

Let's move it...

When the vegetables have been picked, they have to be sold and neither snow nor sleet nor the record-breaking rainfalls of last Saturday will keep the farmer from getting to market. Alan Hedger (centre) and Harry Bapty (right) had their produce ready for Frank McKenna when he came shopping at the Farmers' Market in Ganges.

School board hopefuls offer policy platforms

The field of candidates for two Salt Spring Island seats on the Gulf Islands school board has dropped from five hopefuls to four.

Margaret Morris was removed from the list of potential trustees when her name could not be found on the local electoral list. Morris could not be reached for comment.

The people running for school board seats now include incumbents David Eyles and Burt Beitel, and challengers Charles Bazzard and Murray Shoolbraid.

Both Bazzard and Shoolbraid believe they can contribute to the school board system even though neither has served on boards in the past.

Bazzard, who attended the monthly school board meeting November 2, believes he can bring a background of experience which would be useful to the board at this time. He sees the expansion of the secondary school on Salt Spring as a "critical" step that should be addressed as soon as possible.

As general manager of the Maracaibo development, Bazzard says he has gained experience in planning, development and construction. He also says his background in banking (he was a bank manager for 15 years) has provided him with experience in preparing financial statements and budgets, and given him an understanding of fiscal responsibility.

Bazzard has two children, in Grades Four and Six at Fernwood Elementary School. While he has not formulated specific directions on the system, he feels it is the schools' role to initiate programs that challenge students to develop as individuals. After soccer

Parks budget needs hinge on referendum

Last spring, approximately 700 Salt Spring Island baseball players took to the field on local diamonds. The summer months saw more than 200 children participate in swimming lessons, while over 150 people took part in various tennis programs. As soccer gets underway, it's estimated that 200-plus islanders are participating in the sport.

Members of the Salt Spring Parks and Recreation Commission say these numbers — which continue to rise — are representative of the high number of islanders who participate in local recreational activities. By adding those counts to the tabulation of people who enjoy use of local parks, the commission feels its mandate to maintain recreational facilities and programs on Salt Spring touches a large part of the community.

On November 19, community taxpayers will be asked to vote on a 1.5 mil increase to the commission's budget, providing it an additional $48,000.

A 1.5 mil increase will cost the owner of a $100,000 home an additional $15 per year. It would bring the total tax cost to $25.80 per $100,000 assessment, and take place after more than a decade of only $6 in tax increases.

Commission members say that the proposed tax rise reflects increased maintenance costs in areas such as the Centennial Park washrooms, the need for a full-time recreation director and added responsibilities for all.

The commission believes it constitutes the body most suited to acquire responsibility for areas such as the Linear Park in Ganges, the Grace Point boardwalk, Baders, Fernwood and Vesuvius beaches, and Weston Lake. With an increased budget, the commission intends to maintain those areas, provide toilet facilities at local beaches, replace the water-logged floats at Cushman Lake and provide a boat launching facility in the Fulford area.

Approximately $18,000 of the proposed $48,000 increase is ear-

APPLICATION FOR A WATER LICENCE
Water Act (Section 8)
I, Ronald J. Teale, of 331 Lang Rd., P.O. Box 1474, Ganges, B.C. V0S 1E0, hereby apply to the Comptroller of Water Rights for a licence to divert and use/store water out of St. Mary Lake which flows west to Stuart Channel and discharges into Stuart Channel and give notice to all persons affected.

The quantity of water to be diverted or stored is 500 gallons a day for an average 3 bedroom house. The purpose for which the water will be used is for domestic (household) use. The land or mine which the water will be used is Lot 1, Plan 16774, Section 11, Range 15, Land District 16. A copy of this application was posted on October 31, 1988, at the proposed point of diversion or site of the dam and on the land or mine where the water is to be used and two copies will be filed in the office of the Water Recorder at Water Management Board, 2569 Kenworth Rd., Nanaimo, British Columbia. Objections to this application may be filed with the said Water Recorder or with the Comptroller of Water Rights, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C. V8V 1X5, within 30 days of the serving of a signed copy of the application.

