

Second Wind on jazz festival agenda

Jazz festival organizers issue call for volunteers

Prospects for this year's Salt Spring Island Jazz Festival look good enough that organizers have issued a call for more volunteers.

Libby Jones said last week that she has received numerous telephone requests for information and tickets from locations like Seattle, Victoria, Vancouver and points up and down Vancouver Island.

"The response has been phenomenal," she said. "It looks like we'll have more people (than anticipated), so we'll need more volunteers than we thought."

At present, organizers can call on about 20 volunteers for help. Jones estimates at least another 30 are needed, bringing the number of helpers needed to 50.

"We can always use more volunteers."

The Jazz Festival will be held August 21, 22 and 23 at the Farmer's Institute grounds on Rainbow Road in Ganges. Set to appear are Island City Jazz Band from Friday Harbour in the San Juan Islands, Salt Spring's Second Wind, Razz Ma Jazz from Vancouver, and Victoria's Dixieland Express.

The festival format will see Razz Ma Jazz featured at an evening dance on Friday, August 21, and Island City Jazz Band headline a Saturday night dance. All four bands will perform sets on Saturday afternoon.

In addition, a gospel church service featuring Second Wind and conducted by Rev. Al Skinner of Ganges United Church has been arranged for Sunday, August 23, beginning at 11 am. Later in the day, a jam session is scheduled.

Festival tickets range in price from $20 for a three-day pass to

Country and western show to be staged again next year

A smaller than expected turnout at this year's Salt Spring Island Arts and Crafts Country Music Festival will not deter organizers from holding the event again next year.

Salt Spring resident Reg Young, organizer of the August 1-2 event, said Wednesday he will stage another country and western music festival on the island next year.

Although a final tally is not yet in, Young said he estimates only 500 attended the festival. He had hoped to draw more than 1,000.

Young blames the lower-than-expected attendance on a number of factors. He pointed out, for example, that several events — including an old-timers' reunion and the Lions Club salmon barbecue — were also held on the same weekend.

"There was a lot going on that weekend on the island," he noted. "What really hurt us, though, was the burning of the Crofton dock. There are a lot of country and western (music) fans in the Nanaimo and Duncan area, so they couldn't get over here that easily. It really hurt our profit margin."

"We'll go for it again next year," he continued. "We're going to plan it for a different weekend, though."

Despite cancellation of the Crofton-Vesuvius ferry service and overloads on other B.C. Ferry Corporation vessels serving Salt Spring, Young said all bands slated to perform at the festival made it here.

"The crowd that was here had a good time," he added.

Ganges RCMP officers said early last week they had a relatively uneventful August 1 long weekend. Crowds at the country music festival were well-behaved.

Jazz lovers from islands travel to San Juan festival

BY KATHLYN AND BASIL BENGER

Editorializing

In two letters to the editor published in Driftwood on July 29 the subordinate writer of this column was accused of and reprimanded for editorializing. If that means reporting the facts, and then adding an opinion as a conclusion, then guilty as charged.

Galiano News is a strange journalistic animal. It has evolved considerably from the predominantly social column it was 10 years ago. It contains some orthodox reporting, some editorializing, reviews of cultural events, human interest items, occasional humour (we hope), nature notes, sports reporting and a great deal of free advertising for Galiano organizations and clubs.

The publisher and I have not always seen eye to eye on the subject of editorializing and censorship, but he is tolerant. There is no job description and no direction on what to write—no heavy hand of an owner-publisher dictating an approach to the news. I suspect that he will continue to give me a free hand unless the community demands a change.

I consider myself to be a conglomerate; part reporter, part editor, part columnist with a few other roles thrown in. My model for Galiano News is Jean Lockwood's green sheet, The Gulf Islander, although I lay no claim to her excellence. Jean was never afraid to speak her mind—to editorialize and even to moralize. The Galiano News is, in some ways, a newspaper within a newspaper, yet it is too small to have an editorial column. Most readers by now know my biases, and although I do my best to present two sides of an issue, I no doubt fail at times to be fair.

