable basis. It is also possible that some needed measures may be deemed unacceptable by the watershed property owners or government on the basis that they devalue or interfere with the normal use of the property.

In consequence, while we recognize that further controls over land use in the watersheds are necessary we believe it is imperative that large lot zoning should be implemented now, while large areas of undeveloped land remain. Then, if land use controls can be developed, implemented and shown to be effective, a relaxation of large lot zoning in the watershed areas might be considered.

Your views on this matter would be greatly appreciated.

Installation ceremonies for Legion, auxiliary

The Royal Canadian Legion Branch at Pender Island held its installation ceremonies on January 21 at the Legion.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary were installed by zone commander Dorothy Emerson of Victoria. They were treasurer, Vi Hleck; secretary, Eleanor Harrison; vice-president, Lily Miles; president, Bonnie Green; executive committee, May Forster, Joan Sweetnam and Jeanne Johnson. The acting sergeant-at-arms for the ceremony was Irene Estelle.

Members installed by Walter Logan, zone commander of South Vancouver Island, to conduct the work of the Legion for 1985 were: sergeant-at-arms, Jens Hansen; secretary, Judy Watts; treasurer, George Sweetnam; chaplain and service officer, William Mundy; executive committee, Dave Hambly, Tracy Crosswell, Jack Little, Larry Tavener and Basil Woods; first, second and third vice-presidents respectively, Harold Paget, Peter Campbell and Peter Hunter; president, Jack Finnie; past president, Art Lambeth. Acting sergeant-at-arms was Grant Cameron.

A new innovation with the Legion this year is movies shown every Saturday night, except the third Saturday of the month which is Birthday Night. This has been held during the past year when those with a birthday in the month attend to meet their friends and enjoy cake courtesy of the Ladies Auxiliary.

THANK YOU to all who attended our Grand Opening on Saturday, January 19, 1985, making it a great success!

A special thanks to Sharon Sparling, Fantasy Cakes; to Ken Olding and John Christianson of S.S.I. Sea Products and Becky Legg of The Deli Shoppe, who helped in providing us with the food.

Institute looks back on busy year

By ELEANOR HARRISON

The Pender Farmers' Institute annual meeting was held January 22 with 40 members present.

Acting chairman Bob Allison read a report from president Angela Verriour in which she said the institute fills an important role in the community being responsible for several major annual events.

The institute held nine executive meetings during the year. Ashton Ross-Smith and Wilf Craven attended the annual general meeting of District A in Duncan as Pender representatives.

Sandra Johnstone was program chairman and 11 meetings and two workshops were held. Meetings drew 20 to 75 people, the average was 30. They were quite varied as to topic.

Dr. J. Toogood spoke on agriculture in Zambia, Maria Watson on canoeing in northern Saskatchewan, Eric Dunn from the Vancouver Planetarium (whose parents live on the island) on the solar system, district horticulturist Brent Warner on fruit trees, Dr.

Don Sutherland on Somalia refugee camps, Marjorie Bailey on shrub propagation, Angela Verriour and Ray Smart on old apple trees on Pender, John Crawford and Leslie Stonebridge on bees, Bill and Bea Kempster on the Horticultural Centre of the Pacific, Bill Bartlett, gave an evening of films from the National Film Board, Bertine Haslam spoke on the grafting of fruit trees and John Tuytel gave a workshop on building with stone.

Ron McLardy, the representative to the Health Care Society, reported on the study by Tate and Associates on the projected future needs of the Penders. McLardy reported professional nursing service had been recommended and the Society had taken this under advisement. The report recommended the ambulance crew could use more upgrading on cardiac conditions.

While the building itself is adequate for the present some useful suggestions for re-arrangements had been put in force. In summary, McLardy said the study found the health care facilities on the Penders excellent and unique, the only one of its kind in Canada. They were very impressed.

The heliport for emergency evacuations will soon be functioning and a new back-up generator has been purchased for emergency lighting in the clinic building.

Jean Lines and Winnie Steeves reported that the Juan de Fuca Veterinary Clinic made 11 visits to their residence on Pender during the year and treated 46 dogs, 13 cats and three goats.

Audrey Dunn reported on the Flower Growers Group who meet the first Thursday afternoon of the month. This is a very popular adjunct of the Farmers' Institute where knowledge can be exchanged by those who love to grow flowers.

This past summer Pender was fortunate to have the Naden Band play for 150 residents and friends on a lovely Sunday afternoon in May. It was arranged by Joyce and Frank Jones.

The sixth Pender Islands Farmers' market took place in 1984 on 10 Saturdays from July 7 to October 6. There were 28 vendors, reported Bet Gardner.

In August the old-time rural picnic for all the children, parents and grandparents was the usual unqualified success, reported Helen Allison. She thanked all who helped including the businesses who contributed.

Doreen York was the organizer of the Fall Fair, assisted by a competent committee. Mrs. York reported there were 131 entries more than last year.

A new board of directors was elected, consisting of Bob Allison, A. Ross-Smith, Jim Dunn, Angus McMonnies, Sandra Johnstone, Jock Murray, Jerry Sewell and Bet Gardner.