Education 347

Are you a Closet Writer?
Hidden away among the old socks do you have:
* the great Canadian novel?
* a hot romance?
* a poem that will change the world?
* a play that makes 'Cat on a Hot Tin Roof' look like a vicarage tea party? (sorry, James).
OR - in order to put off writing the above, do you:
* sharpen your pencil 10 times?
* Update your Xmas card list?
* Make sure your desk is REALLY tidy first?
* clean the closet?
HELP IS AT HAND!
A writers (yes, that's you) group is being formed for support, fun, information and (dare mention it) writing!

marked for a full-time program director (as well as facilities management and support services). Traditionally, recreational programs on Salt Spring have been directed by volunteers. The commission does not want to eliminate this practice, but rather, in the face of growing recreational needs and participants, to hire an overall coordinator. Such a step, commission members say, would allow them to devote more time to policy and planning matters.

While summer recreational programs — including day camp and aquatic programs — would continue under the organization of a program director, his or her service would extend through the winter months.

Summer recreational program director Sandi Geiger listed the following programs as potential winter activities: pre-school and youth gymnastics; after-school day care at elementary schools; arts and crafts for children; cooking instruction; first aid; organized sports such as floor hockey and cycling; teen leadership groups; Red Cross babysitting; community events; workshops; and family-oriented activities and recreation.

The commission's financial dire straits became apparent to the community last March, when it could allocate only a fraction of grants requested by local recreation organizations.

Requests for money came from ball groups, old age pensioners, square dancers and volleyball players. Of a total $12,314 requested, only $1,675 was granted, with a further $3,325 placed in a contingency fund.

Since that time, bi-weekly commission meetings have seen members turn down further requests for funding and discuss, at great length, the expenditure of even minor amounts of money.

As commission chairman Phil Hume states, failure of the community to approve the budget increase will force the commission to let go of some responsibilities. The body would be unable to maintain trails or boardwalks, for example. It would likely be unable to keep Centennial and Portlock parks green during the summer months; flowers in Centennial Park flower boxes could not be guaranteed.

Hume says the commission cannot continue to depend on volunteer labour and donations which have, in the past, provided the community with items such as flowers in the park.

Areas of Portlock Park are in desperate need of upgrading, Hume says, and without the necessary draining and re-seeding (a $20,000 project) the park will not be available for year-round use.

Other areas, such as float and beach facilities and accesses, will also suffer.

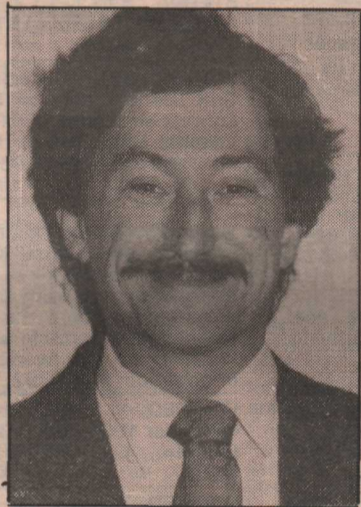

"It just gets to the point where you can't do all these things."

and scouts, he says, there is little for local students to look forward to, other than driving around town. He believes the community should be involved in addressing the issue, but that the school system should function as an instigator.

Bazzard, who has been involved with a number of service and planning organizations on Salt Spring, says he has no argument with the present incumbents.

Shoolbraid also offered no opposition to the direction taken by the present school board; he feels, however, that he could bring "new blood" and "another perspective" to the group of trustees.

A self-described "seasoned educator," Shoolbraid has taught in modern language departments at the University of British Columbia and at Simon Fraser University. He tutors mostly high school students in English, Math, French and History.

"Having had what I consider a good education," Shoolbraid says, "I want to do my bit to see others do, too."

Shoolbraid, who is the secretary of the Salt Spring Planning Association and has two children attending the high school, is reluctant to make promises or statements regarding the direction he would like to see the school board take. He feels it is important to "play things by ear," learning on the job and addressing each issue as it arises.

Shoolbraid sees himself as putting energy back into a system that treated him well.

Incumbent Eyles hopes to continue putting energy into a board with which he has served the past five years.

Elected as chairman for the past two years and vice-chairman the year prior to that, Eyles feels he can take some credit for the harmonious functioning of the board under his chairmanship.