That the publisher allows me this liberty is, I believe, greatly to his credit. I reject attributing to him the baser motive of stifling competition. No, I think Tony Richards is altruistic, and the people of Galiano should appreciate the convenience of

galiano report

having Galiano News without the hassle of producing it themselves. Should the publisher or the community reject this concept I shall, with no ill feeling or regrets, relinquish the labour and responsibility of writing Galiano News.

San Juan Jazz Festival

On Sunday, July 26, a group of jazz lovers from Galiano, Pender and Saturna were passengers on Bob George's Hornet en route to San Juan Island and the Eighth Annual Dixieland Jazz Festival at Friday Harbour.

The group listened to four of the bands, each playing in a different location. At the outdoor sites fans with gaily coloured umbrellas paraded the aisles to the beat of the music. The day started with a gospel band and church service. The highlight was a band from Munich, Germany, Allotria, with a driving style in both vintage and pop arrangements.

On the return voyage a stop was made at Bedwell Harbour for customs and refreshments. Thanks are due to the Dunns for organizing the trip and to the Georges for supplying transportation.

Fiesta Fun

August 1 dawned as it always does—fine and sunny. Galiano Lions, among their other virtues, have the ability to pick one of the best days of summer for their annual Fiesta.

The Fiesta Parade, marshalled by cowboy Arthur Wood (looking like a younger version of the Great Cowboy of our good neighbour to the south) assembled his column of equestrians, trucks, floats and antique cars, moving them off from the Lodge to arrive at the Fiesta Grounds promptly at 10 am.

A crowd had already gathered by this time and began sampling the stalls for hamburgers, wieners, sushi, cinnamon rolls, pie and ice-cream. This year, in addition to the usual salmon barbecue, the Lions offered roast beef with trimmings.

There were brisk sales of non-edibles at stalls and in the Thrift Shop which remained open for several hours, and Bartering Bob's treasure emporium occupied more space than ever. Incidentally, Bob Knowles would like those who supplied him with goods on

Bowerman gets hole-in-one, Evans low net title

By MARY JOHNSON

PENDER ISLANDS — Elmer Bowerman scored a hole-in-one during men's day play on July 30. It was a real hot day and the clubhouse was filled with thirsty golfers, but Elmer says it was worth it. Congratulations, Elmer.

Amidst all the excitement over the hole-in-one, Alf Evans quietly captured both the morning and afternoon low net titles. Heinz Geister was closest to the pin on the sixth hole.

• In a July 19 junior tournament, Brendan Jacobson took the low gross trophy for entrants aged 14 years and younger and Sammy Boyte earned the low net trophy. In the 'over-14' category, Craig Steeves won low gross honours and Steven Neil low net.

• Winners in July 22 ladies' play were Ann Fairweather (low gross), Margaret Townsend (low net) and Margo Irving (hot putter, morning and afternoon rounds).

• Roe Preston won low net honours and the putt pot in the morning round on July 23, while Roy Outhet took the low net prize in the afternoon and Roger Shaw earned the hot putter prize.

• The Pender team won its second — and last — round against the Ardmore Ladies by 87 points. Team members were Mona Shaw, Janet Sinker, Marg Bowerman, Toni Belzer, Mary Johnson, Dorothy Henshaw, Marge Clark and Beth Stewart. Congratulations to one and all for making it such a fine day of golf and fun.

During play, Janet Sinker won the low gross title and Mona Shaw captured low net honours. Ardmore's Joyce McLaren won both the 'best putter' and 'longest drive' competitions.

• In the last report, I forgot to mention two members of the team which played Galiano in the broom tournament — Gwen Brown and Marion Henderson, who tied for the low net title.

Boser, Lawson married at the Saturna church

SATURNA ISLAND — Erin Boser and Steven Lawson were married at Saturna's church on July 18. Amid family and friends, the couple — both of whom grew up on the island — exchanged rings and vows. The ceremony was conducted by George Taylor, who asked the family and then the community to honour the new bond of love and commitment that had just been sanctified.