SATURNA SCENE

By PRISCILLA JANSZEN

Ed Reimer and Pat are making great strides on the construction of their greenhouse. Eighteen thousand flowers will be housed under the plastic roof: geraniums, fuchsias, lobelias, begonias and others.

At first, by my calculations I thought we Saturna Islanders would have to buy 64 plants each to support their efforts but it turns out they intend to sell to nurseries elsewhere. At this time they won't start the plants, just grow them larger. I really look forward to seeing the greenhouse in operation, it's only my budget that keeps me from buying my 64 plants.

Next door to Pat and Ed, Bryan Miller's family has returned from Singapore. Rosalie, Bryan's wife, and David and Tanti, their daughter are re-acustoming themselves to gumboots, hats and mittens and blankets at night. Rosalie mentioned she had never seen greenhouses in Singapore and observed that the temperatures at this time of the year are in the 100° range and never below 75°. Rosalie is glad to be back in Canada where the children were born.

Carol Money celebrated her birthday with a trip to town. She and John almost went by themselves—they just had Cara with them. Lil Cunningham kindly supervised the at-home bunch. Happy birthday, Carol.

Applications for Canada Works grants need to be made immediately through the Manpower office at Quadra and McKenzie in Victoria. Many community groups and the community as a whole will benefit from the projects done by the three people hired. A new shed will be built for the recycling depot, a temporary shed for the East Point fire truck, a water dump tank at the fire hall will be built to refill the pumper tank (this will make a crucial difference in the island's fire protection since the two-inch standpipe took 20 minutes to refill the truck and the dump tank will take two minutes) and a new playing field at Winter Cove.

Many people worked hard to make this grant application successful. Originally, Taimi and Doris found it in their search for money for the recycling effort. Star and Tree located the papers, Paul Deveau wrote up in detail the work needed for the playing field, Ron Garth did the same for the fire department and Anne Popperwell wrote up the grant. Taimi helped guide it through the proper channels—and now we have it. This money will pay three people to work 20 weeks to accomplish many important needs for the community that would be a real strain on voluntary labour that already runs the recycling depot and a well-trained fire department. A hard task will be choosing the three people for employment—Saturna has many people who are good workers and eager for employment.

Walter Ratzlaff and Doris Ackerman will be happy to receive donations from the community to help the community club's obligation to the salary of a worker for the recycling depot.

The Death Force makes a weekly run over the Mayne Island. This is the second year Bill Douglas, Harvey Janszen, Scott Stewart, Ron Garth, Reg Hutton-Potts, Ben and Joe Maberley and Rick Jones have participated in aerobic exercises.

These people run around like crazy from 6:30 pm to 8:30 pm playing basketball. Since they regularly play with and against Mayne Island folks they needed to be able to identify one side or the other. Ron Garth had this Edmonton relative who was having a hard time moving these Death Force T-Shirts! Anyway the group is dedicated and has a very good time.

The executive committee of the community club met with Ian Rowe and Bob Rodway to review the performance of the new heating system. It was decided to replace the orange curtain with hinged wooden doors to take advantage of the fireplace heat. This will also separate the main room from the carpeted area more effectively, perhaps allowing for two different functions at the same time.

Installation of ceiling fans will be considered by the technical committee as a way to improve warm air circulation in the main hall. An abundant supply of dry wood is of importance to heating the hall as well as some easy steps to follow in getting maximum heat from the fireplace.

Thank you, Taimi, for your weekly news-filled article. The column is certainly in good hands with you writing it.

Recreation commission agrees to fund teen group

A program for teenagers on Salt Spring will be funded for four months at a cost of up to $850 by the Parks and Recreation Commission.

Social worker Ragnhild Hildred attended a recent meeting of the commission to explain the program and to ask for funding. She said the program needed $2,600 to operate for a year, beginning February 1.

The commission, caught in a year of a restricted budget, decided to fund the program from February to May and look for money from other sources for the remainder of the time.

Hildred explained that when the program began in September, 22 young people had signed up for it. By the end of the first phase at the end of last year, 20 remained with the program.

Essentially, the program taught the youths abilities in communications, as well as decision making through problem solving. The skills were learned through group activities as well as through non-competitive games, she explained.

The teens are now prepared to participate in the next part of the program which involves teaching the skills to other young people.

Hildred explained that the group which went through the first portion of the program would be split in two. One group would, for two months, teach the skills to Brownies, Scouts, or their classmates at the high school. A part of the coming program would be to host off-island groups for get-togethers to share their experience.

The second group would be available at the high school to help students overcome crisis situations by showing them solutions to problems. At the end of two months the groups would switch roles.

Hildred said that the group of teens will be seeking grant money to set up a teen centre organized and run by the young people themselves. She said a grant could be available through the national organization which is operating such programs for International Year of Youth.

Three participants in the youth program, Stacey Tatum, Morgan Kent and Melanie Marshall, were at the meeting with Hildred to tell the members of the commission their impressions of the program.

All three were unanimous in their praise of the benefits which they had derived from it.

"Why not carry on with a good thing?" Hildred asked the commission. "I'd like to see it continue."

Commission chairman John Lomas expressed concern that the program might not fall under the definition of recreation.

Strick Aust replied that the definition of recreation was such a broad term that the program would fit. He reminded the commission that they had been seeking a program for youth for some time and the one suggested by Hildred offered a chance to begin something for youth on the island.