"It takes awhile to . . . come to grips with the system and the way it operates," Eyles said. "I feel I am making a contribution to it, and I would like to continue to do so."

Like all taxpayers, Eyles says, he is concerned that tax dollars be spent efficiently, while students receive a sound education. He feels the local school district should strive for excellence and that with the number of talented people in the community it should attain recognition for excellence in specific areas.

In conjunction with his desire to involve the community in the education system, Eyles was an instigator in calling public meetings to discuss the Ganges school site proposal.

"I always try to remember that as a trustee, I represent the community," he said.

If Beitel is re-elected, 1988 will mark his fourth consecutive term on the school board. He says his reasons for running for the seat this year have not changed since 1980 and revolve around his three children, who are presently in Grades Eight, Nine and Eleven at the high school.

Beitel feels the "challenge of education of our young people is an ongoing proposition."

Beitel says he continues to see the role of a trustee as that of a custodian or guardian elected to ensure young people receive the best possible education for the money spent from the public purse.

Furthermore, he feels a school trustee should function as a "peace-maker" or mediator among the provincial government, professionals and parents. Beitel says that during the past six years the board has made a genuine effort to deal with the teaching and non-teaching staff in a responsible way.

Beitel also says he does not feel he should promise "pie in the sky for everyone." If re-elected, he says, he will "work towards an educational environment where everybody wins."

Salt Spring Islanders will take to the polls on November 19. Aside from electing two school board trustees, they will be asked to send two people to the Islands Trust, and to vote on an increased tax rate for the Parks and Recreation Commission.

Central Hall reconditions historic stage fire curtain

By BEVIS WALTERS

For many years prior to the middle 1960s, the Salt Spring Players were an important part of the cultural life of Salt Spring. The group then became dormant until the early 1970s, when it was decided a revival was in order.

To raise start-up funds, a summer festival of plays was planned to cover five consecutive weekends. Included in the five plays was Salt Spring Madness, written by Lou Rumsey with further development by Ray and Virginia Newman. Also featured were a melodrama written by Gwen Hindmarsh, a burlesque fashion parade written and produced by Lou Rumsey and Mary Williamson (who was also the commentator), and a Victorian-style music hall produced by Margaret Cunningham.

Shortly before the first performance was to be held at Central Hall, a routine fire inspection revealed there was no fire curtain, and a "cease and desist" order was served. Either a fire curtain had to be installed or the shows would not go on.

As there was no money in the budget of either the Players or the Central Hall Committee, there was great consternation by both parties. Someone suggested passing around the hat, which was done, and enough money was raised to purchase the needed material — but not enough was left over to cover making the curtain.

Enter a kind-hearted cobbler in Ganges, who did the necessary stitching. Irene Wright and family, aided by Mary Williamson, did the preparation and background painting while committee members and some of the Players hustled around Ganges and sold advertising panels on the curtain itself. These sold for $5 for small spaces and $7.50 for larger ones. Advertising sales were good — they more than covered the costs — so the curtain was installed and the shows went on as scheduled.

The five shows proved to be popular, with ticket sales exceeding expectations. When it was all over, there was enough money available to give the Players a substantial financial base, allowing them to grow with the years. Today, they are an important part of the cultural life of the community.

Meanwhile, in 1970 Central Hall (built in 1895) was in need of substantial repairs, which were carried out and paid for by several money-raising efforts, including government grants and donations from the Lottery Fund.

During these alterations, the fire curtain was removed from its position on the proscenium, rolled up and stored.

As the stage in Central Hall was no longer used as a stage, the curtain was not needed and so remained rolled and stored. Sometime during this period, a small animal selected it for a nursery and raised a family in it — presumably with great comfort to themselves, but with disastrous results for the curtain.

Fortunately, the damage is all at one end, and Central Hall secretary Tom Holtby has undertaken restoration work which, it is hoped, will return the curtain to its original condition.

Once restored, the curtain will be displayed in the hall as a reminder of the persons and businesses who made up the life of Ganges almost 20 years ago.

HONDA INTRODUCES A BRIGHT NEW GENERATOR.