It was a friendly and happy marriage ceremony. The wedding party and the community members attended a lovely tea at the Community Hall.

Lots of people participated in the wedding. Jean Rich made the wedding gown; Pat Garth and local gardeners did bridal bouquets, corsages and floral arrangements; Ann Bavis opened her house to the wedding party; Dolly Howarth, Harvey Janszen, Larry Woods and Rick Dodds sang at the wedding service; and the Women's Club and Wendy and Laura Coombs catered the tea.

A lively dance filled the evening hours. Many people said it was the best island dance they had been to — the dance floor was full of dancing friends late into the night.

making plans for the fall fair. This year it will be held on the last Saturday of the month — August 29. Carol Money is the overall organizer.

Start coddling your prizes whatzits — one month of encouraging words and terms of endearment will make anything grow to prize-winning calibre.

• On July 28, there was a public meeting at the hall, called by our ferry representative. Taimi Hindmarch needed the input of islanders on several proposals made by the Ferry Corporation to suspend the 8:15 — 5:40 ferry run for the month of August and to eliminate the possibility of travellers from Saturna to Victoria from using the early-morning 6:15 sailing.

The 34 people at the meeting wanted both runs maintained and some felt the current schedule is the best we've ever had. At a subsequent meeting, Taimi's mandate was approved: the 6:15 sailing will stay and the 8:15 — 5:40 run will continue through August.

Building discussed at meet

PENDER ISLANDS — At the annual meeting in July of the Pender Islands Agricultural and Recreational Society, member Steve Wright delivered a three-phase proposal to study the feasibility of a multi-use building to serve the two islands.

The present accommodation on the islands is proving inadequate for the many events requiring space.

The feasibility study proposal was made by the consulting firm of Kanata Heritage and Preservation Company. The agricultural and recreational society voted in favour of commissioning Kanata to proceed with the study's first phase.

When the study is completed, the society and the steering committee for the project will be in a position to decide whether to continue with the project at the present time.

assignment to phone him at 5572. All this trade went on against a background of entertainment—band music, singing, games, pony rides and logging sports. One feature of this year's Fiesta was the number of children present and the variety of activities provided for them. The first prize in the raffle, a 30-ounce silver brick, was won by Sharon Cooperman of Vancouver, while Gwen Hammond of Galiano won the voucher for 100 pounds of beef.

On behalf of the community we thank Galiano Lions, not only for the delights of the Fiesta day, but for the many hours of hard work preparing for it—and for their goal of working solely to help others, especially B. C. Crippled Children.

Galiano Club

One of the more informative booths at the Fiesta was the one decorated by Keith and Debbie Holmes for the Galiano Community Club. The stall was dominated by Keith's large land-sea-scape of Active Pass, but viewers could admire a new crayon drawing of the Community Hall, also by Holmes. To refresh residents' memories about Galiano's re-cycling procedures, posters in large legible script gave pertinent details.

Later that evening the club ran a most successful dance at the South Community Hall. The next day the club sponsored the annual Thunderbug Races in Montague Harbour. For two hours a series of exciting races under the direction of 'Commodore of Conveniences,' Ken Mills, a Delta policeman, sorted out the competitors from a boat lent by the Calverlys with the aid of a PA system provided by Jim Ford. Eventual winner was Ken Macdonald of the Sidney RCMP, followed by Scott Rudolph and John Georgeson of Galiano. Meanwhile the spectators munched on hamburgers, hot dogs and T-bone steaks prepared by Shirley Coulter.

The next club event to be marked on the calendar is a Harvest Hoedown Supper and Dance to be held in the South Community Hall on August 29. In the meantime volunteers are needed to pick and freeze blackberries for the club's second annual Blackberry Festival to be held at Thanksgiving. This year the club plans to make this bigger and better than the very successful inaugural festival of last year. For information call Ella at 5377 or Kathy at 5702.