Later in the meeting, when the commission talked about funding the program, several members wanted to postpone a decision until more information on the budget could be obtained.

Each member agreed that the program seemed worthwhile. The concern centred on how it could be funded.

The decision was made to put forward sufficient money to allow the program to run until May. Hildred said an adult supervisor was needed for five hours each week. The funding until May would be approximately $850.

At the same time, members of the commission agreed to ask the young people to determine what sort of programs the commission should be offering for youth on the island.

Other sources of funds will be explored in an effort to come up with the amount needed to allow the program to run for the year.

Helicopter helps apprehend youths

An RCMP helicopter aided police in locating and detaining three youths from Victoria who had broken into a home on Galiano Island earlier this week.

A neighbour noticed lights in a cabin owned by a summer visitor. When he went to check, he surprised the three youths in the cabin. They fled into the bush and when RCMP were called, the helicopter arrived to assist.

Police report that a quantity of food was taken as were liquor and miscellaneous items which were later recovered.

The three suspects were flown to Victoria and an investigation of the incident continues.

Requirements changed

Obtaining a development permit for minor construction or renovations will be easier as a result of changes to development permit regulations made by the Salt Spring Island Trust Committee at last week's meeting.

The manager of the Islands Trust, to whom all applications for development permits go, can issue a permit if the work is valued at less than $4,000 and the net building addition is less than 100 square feet.

The previous limits had been $2,500 and 50 square feet.

Any work of greater value or larger size must go to the advisory design panel for consideration before a permit can be issued.

KICK-OFF

Full slate of soccer games played on weekend

By MALCOLM LEGG

Everyone swung back into action last weekend with a full slate of soccer games. A whirlwind look at all our teams will show how everyone fared after the long lay-off.

Wranglers: The Wranglers started the second half of the season with a surprise loss, 2-1 to Lakehill. The high-scoring locals looked very rusty as they only scored once on a Bradley Davies goal while Lakehill notched a pair to steal the win. With a little oil in the joints they should bounce back next week.

Selects: The Selects travelled to Victoria for a game only to have it cancelled due to an unplayable field. Although the team has been reduced in strength due to an injured Mark Nordine and Izak Ondre in California they still expect to be tough, starting this weekend.

Sounders: The Sounders opened the New Year with two games. On Saturday they dropped a 3-2 decision to Gordon Head with only 10 players. Aaron McCarthy scored both goals. On Sunday the team bounced back with a 4-1 win over Bays on goals from Jo Oman, Paul Hatch and Juda Shugar with two.

The team seems to be responding to new coaches Ron Hatch and Dave Greenway who hope to continue the fine record Kevin McCarthy built up.

Strikers: The Strikers dropped a tough 2-1 decision to Peninsula. Corin Fairbrother gave the locals an early lead but Peninsula fought back notching their winning goal in the dying minutes.

Sockeyes: The women opened their new year with a very easy win as Taylors Madness could not field a team and consequently they had to default. With only one league game to go the women are gearing up for the play-offs and hopefully a good run for the cup.

Cosmos: The girls' team did not play last weekend due to an unplayable field in Cordova Bay. The girls' biggest problems are a lack of players to complete their season. Any girls under 15 who would like to play soccer should call Rob Tranter, 537-2989.

Intra-island Senior: Some excellent games with the highlight being the match-up between the Fury and the Stingers. The Stingers controlled a lot of the early going, as the Fury appeared stuck in second gear, and seemed to have a victory sewn up on goals from David Bacic and Michael Quesnel. With only five minutes to go the Fury woke up and Josh Byron scored twice to gain a tie.

The big game this weekend will be the Sharks-Fury match.

Intra-island Junior: The match of the week was the Wildcats-Panthers game. The ever-improving girls team held the Panthers to a 2-0 win, a tremendous improvement for these youngsters. The Wildcats' improved defence only allowed Morgan Cuddy and Zac Erickson to score while holding the Panthers at bay otherwise.

Referee: Our junior referees are undergoing their field exams at present and we hope over the next few weeks they will all achieve the 60% pass needed to become certified.

Bowling scores for the week ending January 26:

Carol Kaye tops the list again with an 845 triple (218, 228 and a big 399). I lost another quarter on that one.

For the men: Steve Marleau with 771 (290,211,270), Terry Jenkins 767 (245,268,254) and 716 (215,320,181), Peter Lucas 733 (244,286,203). 300 games: Carol Kaye 399, Jean Jenkins 337, Terry Jenkins 320, Elizabeth Socher 309, Pat Slingsby 305.

Pins over average: Peter Lucas had most pins over, 175, followed by Jackie Tranter 145, Dorothy Graham 134, Cecille Marcotte 124, Carol Cunningham 121.

There is a rumour going around that Sheila Davies bowls. Can anyone confirm this?

GOLDEN-AGER SCORES

Over 250: Bill Harper 267, Cecille Marcotte 253, Wally Edwards 253, Dorothy Graham 250, 237.