The EX1000. A portable generator that lets you run just about anything from lights to small power tools to a television. It runs on a reliable four-stroke engine that cuts fuel consumption without cutting power. Electronic ignition means that power is just a pull away, while special noise reduction features mean the EX1000 doesn't generate a whole lot of noise. So next time an outlet is more than an extension cord away, get yourself Honda's new EX1000. It's a very bright idea.

Help needed

Sir,
It's November already, and we at the Community Society are starting to put together our plans for this year's Christmas hampers. We are looking for volunteers to help with the telephoning, the shopping, the wrapping, the bagging, the packing, repairing and sorting the toys, and finally the delivering.

There is something for everyone who would like to become involved in this caring community effort. For those who cannot be involved as active volunteers, donations to make the whole thing possible are, of course, most welcome. We need used toys in good condition, non-perishable food stuffs, and most of all, financial help to purchase the goods that fill up the hampers.

The Christmas hampers, which are sponsored jointly by the Community Society, the Food Bank, Santa's Workshop, and the United Church, are intended for all those who may be facing a bleak Christmas this year: they may be lonely older folk, single mothers of small means, families out of work, anyone who, without this help, would have meagre hopes for a Christmas celebration. The hampers provide the makings of a Christmas dinner, plus some extra treats — and a friendly face at the door.

Anyone who would like to be a part of this community occasion, should contact the Community Centre, 537-9971. Thank you all.
MARY TOYNBEE,
BOB APPLETON,
Ganges.

Language

Sir,
Thank you for publishing an edited account of the North-western Esperanto Conference at White Rock. This article appeared a few weeks ago under the heading of Language Sessions.

I hope you will excuse my pointing out that the words "horse-drawn buggies" did not appear in the original account. You were not to know that the use of the word "carriages" was intentional. It referred specifically to one of those horse-drawn vehicles in which people of state travel.

It was in such a carriage that Zamenhof, the founder of Esperanto, was driven through the streets of Antwerp, Belgium, in 1911 on the occasion of the World Esperanto Congress. Many people lined the streets and at one point, a group of enthusiastic supporters dashed from the crowd, unhitched the horses drawing Zamenhof's carriage, and began to pull it themselves to the Congress headquarters. One of these was a young woman of the name of Alice Maier, who lives today on Galiano Island.

I mention this story about Zamenhof and Mrs. Maier as a tribute to the latter, who is a respected and dedicated Esperantist. She still uses Esperanto and attends language conferences. Her memories of that day in Antwerp 77 years ago are still very vivid.

Readers may be interested to know that Esperanto celebrated its 100th anniversary in 1987. In July of that year, some 6,000 people from 70 countries gathered in Warsaw for the 72nd World Congress. Esperanto was created by its author, Dr. Zamenhof, as a language for international communication. He first published his language project in July, 1887, in Warsaw.

Esperanto is quickly learned by anyone. It is an ideal introduction to learning another language, and proficiency in using it for correspondence and for travel may be reached in less than a month.

For information on a free postal course in Esperanto, please write to Wally Du Temple, 765 Braemar Ave., Sidney, B.C. V8L 3S1, or phone 656-5283.
DAVID MASSY,
Ganges.

Task force

Editor's note: The following is an open letter to Trust chairman Nick Gilbert, filed with this newspaper for publication.

This letter is addressed to you in the hope that you will regard it as yet another effort of the Chamber of Commerce to help the Trust advance the welfare of the island. In particular it sets out a proposal whereby the five per cent parks and waterfront dedications could be used more directly and more immediately to meet the recreational needs of the community.

The proposal is based on the concept that the Trust can and will accept cash in lieu of land in certain cases and that this cash can be used to partially allay the cost of maintaining and promoting the use of existing parks, trails, lake and ocean access.

Given that this concept is acceptable, the chamber proposes that the Trust, the Advisory Planning Commission, the Parks and Recreation Commission and the chamber, working together establish a task force to:

- take an inventory and produce a series of maps showing existing parks, parklands, trails and water accesses;
- develop a public information program to make people aware of the amenities that exist or could be developed; and
- develop a long-term strategy and program for the better utilization and maintenance of these valuable community assets and any assets the community might acquire in the future.

In concluding, I would reiterate that this proposal is presented in the hope that it will help the Trust meet its mandate and with the assurance that, if it is accepted, the chamber will work with you to bring it to a successful conclusion.
JACK CHERRY,
President,
Chamber of Commerce.