Coming Events

- This Saturday the monthly Book Sale of the WA to the SGVFD will be held between 2 and 4 pm in the South Fire Hall. Donations of paperbacks are always welcome.
- On Sunday, August 16, the Rev. Patrick Ellis will lead an Anglican Service and administer Holy Communion at St Margaret's Church at 11 am.
- On Tuesday and Wednesday, August 18 and 19, the unique Caravan theatre company will visit Galiano, with their four wagons drawn by Clydesdale horses and accompanied by five outriders. A big-top tent will be pitched on the Fiesta ground in which the 20 actors and stage crew will put on an original play entitled The Good Baby, by Governor General's Award winner Leon Rooke of Victoria. The play embodies masks, music and mystery and will start each evening at 8 pm. For tickets and information phone Holloway (2581) or Weiss (5063).

Fire Protection

During the hot days of late summer, when the woods are tinder dry, the risk of fire is at its highest. It is then that we are especially grateful to our volunteer firemen, at both the North and South ends of Galiano, for their willingness both to train regularly and to turn out quickly for a fire emergency.

We must also mention the fine work done by the Women's Auxiliary who, rain or shine, run the book sale every third Saturday of the month, and especially for their very lucrative annual fire sale. Since its inception in 1975, the auxiliary has raised more than $30,000 for the South Fire Department. After fitting the crew with walkie-talkies and pagers, the women's latest contribution is to fit out the crew with jackets and caps emblazoned with the insignia of the SGVFD.

At the WA raffle at the Fiesta, John Estlin from the Central Lions Club in Victoria won the hamper, the dinners for two donated by Galiano Lodge were won by Marjorie Phillips and Nancy Quist, while John Michaelson won a pair of figurines.

Golf News

The Ladies Day winners for the month of July for an assortment of achievements including low net, low gross, lowest putts, longest drive and closest to pin were Betty Steward, Phyllis Stafford, Ena Bickerton, Jackie Grist, and Ace Lantinga. July 21 was grandmother's day with prizes taken by Mary Munsie, Fern Nicholson, Doreen Stanton, Annelies Waldenmaier and Monica Campbell-Martin. Pender beat Galiano for the broom.

The Eclectic for July was won by Arla Saare for 18 holes and Annelies Waldenmaier for nine holes. The two-ball foursome winners were Winnie Liver, who was accompanied by Ian Hooley, and Audrey Cook, whose partner was George Stephen.

Planting methods can save watering

your garden

by Chris Schmah

In last week's article, the closing paragraphs were lost due to space limitations—that is, I rambled on past my allocated room. What I was saying referred to my intention to carry on with some helpful approaches for dealing with dry weather and near-dry wells, in the column this week, so let's get under way with the job at hand.

If you wish to have a fairly full selection of shrubs and perennials, substantial amounts of water may be saved by creating beds that are more densely planted. A compact bed planted at optimal, or even over-close spacing, will reduce the demand for water by ensuring that all moistened soil is occupied by roots of your desired plants, and also by reducing the amount of water lost through evaporative losses and soil heating by exposure to the sun and winds. Dense foliage will keep the bed area and soil surface more humid and, hopefully, more moist.

One final benefit of denser plantings is the simplification of watering, as there is less area to cover, no water lost when travelling from plant to plant, and what water is applied is better utilized by the layers of roots that will literally fill the soil space; efficiency all over the place.

A secondary or parallel concept of this dense planting is the planting of annuals, perennials, trees and shrubs in combinations that will make use of the full depth of soil. Different plants have different rooting depths, and by mixing plants in proper combinations you can use every drop of water that gets applied. Layered or integrated planting in this manner provides a water-based equivalent to companion planting.

If you plant your summer lettuce, radishes and green onions under your currant bushes or blueberries, and if they are planted within the drip line of fruit or shade trees, then as you water the veggies, the excess or surplus water that flows through will go to the currants, and other deep roots. This concept will work for both ornamentals and vegetable plantings. In these arrangements, less frequent, deep soakings are of maximum benefit.