Over 225: Edie Gear 242, 223, 214, Flora Robinson 235, James Gilson 235, Marie Ashley 232, Gladys Harper 223, Dorothy Sloan 215, Ruth Bedford 215, 211, Jean Blatter 211, Jim Cook 210, Irene Atkins 208, Dot Beech 208, Les Giles 206, Flo Kavanagh 205.

Over 600: Dorothy Graham 684, Ivor Cawker 679, Edie Gear 638, 600, Ruth Bedford 606, Bill Harper 602.

Sno-pitch details sketchy

The annual sno-pitch game was played to the frosty finish by the Jellyfish and the Inn Team at the Fulford ball field on Salt Spring.

But the pigeon carrying the news took a detour through the mainland mountains and details of the game, played New Year's Day, are sketchy at best.

The score at the end of the game has yet to be determined but the players were thrilled to play the annual event in actual snow. Some of them even played the game.

The one note of despair from the game is that John Tinline survived his clash with the dog and second base. Medical specialists from across North America were rushed to the field to deal with the accident victim but their efforts proved to be too successful.

Bridge winners

Gulf Islands Bridge Club winners on January 21 were:

North-south: Patti May Lawson and Stan Stewart, Cobi Raymer and John Coates, Gordon Hutton and Fred Struve. East-west: Lorna and Peter Pentz, Althea Morrisette and Ailsa McKay, May Whiten and Margaret Ellison.

Tuesday night: Jean Herring and Kay Javorski, Peter and Lorna Pentz, Mike Testart and Ron Stacey, Lois Popkin-Clurman and Shirley Love.

Fulford Bridge Club: Dorothy Edwards and John Noakes, Muriel Leask and Norm McConnell, Elsa Drummond and Jocelyn Hocking.

Tinline apparently attempted to steal second base but the dog came up with a picture-perfect play to thwart the effort.

As more news of the game becomes available, through the wonders of contemporary communications, details will be released.

Burns Night at Ganges

and Mabel Gall. Bob Gall, at microphone, prepares to address the haggis under the watchful eye of Legion president Arthur Gale.

Hikers good cooks, club finds at annual meeting and potluck

Hikers can be counted on for good food, reports Salt Spring Trail and Nature Club spokesman Peggy Jacobs following the recent potluck supper and annual meeting of the club January 15 at Central Hall.

Reports from the activity co-ordinators, the executive and one on the bird count indicated that the club was busy with a wide range of activities during the year.

There were new trails built, two three-day off-island trips and three levels of walks every Tuesday. A modified program was carried out through the summer for the first time.

The meeting elected a new executive consisting of Eleanor Lloyd, president; Bob Ball, hiking co-ordinator; and Doreen Braggins, secretary.

Following the meeting Simon Henson gave a talk on the stone cutters' cottages at the island's north end. The talk was accompanied by slides.

Meanwhile, the club's February program begins next Tuesday with three activities.

Joan Lott will lead a general interest excursion to a horse farm in Duncan. Participants will meet at 9.30 am at Centennial Park to catch the 10 am ferry from Vesuvius.

There will be a regular walk in the Isabella Pt. area led by Harry Pickstone and a hike at Dutchy Bluff, leader to be announced.

Meeting place for both is Centennial Park at 10 am or Drummond Park at 10.15 for the former.

A general interest trip February 12 will be a conducted tour of the Institute of Ocean Sciences at Pat Bay in Saanich. Reg Lomas will lead the trip, which is limited to 20 people. Car pooling will take place at 8.45 am to catch the 9.30 ferry at Fulford.

Nancy Keith-Murray will lead a regular walk in the Toynbee Rd. area and Mary Sylvander will conduct a hike at the Maxwell Park peak. Walkers and hikers will meet at Centennial Park at 10 am.

Participants will meet at 10 am at Centennial Park or 10.15 at Drummond Park for an easy walk February 19 in the Isabella Pt. area with leader Jean Holmes. On the same day Ernie Jenkins will lead a regular walk at St. Mary's Highlands and Bob Kertland will lead a hike/work party on the Mt. Erskine circuit trails. Workers are asked to take snippers or a bowsaw. Meeting place for both is Centennial Park at 10 am.

Three activities will take place on the last Tuesday of the month, the 26th.

Peggy Jacobs will take charge of a leader's choice easy walk, Jack Foster will lead a regular walk on the Crofton area foreshore and Loes Holland will lead a hike on the refrigerator trail at Mt. Tuam. Meeting place for the first is Centennial Park at 10 am, and for the second, the Vesuvius ferry. Hikers will gather at Centennial Park at 10 or Drummond Park at 10.15.

Island Futures gets Canada Works grant

The Island Futures Community Economic Development Society at Salt Spring Island has been awarded a $34,000 Canada Works grant to employ five people for five months.

Each will be working in one of five areas: an economic study of the island, farm products enterprises, wood products, a small island jitney service and non-wood building materials.

Members of the Island Futures board have divided into small committees to help the people hired in each category. But the directors are looking for additional volunteer help from people with expertise in any of those fields.

The concept of looking at local goods and services is not limited to the island economic development group but has begun in other areas of the province as well. The search entails looking at services and commodities which have to be imported or which do not exist but are needed in a specific area.

Assistance and consultation is available through the ministry of industry and small business.

In addition, various colleges and universities are promoting workshops to explore the concept of community co-operative planning aimed at local production for local use.