Supportive

Sir,
I would like to express my thanks to the Community Arts Council for its generous support of the upcoming voice workshop with distinguished choral director Bruce Pullan. In my experience the Arts Council has always been eager and quick to support community arts events and, in fact, many events that we take for granted would not happen without their support.

So thanks once again to the Community Arts Council, and a reminder to the community that this special event happens at Mahon Hall on Sunday, November 13, from 12:30 pm to 3:30 pm.

BRUCE RUDELL,

Isolated

Sir,
I have been taking an internal poll of my thoughts and attitudes words in a book entitled The Spiritual Legacy of the American Indian.

in the quest of discovering what is it that makes one an "environmentalist," and what is it that turns others off to the issue? Is it the pushiness of some to attract attention to the seriousness of the issue?

An environmentalist is not threatened by survival itself as being a struggle, but rather sees the stunning generosity in nature, the beauty and unobtrusive power available to anyone open to it. Those who work with the gardens of the planet certainly have some sense of this in the autumn of the year. The care they have given to their earth over a number of months has brought forth fruit. Humankind and nature rightly have an intimate relationship. Full hearts everywhere overflowed at the spectacle of the man — whale love-in.

Joseph Epes Brown wrote these "Although humans were created last of all creatures, they are also the "axis," and thus in a sense the first — for if each animal reflects particular aspects of the Great Spirit, human beings, on the contrary, may include within themselves all the aspects. A human being is thus a totality, bearing the Universe within himself or herself and through the intellect having the potential capacity to live in continual awareness of this reality."

Certainly not an entity to feel sorry for, which is reflected in our stance for strong social welfare consciousness viewing this magnificent creation as a victim. A friend described to me the difference between two aboriginal men: one a native habitat — strong, beautiful, full of life, communicating non-verbally; the other sitting with head bowed, eyes infected, clothed, smelling of alcohol and smoke. The first carrying a nobility and joy for life: the other ashamed, a victim. The latter was in a mission where people existed on social welfare benefits and no longer made connection with the world of nature.

Aborigines had been seen by social services as victims, were treated accordingly and had adopted this behaviour. I checked my internal poll to ask, "To what degree do I rely on the welfare state, the comfort of the familiar? How do I see others — as potential victors or victims? Transferral of this wrong choice is devastating upon open innocence.

In closing, I read that "10,000 aspirins are swallowed each minute in New York City — mostly for headaches." Why is life such a headache. As a species bearing the Universe within, how could we have become so isolated from our environment? Wow.
GARY LUNDY,
Ganges.

School board budget—shuffle needed

The Gulf Islands school board will have to shuffle its budget allocations in order to secure funding for the Continuing Education program.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Mike Marshall told the board's November 2 meeting that the province has reduced the scope of its funding for the Continuing Education program.

In the past, the board has received a variety of grants from the government, allowing it to allocate $24,000 for Continuing Education in the 1987-88 budget. Marshall said they had no reason to believe grant allocations would be different this year.

However, the ministry of education is now directing grants into the adults in schools program rather than Continuing Education, making it necessary for the local school board to "squeeze" between $20,000 and $25,000 from the budget.

Secretary-Treasurer Ken Starling told the board the district would receive some of that money within the fiscal framework, but in a different format.

Starling said there was no question that the program will continue.

School board trustees assured parents of Salt Spring Elementary School children that measures would be taken to ensure greater safety in the front entrance area of the school.

Members of the elementary school's parents group have asked for an extension of the sidewalk which travels from Rainbow Road up to the vehicle turn-around area.

An extension of the sidewalk would help eliminate the potentially dangerous mixture of vehicles and children, by designating a walking area, the parents said.

The board said efforts to extend the sidewalk had been stalled by the lack of available workers. They said the project would get underway within the next week.

Responding to a request made by a Fulford resident, school trustees agreed to put the word out to island service clubs regarding the need for bus shelters.

Glenna Berry wrote to the board, describing the need for some sort of shelter for children waiting for school buses. The local Rotary Club has donated three such shelters to the island, and the school board hopes others might follow suit.