Both of the aforementioned aspects come to bear when gardeners build and use raised beds or boxes, where rich, organic soils are deep and moisture-retentive. These forms of vegetable gardens are considerably more efficient in their usage of water, as very little or none is wasted on paths and spaces between rows. Conventional gardens require more frequent waterings which have to fully wet the foliage before they start to moisten the soil, so it is easy to see that raised beds and boxes make better use of your water resources.

Winds can add to the plant's need for moisture, as low humidity and rapid air movement draw water away from plant tissues very rapidly. If you can stop or reduce the impact of the wind, by fencing or the planting of screening hedges, the bite of the desiccating winds can be minimized, and thus reduce the need for watering, to some extent.

Irrigation systems provide the gardener with a means to escape the drudgery of almost daily watering routines, dragging hoses around the yard, and doing grievous harm to shrubs, annuals and perennials which dwell in the edges of beds and borders where the snaking hose can whip them and inadvertently damage them so badly that they will need less water. Irrigation systems make more efficient use of water, as they apply it only and exactly where you want it to be.

Gardening methods can cut watering

Drip emitters or water-oozing drip-tapes place the water right on the soil surface, at the root zone where it will be absorbed directly by the needy plant. No weeds get watered, none is wasted on areas that aren't planted, and the foliage isn't unnecessarily wetted. It is good for the leaves to get an occasional shower, but every day is a waste, as all intercepted water is lost to evaporation. With drip emitters, each shrub or perennial can be given exactly what it needs; half a gallon for one and a full gallon for its neighbour. This makes optimal use of all water applied and will, over time, save you the cost of the system.

After several years of installing and working with these systems, it is easy to see that all plants really benefit from having an irrigation system giving them their water. With a water controller (often referred to as a water computer) the system is regulated to give the right amount of water, at the right time, in the right place; a most efficient use of the water resource. How many of us have left the hose running by mistake, returning after four hours to find a swamp where a flower garden used to be? And let's not forget the water bill.

Each yard has specific needs and each warrants its own design or combination of irrigation types, to make best use of water and money. There are several means or approaches to watering with an irrigation system and the technology is evolving in leaps and bounds, a boon for gardeners in the Gulf Islands.

One final, but key factor for successful gardening in our climate is the selection of drought-tolerant plants for a garden with lower moisture requirements. We all know that broom, lavender, junipers, pines, santolina, thyme, iris, yucca and a host of other plants are entirely drought-resistant once they are established, and several others will get by just fine with an occasional watering during the toughest parts of summer drought.

Shinichi Aiura

Student on return visit to the island

By MIKE TURKKI

In 1975, Shinichi Aiura was a 16-year-old Japanese exchange student on his first trip to Salt Spring.

Now, the 28-year-old is back for another visit — and this time, he's brought his family.

Shinichi, originally from Fukoka, Japan, came to Salt Spring 12 years ago, under the Rotary Club exchange program, to experience life in another country. While attending school on this island, he stayed with a number of host families, and developed a love for Salt Spring that he still feels.

A lot has happened to Shinichi since he left Salt Spring.

Returning to Japan after his stint as an exchange student, he went to the University of Tokyo. He earned a law degree from the institution, and also met his wife, Noriko. They now have a child, 16-month-old Hiromitsu.

Shinichi now works for the Industrial Bank of Japan as a legal officer. His special field is banking and securities regulation, and he enjoys it.

"Many people think it sounds like a boring job," he said, laughing.

Shinichi is obviously good at his work, because he earned a two-year scholarship at the Harvard Law School from the bank.

The former exchange student has half a year left in his Harvard studies, and will return there in September. After completing his schooling, he will likely go to Boston or Washington for a period of practical training.

"I'm enjoying it," he said. "My primary interest is business law, and Harvard is one of the best schools."

Shinichi, on Salt Spring for a couple weeks to look up friends such as Ann Foerster (one of the people he stayed with while a student here), said last week he is amazed at the changes that have occurred since his last visit six years ago.

"There have been a lot of changes in Ganges," he said. "I was really surprised."

Shinichi loves Salt Spring, particularly its scenery. If possible, he would like to work in British Columbia.