Two spin-offs of the emergence of community co-operative planning are employment opportunities for residents as well as the ability to keep decision-making within the community.

For more information about the activities of Island Futures, write to Box 1382, Ganges.

GALIANO NEWS

Campaign considered against irresponsible hunting

By BASIL AND KATHLYN BENDER

On Monday evening of last week the Rod and Gun Club invited Galiano residents to meet with an impressive platform of speakers. Doug Janz, the regional wildlife biologist, and Gordon Prouse, the regional manager of fish and wildlife, came from Nanaimo; Ken Broadland, conservation officer, from Duncan; and Sergeant Mitch Hanks from Ganges RCMP completed the panel.

Frank Basarab, president of the Rod and Gun Club, who acted as chairman, explained that the meeting had to be called at short notice and this may have accounted for the attendance of 40 compared with 100 at the previous meeting. However, the paucity of members was compensated for by the frank discussion with the common aim of alleviating the problem of irresponsible hunting.

It was agreed that a strong campaign should be launched just before the hunting season begins next fall. The co-operation of the Galiano public is particularly important. All Galiano residents must be reminded of the hunting regulations and other statutes that might be used to prevent irresponsible hunting. These could be given prominent publicity in Driftwood.

Large, clearly lettered signs should be posted to warn hunters as they disembark from the ferry at Sturdies Bay and Montague. Citizens must alert a conservation officer or the police immediately they observe any infraction even if this occurs during the hours of darkness. The reporting of vehicle licence numbers is most important, especially if the truck or car contains an antlerless deer carcass.

The Rod and Gun Club made one proposal that was felt to have a good chance of being accepted in time for the next hunting season. This was the abolition of the antlerless hunting period. It is during these two weeks that the worst offences occur.

African experience

Dr. Kingscote's daughter Phoebe, who with her husband Pierre is a missionary pilot in Africa, sent an interesting letter from Zaire where they are presently serving. While flying they have observed big game animals on the ground below, but recently Phoebe had a closer encounter.

One day a hippopotamus took off the side of a neighbour's house by rubbing against it, perhaps to alleviate an itchy skin. On another occasion Phoebe decided to clear away some of the "jungle" surrounding their house, but when she saw a three-inch-thick snake sliding off she immediately postponed any further investigation.

Water is caught in any kind of container. Darkness comes sharply at six o'clock, as does sunrise at 6 am, all through the year at a place so near the equator. With no electricity the family sit around the oil lamp on the table each evening. Galiano people who remember Jacob, the toddler of the family, will be amused to learn that his constant companion is now a baby chimpanzee who is at about the same stage of development.

Jacob is transported in a bamboo carriage on his mother's back when she rides her bicycle to the nearest small town which has three stores. Shoppers carry a small container of water for testing eggs, all flour must be sieved as a cupful usually yields a tablespoon of beetles. Phoebe is learning the local dialect, Bangalia, in order to communicate with her African cook.

Parker Island

Louis Lindholm of Rampart Estates has proposed to the Advisory Planning Commission that it support his application to have Parker Island, between Montague Harbour and Trincomali Channel, rezoned from Forest to Rural Residential 2. The effect of this rezoning would be to reduce minimum lot size from 20 to 10 acres and to allow guest cottages on each of the 40 lots thus created.

When the Galiano community plan was being drawn up in the early 70's, consensus was that there already was congestion in the Montague area because of the presence of the provincial park, the ferry terminal and the marina, and that it was therefore inadvisable to allow Parker Island to be developed. The subdivision of Gossip Island had illustrated the problems that could be encountered for at Whaler Bay during the summer there is inadequate parking for cars and insufficient wharfage for boats. The owner of Parker Island registered no objection at the time the community plan was being drawn up and it was already zoned Forest when Mr. Lindholm bought the island.

A previous application for rezoning was made in 1981 by Reid Properties but was turned down by Islands Trust. As Reid Properties could not complete its financial commitment, the island reverted to Rampart Estates, of which Mr. Lindholm is the principal shareholder. During the past four years only one of 20 lots has been sold and Mr. Lindholm feels that 10-acre lots might be more acceptable to prospective purchasers.

He bases his argument for rezoning on the principle that Parker Island is not viable for silviculture and the property is much more suitable for recreational use and residence. The tax position of the property is inequitable. Taxes are more than 20 times what they are on equivalent areas of MacBlo property on Galiano which are similarly zoned. An attractive subdivision plan has been drawn up with a number of areas, including the best beach on the tumbolo, dedicated for public park. Some wharves would have to be built but Mr. Lindholm does not believe that these would interfere with harbour traffic. He contends that the subdivision would contribute to life on Galiano by providing business for tradesmen and commercial outlets.

Members of the Advisory Planning Commission were very concerned with the problem of parking at Montague, which would be aggravated if property owners on Parker were to arrive by car and then cross to their property by boat. Mr. Lindholm promised to address this problem before proceeding with his plans. Should the application go to the Trust a public meeting will be held to allow residents to express their concerns.

St. Margaret's Church

Last Wednesday morning the Altar Guild and flower committee of St. Margaret's held their annual general meeting in the new Sunday School Hall. Ena Hooley was elected president for a second term while Mary Harding and Frances Druce remain as secretary and treasurer respectively. Margaret Edgar will be the new flower convener.