As plans for the Bridging Gaps seminar (tentatively scheduled for February 4) continue, organizers are looking for a facilitator who can focus on Gulf Island issues.

The GISS parents group received a $2,500 grant from B.C. Tel to stage the seminar, which will focus on bridging the gaps between various Gulf Island groups.

The core organizing group is hoping to find a facilitator for the event who can come to the community prior to the seminar date and speak with various teachers and students. Organizers want this individual to have a special feel for strengths and weaknesses particular to the Gulf Islands.

If the workshop is on drug abuse, trustee Charles Hingston told the board, people want to hear about what is happening locally.

Local school bus drivers are interested in holding a bus drill to teach children emergency procedures, the school board learned last week.

The proposed drill would teach students — class by class — how to react in a variety of potential emergency situations. The bus drivers are also interested in involving parents and teachers in the learning process.

 I was suddenly and acutely aware of my northern pallor. Maybe she thought I was dying of scurvy. Gloria glanced at the streams of traffic heading north from L.A. International. Ash-blonde hair curled in the Cretan style, violently coloured lipstick, slim, tanned, worked-on body, white cotton dress that was sexy and simultaneously meant business. Shoes ditto. She wrinkled her nose. Did my clothes still smell of woodsmoke from the stove back home? She'd probably never been exposed to a cultural artifact like me. I felt like I'd strayed onto the set of a Walt Disney movie, but it was the wrong one.
 "I'm your escort for the convention. Whatever you need during your stay in California let me know and I'll get it done pronto. Are you a chef or a writer?"
 "Writer. Historical cookery." I got it in fast to accept the inevitable. It's fatal admitting to be a writer. At parties, whenever they make me go, I lie and say I work for the schoolboard as a groundskeeper. Only people in training to be KGB officers question that.
 "Wow. That's real interesting."
 I couldn't tell whether it was or wasn't. Everyone I'd met that day appeared to ooze momentary sincerity. Where I came from people didn't waste so much time on good manners and they sandwiched fragments of conversation between long, meditative silences. Unless they were drunk or watching a hockey game down at the Lodge.
 "What's your seminar topic? If I can schedule the time maybe I'll take it in."
 "The Use of Traditional Herbs in the Modern Kitchen."
 "No kidding! Like what? Hopi Indian stuff? I'm one-sixteenth Cherokee and proud of it."
 "Well, ahhh, rue and lovage."
 "Huh? I've never heard of them. What do they taste like?"
 "Come to my lecture and you'll find out. They are remarkably versatile seasonings. Eclectic." I was getting warmed up. "In classical and mediaeval cuisines they appear in salads, with game, meats, you name it."
 "No kidding? That really glazes me out."
 She didn't look it as she negotiated an exit ramp with one hand on the wheel of her Porsche and ran her other through her hair like a goddess on the cover of Vogue.
 "There's another Sunquench."
 Gloria briefly contemplated the colossal, juicy, Andy Warhol style orange on the roof of an office building, with her equivalent of maternal pride and then gave me a quick look. Her eyes were the cool blue-grey of an alpine lake but I was sweating freely, unaccustomed to the warmth and energy of the endless city we were driving through.
 "My information is you just flew down here to the fast lane from Canada. I was in Toronto in January for the North American Fruit Growers Convention. Sure was cold. Good flight?"
 I considered this question. First of all it had been my first plane ride in over 10 years and was highlighted by the relentless struggle between claustrophobia and air-sickness over my vital organs.
 Secondly, the 747 appeared to contain more people than the entire population of the happily obscure little island off the west coast of British Columbia where I lived.
 Thirdly I'd had to change planes in Seattle, leaving the otter or beaver or pelican or whatever the hell it was of B.C. Air for an AirCal sarcophagus painted yellow-ochre like a hungover grapefruit. The customs men there had examined my packages of herbs with surprise and delight and, finally, amazement when I told them I'd left my passport, out of date anyway, back at the tree farm. They called their friends over to listen to my story that I was indeed the author of the fat cookery book in the suitcase and the guest speaker at a food convention at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles and thus needed these no doubt hallucinogenic leaves and seeds to illustrate my words of wisdom. They decided my spiel was too incredible not to be true.
 After a few minutes of surprisingly good-natured interrogation one of them hauled out a ledger, read it in disgusted silence for a while then conceded that, okay man, your plants aren't narcotic, proscribed, or in any other way a threat to good old Steak and Potatoes United States Agriculture but next time bring proper I.D. for Christ's sake. And waved me through.
 Meanwhile Gloria had expertly weaved through 15 or 20 lanes of ferocious traffic and turned onto a wide, expensive thoroughfare. The street sign said Wilshire Boulevard. Even I, Mr. Natural from the North Woods, had heard of that. She was humming a familiar jingle from T.V., waiting for me to say something and eyeing competing ads critically.
 "Uneventful. Nice views of the mountains."
 Gloria sank into a respectful silence. This was Mecca. We stopped at a light and I inspected the pedestrians carefully but I didn't see Cary Grant among them.
 We swept forward and entered an avenue of palm trees which ended at a red carpet and a cluster of limos and a lot of fountains. There was an exotic smell in the air. Jasmine. This just had to be the Beverly Hilton.