"My wish is that someday, I will have the opportunity to work in a Vancouver firm," he said. "The bank, you see, has a subsidiary here."

Twenty-five years ago

• In order to re-finance, float a $36,000 bond issue and produce a yearly improvement program, the North Salt Spring Waterworks District established a parcel tax for all property fronting on the water system. The tax was in effect for the 1962 tax year.

The tax, according to waterworks officials, was the only feasible way for the water district to resolve some rather serious financial problems. The district had the right to tax and did not need to hold a referendum on the matter.

• A 13-year-old novice salmon fisherman and a woman out-fished all the old-timers and experts at the Rod and Gun Club's annual fishing derby.

Richard Landrith of Concord, California, and his nephew Jack Russell of Long Harbour captured first prize with a 20-pound, 15-ounce spring salmon caught in Active Pass. Mrs. John Foubister, wife of the former Salt Spring Island school principal, caught the second largest fish — a nine-pound, two-ounce salmon.

Twenty years ago

• It was learned that the dormitory in Ganges might not be available for Outer Islands students when school started in September.

School District 64 had been negotiating for use of a private building. The building's owner, however, apparently changed his mind about the lease-purchase plan, and was asking for an annual rental of $4,200. The district had no other buildings available that could serve as a dormitory.

• Ethel French of Fulford Harbour was named the provincial government's representative on the Lady Minto Gulf Islands Hospital board.

French's term was two years. She took over the job from Joseph Bate, who had died recently.

• The Credit Union office in Ganges was closing.

The last transaction, according to credit union officials, would take place August 31. As of September, all business was to be conducted at the financial institution's head office in Sidney.

Fifteen years ago

• Two residents of Salt Spring volunteered to help with the cost of sewers in the village, even though they lived outside the designated area.

The two householders offered $800 towards the cost of establishing sewer service for residents who claimed they couldn't afford it. The donors explained that they lived along Ganges Harbour and that the lack of sewers in Ganges was threatening their enjoyment of local waters.

• Five candidates were vying for the right to represent Saanich-and-the-Islands in an August 30 election.

Jack McKenzie of Millstream Road in Victoria (independent), Malcolm Anderson (Liberal), Hugh Curtis (Progressive Conservative), T. Foster Isherwood (Social Credit) and Eric Sherwood (New Democratic Party) had all filed nomination papers for the upcoming election.

• Unidentified flying objects over the Gulf Islands?

Recent nights had brought reports of bright lights over the islands. One report described a bright moving light over Galiano, with an apparent beam of light over the water. Several were also seen over St. Mary Lake. Driftwood was told the lights were probably meteorites.

Ten years ago

• The owners of malfunctioning sewage tanks in Ganges were given an additional three weeks to have the problems with their waste disposal systems corrected.

Dr. A.S. Arneil, regional medical health officer, gave the extra time to approximately a dozen violators of the Health Act. Regional director George Heinekey said that owners of disposal systems that have not been repaired will be charged with offenses under the Act. He added, though, that if a sewer system was established for Ganges, charges would be dropped.

• The long, hot summer might have been a boon to the Gulf Islands' tourism industry, but the weather was creating problems for homeowners drawing their drinking water from wells.

Many wells were reported low or dry. On Salt Spring, one well-drilling company official said he had drilled five new wells on the island in a week. On Galiano, four wells in the island's south end were affected by an earthquake that caused their filling rates to drop.

Five years ago

• It was suggested that Salt Spring voters might be given the chance to speak out on the fate of the Saturday morning Ganges market.

The island's parks and recreation commission decided to hold a straw vote on the issue in conjunction with civic elections. The questions were to be prepared by Yvette Valcourt, Capital Regional District director, and commission member John Crofton.

Dr. Hugh Borsman, who had been attempting to find a solution to the problems of the market, resigned his seat on the commission over the matter.

• Pender Islands telephone subscribers were told they might be facing a rate increase in October.

B.C. Telephone reported that the Pender exchange had grown to the point where it exceeded the current rate grouping. The company was required by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission to indicate when an area had exceeded its rate grouping.