The guild's main objective for 1985 will be to obtain a new credence table together with the completion of the green altar hangings. Mary Reader agreed to make purple velvet antependia.

Following a refreshing cup of tea the guild members were shown how to make dried flower arrangements for the altar vases by Galiano florist Aini Haksi. The meeting closed with the presentation of spring blossom branches to honorary members Lil Phillipson and Ivy Morshead, and to Aini Haksi in appreciation.

Duplicate bridge

Mayne Island duplicate bridge players last Wednesday invaded Galiano and routed their hosts in a very enjoyable contest. Led by admiral Allan Steward, the attacking force, conveyed by captain Bob George, concentrated their assault in the South Community Hall. Forty players engaged in the cut and thrust of duplicate bridge for four hours.

Despite being bribed with liquid refreshment the Mayne liners showed no mercy. First in the East-West position were Pat Patterson and Cobi Raymer followed by Dick and Fran Tipple. In the North-South position John Coates and Margaret Ellison were first with Galiano's Audrey Cook and partner in second place. Both sides vowed to renew the contest if a suitable occasion can be found. The Galiano contingent had as non-playing captain Bea Thompson, who convened the occasion.

Fire department meeting

The annual general meeting of the South Galiano Fire Department was held on Saturday afternoon in the Community Hall. The usual sparse turnout was a disappointment to the committee and not very encouraging to the volunteers who devote so much time to safeguarding their neighbours' property. The meeting was unable to elect a president who will be chosen later by the directors.

Other officers are Victor Zala, vice-president; Dorothy Hansom, secretary; Marion Williams, treasurer. Directors are Gordon Hodson, Norman Park, Bill Sashaw, Helen Hoole and Dora Darling. There was discussion of cutbacks in the fire academy and courses available to train volunteers. This is naturally discouraging to fire chiefs and other personnel.

The Women's Auxiliary reported a successful financial year. Their contribution of over $4,000 had allowed the department to purchase five sets of safety firefighting equipment and a new storage tank, and to pay for painting and maintenance at the fire hall. The officers of the auxiliary are Helen Hoole, president; Esther Diehl, vice-president; Wyn Stephen, secretary and Dora Darling, treasurer.

Coming events

Tomorrow (Thursday) Ian Hooley Sr., president of Galiano Players, invites all members to a meeting at 7:30 pm in the activity centre meeting room to discuss future productions.

This Saturday those who are not booked for haggis and Scottish dancing at North Galiano may like an English night of roast beef and Yorkshire pudding with an opportunity to meet Her Majesty, Queen Carolyn, at the Hummingbird Inn.

A group of Galiano senior citizens returned last Friday from an invigorating short holiday at Reno and are now ready to hold their regular monthly meeting at 2 pm on the first Monday in Page Drive Lounge to discuss spring projects.

The Galiano Spinners and Weavers are starting their 14th year of activity on Thursday, Feb. 7 at C VU, Highland Road, from 1 until 3 pm. Visitors and new members are welcome.

Gardeners will be happy with the increasing length of day so that they can begin work in the garden and also enjoy their 1985 roster of attractive monthly topics at Garden Club meetings which are held on the second Wednesday of each month at 1:30 pm in the North Community Hall. The first meeting will be held on February 13 when Chris Schmah will speak on water gardens. Please support the show-bench.

The annual general meeting of the Galiano Island Housing Society will be held in the lounge of Page Drive on February 17 at 2 pm. Members of the public are invited to attend, but only members of the society are entitled to vote on motions and in the election of three directors. Membership fee is $1.

Sabbatical leave

The Bengers are taking sabbatical leave from writing Galiano news after this issue of Driftwood. Kathy Sharp has agreed to co-ordinate the column. This means that Kathy will accept reports (preferably typed, double-spaced and concise) from any Galiano organization or individual who would like their news to be included in the Galiano column.

The deadline for receiving reports and notice of coming events is 5 pm Saturday. Notices may be phoned in to 2406 or reports delivered to Lot 5, Robson Way, which is at the end of Gardner Road, joining Sturdies Bay Road at Centennial Park.

Down Through the Years with Driftwood

Twenty Years Ago

Plans for a Centennial project on Salt Spring Island would be sorted out by the provincial centennial authority. Tom Portlock, president of the Chamber of Commerce, had asked the provincial authority to rule on the possibility of two projects on the island. Plans had been made to create a park at the boat basin in Ganges while the Fulford Hall group was in the process of seeking a project as well. Portlock was concerned about the minimal amount of money available to the island for having to fund two projects.

Driftwood, in a front-page eulogy, noted the death of Sir Winston Churchill at 90 years of age.

The Pender Queen would be calling at Ganges for two months in the summer. B. C. Ferries announced. She would arrive in the afternoon and leave for the Outer Islands about a half hour later.

The B. C. Hydro truck was saved from serious damage by a B. C. Tel pole. The truck went out of control and left the Fulford-Ganges Road only to be saved by the pole. No one was injured in the incident.

Bea Hamilton reported from Fulford that strips of waterproof adhesive tape stuck to the soles of shoes or rubbers could prevent accidents in slippery weather.