Ferry employees contribute to fund

Local B.C. Ferry Corporation employees have contributed about one-fifth of the $75,000 raised internally to fund community service organizations.

The fleet's Gulf Islands region, who raised $14,638 through payroll deduction commitments, have designated four recipients for their contributions: the B.C. Cancer Association, B.C. Heart Association, Salvation Army and United Way.

The corporation's Employee Community Services Fund distributes money to charitable organizations operating within the region where it was raised. Employees are encouraged to identify which organizations will receive their contribution.

DON'T MIX DRUGS OR ALCOHOL WITH WORK.

Drugs and alcohol usually take effect quickly. They can slow your reflexes and co-ordination, cloud your judgement and give you a false sense of who you are and what you can do. If you operate equipment or work around machinery in this condition, anything can happen. By saying no to drugs and alcohol at work, you are increasing everyone's chances of making it through the day safely.

YOU HIRE AND WE'LL HELP PAY

EMPLOYMENT PLUS

HELP NOW... WHEN YOU NEED IT.

If you are an employer

- wanting to hire help now;
- able to train on the job; and,
- interested in wage assistance for up to six months...

ASK US ABOUT EMPLOYMENT PLUS!

The Employment Plus group of programs is part of a continuing commitment from your provincial government to help people receiving income assistance get into the work force by assisting British Columbia employers to hire and train.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY PROGRAM

It's Good Business!

FOR PRIVATE SECTOR BUSINESSES, NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS

You can receive 50% of an employee's wage, up to $3.50 per hour, when you hire and train someone now receiving income assistance from the Ministry of Social Services and Housing.

To qualify, you need only:

- create an additional job to provide full-time employment for 2 to 6 months for 30 to 40 hours per week; and,
- pay at least the provincial minimum wage; and,
- provide a trainee with work experience and skills.

IT'S GOOD FOR BUSINESS!

You may hire and train an employee to help ease your workload, and the Ministry of Social Services and Housing pays half the cost up to $3.50 per hour. You could find yourself with a trained and valued permanent employee at the end of the training period.

IT'S GOOD FOR PEOPLE!

The Employment Opportunity Program gives employable income assistance recipients the opportunity to develop or update skills while training on the job. This work experience can be their first step to permanent employment and an independent and secure future.

COMMUNITY TOURISM EMPLOYMENT TRAINING PROGRAM

FOR REGISTERED NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS

You can receive 100% of an employee's wage, up to $7.00 per hour, when you hire and train someone in a project leaving a tourism legacy in your community. If you have the materials, and can offer employable income assistance recipients jobs that provide work experience and develop skills, we'll pay the wages.

ASK US ABOUT YOUR PROJECT!

IT'S GOOD FOR THE COMMUNITY!

Already groups throughout British Columbia have used this program to:

- organize or coordinate festivals and special events, exhibitions, collections, heritage and visitor research, catalogues and office operations;
- create or upgrade picnic areas, public gardens, ski areas, town entrances, campgrounds, hiking and saddle trails, and enhance historic sites; and,
- construct or complete museums, arts centres, rodeo grounds, injured wildlife housing and tourist infocentres.