The student council at the high school sponsored a dance and 125 young people showed up to dance to the music of the Nite Lites. But a power failure forced curtailment of the activity. And a trail ride sponsored by the student council was snowed out. The council promised to finish the events when the weather improved.

Fifteen Years Ago

The budget of the Gulf Islands School Board for 1970 stood at $750,000. The trustees had budgeted for $70,000 more than the ministry of education allowed. If 100 taxpayers objected to the amount the budget would have to go to referendum. In re-checking the figures, the trustees managed to reduce the budget by a total of $50.

John Tisdalle, MLA for Saanich and the Islands, joined the call for an exemption of the requirement of 66-foot right-of-ways for highways on the islands. He had visited Galiano Island and agreed with residents that wide highways were not needed on the islands.

Papajohn reported from Saturna that two children of that island had won the top prizes in a calendar-art contest run by IODE chapters across the province. First place went to Mary Jane Davidson, 6, while her sister Jennifer came second.

At Pender Island, George Pearson was up until 2 pm writing letters of thanks to those who donated money to the CARE Tree. Edith Pearson counted the money and the couple had managed to raise $1,400. Each dollar donated would supply $7.50 worth of food for the hungry, Pearson reported.

When A. D. Hedger of Ganges went fishing in Desolation Sound, he managed to catch a 40 lb. spring salmon.

The deep, wide ditches along the highways of Salt Spring Island had caused critical comment from the Chamber of Commerce. Roads foreman Hector Gerow explained that the crews, when the weather improved, would be busy putting shoulders along the roads and when the work was completed, the ditches would not be so wide and deep.

Fire Chief J. E. Money of Saturna Island explained that the fire department had raised $5,306.49 toward a new fire hall. But they did not yet have sufficient funds for the project and would continue to raise money, he added.

Ten Years Ago

A 4-H sheep club was formed on Salt Spring. A group of 12 young people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Harkema to set things rolling. They selected Andy Roberts as president, Ian Kyle as vice-president, Donna McFadyen as secretary and Mark Harkema as treasurer. The group planned various activities for the year as well.

Papajohn reported from Saturna that the lady bridge players took on the men and "swamped, wonked and beat them horribly." One of the men, the best of their players, won the booby prize which was a book on how to play bridge.

The Salt Spring Queen was put on the Fulford-Swartz Bay ferry run because of low tides. The vessel was low in the water and at low tides the landing at Otter Bay on Pender Island became dangerous to traffic. The ramp had to be at too steep an angle to reach the small vessel.

The pupil-teacher ratio in the Gulf Islands schools stood at 17.91 according to a report from the ministry of education. There were 858 children enrolled and 47.9 full-time equivalent teachers in the classrooms. The report also noted that the Gulf Islands School District was the fifth smallest in the province.

B. C. Ferries and the B. C. Ferries Officers' Union reached a contract agreement ending many months of negotiations. Union president Ian MacLean signed the agreement for the officers. The union took in masters, ship's officers and engineers.

An exchange student from Australia, Lynette Beasey, was greeted on Salt Spring by the island's Rotary Club. President Dick Toynbee introduced the young lady who would be spending a year on the island to complete her final year of high school.

The subdivision bylaw for Salt Spring would be the subject of a public meeting. The bylaw had been revised by the planners of the Capital Region because it could not contain stipulations for average sized lots as called for in the official community plan. The provincial government would be asked to change certain acts to allow for the averaging principle.

Five Years Ago

Parents of school children at Pender Island did not want the school to become "a focus of dissension." One group of parents had petitioned the school board to be allowed to drop into the classrooms to ensure that student-teacher relationships were educationally sound. Another group of parents expressed satisfaction with the school environment as it was but suggested minor improvements in some areas.

Salt Spring should not be part of the transit levy area, claimed regional director Yvette Valcourt as well as MLA Hugh Curtis. But CRD chairman Jim Campbell of Saturna opposed the exclusion of Salt Spring because he said it would set a precedent for other areas to opt out of the scheme to finance public transportation.

Residents of Galiano Island gathered to select a representative to the Advisory Planning Commission for the island. Nominated for the position were Mimi Wishart, Jill Penny and Sarah David. Wishart was the successful candidate. Bill Duncan, island representative to the Islands Trust, talked about the strengths and weaknesses of that body.

A new site for the proposed health care unit on Pender Island would be found. The proposed site was in the agricultural land reserve and an application to use it for the health unit had been turned down by the land commission. To appeal the decision would take too long, said Gordon Wallace, and the unit was needed as soon as possible. The group which was active in pursuing the health unit idea had several other locations offered to them.

Tests on six chickens from Salt Spring farms revealed 0.5 parts per million of polychlorinated biphenyls (PCB). Tom Gossett explained that the fat from the six birds had been combined because the officials of Agriculture Canada did not think there would be a sufficiently large sample otherwise. The United States limit for PCB was three parts per million.

Proposed definition change has resort owners worried

A proposed change to the zoning bylaws by the Salt Spring Island Trust Committee has resort owners worried about possible legal action against them as well as loss of revenue for winter months.

The Trust is considering adopting a revised definition for transient accommodation. The proposed bylaw amendment was tabled at last week's meeting to allow the Salt Spring Chamber of Commerce to comment on it.

The change in definition results from a concern by the Trust that units at the various resorts might become used as permanent residences rather than for accommodation of travellers visiting the island.

The proposed definition reads: "Transient accommodation means a use providing for the temporary accommodation of travellers in a hotel, inn, lodge, hostel, motel, auto court, or campground, and bed and breakfast accommodation."

The current definition reads: "Transient accommodation means every hotel, inn, lodge, hostel, motel, auto court, multiple dwelling or other building used or intended to be used for temporary or intermittent accommodation."

That definition was added to the zoning bylaws in 1981.

The key phrase deleted from the proposed definition is "intermittent accommodation."

Resort owners currently rent units to island residents during the late fall, winter and early spring months. The units are reserved for tourists during the remainder of the year.

Under the current definition, the term "intermittent accommodation" covers such a use.

Ena Nemeth of Green Acres Resort told the Islands Trust meeting that the resort owners do not rent units by the month during the summer, when renting by the day increases income.

"We're not stupid," she told the members of the Trust committee, "even though you might think we are."

Jim Loiseau of The Last Resort pressed the committee to explain the reasons for the change.

He wanted to know if the Islands Trust was changing the definition in order to take resort owners to court if they rent on a semi-permanent basis for the winter months.

Trust chairman Mike Humphries said the change was meant only to clean up problems in the current definition which he described as a "bad definition of transient accommodation."

Loiseau referred to a court case in Saanich where a resort owner was found guilty of a breach of zoning bylaws because he rented on a permanent basis. A staff report which was used to come up with the revised definition also refers to the court case.

Judge W. L. Ostler, in 1979, ruled on the case with the comments that "applying the Golden Rule of statutory interpretation, that the expression 'transient' as used in the definition of 'tourist accommodation' in the bylaw, being a word of ordinary and general English usage, needs no further definition..."

"I find the defendant does not confine the use of its land to tourist accommodation and that the defendant is guilty."

A report on commercial zoning which covers tourist accommodation issued by the Islands Trust in February, 1984, listed an objective of the Islands Trust commercial accommodation committee as being "to avoid conversion of tourist accommodation facilities to permanent dwellings."

The report went on to note that a way to achieve that objective was through the "use of definition of 'commercial accommodation' which excludes permanent habitation."

In addition to the concern about possible legal action against resort owners, Loiseau pointed out that the judge had indicated that a month seemed a reasonable length of time to determine if use of the accommodation was indeed transient.

Loiseau gave as an example a work crew which came to Salt Spring for a project lasting two months. Would the resort owner be in breach of the zoning bylaw for renting accommodation to the crew for the full two months under the new definition, he wondered.

Disarmament group makes plans for 1985

Salt Spring Nuclear Disarmament Group met Saturday to discuss plans for 1985.

Sub-committees are being organized to deal with the nuclear issue on three levels—local, national and global—and in a variety of ways, according to spokesman Ray Newman.

Community education will concentrate on activities in the Gulf Islands area. Media education will investigate regional and national advertising possibilities. Networking is concerned with improving contacts with peace groups at home and beyond. Other committees are investigating "twinning" with a Russian community, a travelling "road show", and an organized letter-writing campaign.

"Public awareness is at an all time high," said Newman, "but there are still unanswered questions in the minds of many Canadians particularly as regards the 'Soviet Threat', the effects of military spending on the economy, the extent of our ties with the United States, and our role in NATO."

Enquiries or suggestions should be addressed to the group at Box 1500, Ganges or by phone to Maggie Schubart.

Concerns expressed

The concept of ponds drew concerns from people at the Islands Trust meeting but Schubart said that no area of the proposed subdivision seemed suitable for septic lagoons.

The meeting at Central Hall is part of an ongoing effort to keep the public informed about the proposed subdivision. Schubart has stated that public awareness and community acceptance of the plan will continue to be the aim of the developers.

The property is owned by Louis Lindholm, a lawyer from Victoria, and Brian Lawrence, a developer from Vancouver.

LEGION NEWS

By BETTY GALT

The Christmas and New Year's rushes are over, the snow has gone, the birds are singing again and it's time to move along into this new year of 1985.

The Ladies Auxiliary prepared the Burns Supper of January 25, and the old traditions were kept, the piper, the haggis and all.

We start the new year by welcoming back our president, Arthur Gale, who was away on family matters in the cold, cold East. Tom Campbell is in his new post as Sergeant-at-Arms.

Off-island meetings attended by Branch 92 delegates include the seminar at Sidney.

On February 17 the zone meeting in Chemainus will be attended by six voting members from Branch 92.

We have learned that the Sick and Visiting visits and Christmas gifts were much appreciated by both Greenwoods and Lady Minto.

The Tulip Committee is getting into high gear. Do you want bulbs? If so help us, for our 60th Anniversary, to have a flash of red Tulips across our land in 1986. Buy in '85 for '86.

Don't forget the dart tournament here February 9. Bridge, Crib and Shuffleboard players, please let me know of your club activities by phoning 537-2266. General Meeting, Branch #92 will be held February 4th. The General Meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Branch 92 will be held February 11.