The concept of publicly-owned and managed forest lands is to be outlined at a November 28 meeting featuring Graham Bruce, Social Credit MLA for Cowichan-Malahat.

A time and place has yet to be confirmed for the meeting, which is being sponsored by the Island Watch Society.

While mayor of the municipality of North Cowichan, Bruce was instrumental in establishing the forest management program on municipal forest reserve lands. More recently, while speaking to the national convention of the Canadian Institute of Forestry, the MLA suggested that if the forest sector is truly serious about dealing with the major issues facing the industry, the question of land tenure must be addressed.

Bruce proposed a program to develop small municipal forests across Canada as a way of resolving many of the issues facing the industry and the nation. He predicted that such a program, although representing a shared responsibility in forest management, "would cause great

All-candidate meetings set

Candidates for local and federal elected offices will appear before Salt Spring voters at two separate meetings to be held over the next nine days.

Tomorrow (Thursday), candidates for Islands Trust and school board seats gather at 7:30 pm in the Activity Centre of Salt Spring Elementary School. The session, moderated by Gordon Sloan, will see the four local school board candidates speak first, followed by the three Trust hopefuls. All will be given an opportunity to address the audience, then respond to questions from the floor.

The following Thursday (November 17), the eight candidates for the Saanich-Gulf Islands federal seat will present their platforms to Salt Spring voters. Again, the session is set for 7:30 pm in the Activity Centre of Salt Spring Elementary School. Each candidate will address the audience, then respond to questions.

Both meetings have been arranged by the Salt Spring Island Community Planning Association, chaired by Syd Wigen of Fulford Harbour.

anxiety within provincial governments and industry circles."

Forest Planning Canada magazine recently wrote about the North Cowichan municipal forest reserve. It noted: "Since the inception of the reserve, considerably more has been accomplished than originally projected. The total forest area, owned outright by the citizens of the municipality, comprises just 5,000 hectares.

"Here are the accomplishments, 1982 to 1988: juvenile spacing, 1828 hectares; fertilization, 1452 hectares; pruning, 981 hectares; planting, 628 hectares; brushing and weeding, 352 hectares; site preparation for planting, 304 hectares; stream cleaning, 450 metres; jobs created, 937; number of people employed, 1499.

"Federal money invested, $4.82 million; plus Canadian Forestry Service ($762,000) and municipal ($1.525 million) investment, for a total forestry investment of $7 million."

Organizers hope the meeting will draw residents interested in establishing a similar opportunity on Salt Spring.

Power Squadron welcomes banner

One of the more novel programs Canadian Power and Sail Squadrons have developed to celebrate the organization's 50th anniversary this year is the moving of a special flag across Canada from one squadron to another.

The flag, which began its travels earlier this year with an official send-off from CPS headquarters in Toronto, will go to each of the 170 squadrons in the 16 districts in Canada. Many of the 26,000 members will take part in local ceremonies accepting the flag before passing it along to the next recipient.

The flag was brought to Salt Spring by Pim Manning, commander of the Pender Island squadron. On hand to accept it were Salt Spring's squadron commander, Gloria Simpson, and most members of the executive, along with past commanders Peter Vida, Jim Napper, Don Clarkson and Max Fitch.

Special guests at a luncheon which followed the brief ceremony were three charter members of the squadron: Dick Toynbee, Harold Helm and Ken Arnott. The latter, a former resident of the island, came from Victoria for the occasion.

The anniversary flag, which is transported in a special container, is three feet by five feet, with the CPS 50th anniversary emblem emblazoned on it. The emblem is predominantly gold in colour, with the red, white and blue CPS flag in the centre. Surrounding the emblem are the names of the 16 CPS districts printed in red. Under each district's headings are the names of its squadrons in dark blue. Travelling with the flag is a logbook in which is recorded its passage from squadron to squadron.

On the day following the flag's arrival on Salt Spring, it was taken by Commander Simpson to Ladysmith and presented to Commander Jens Oster of the Mt. Brenton squadron. From there it will move up Vancouver Island to each of the squadrons en route.

Coast Guard employees cited for part in search

Four members of the Ganges Coast Guard received ministerial letters of commendation for their part in locating and lifting a downed airplane off Thetis Island last January.

The Coast Guard spent several days aboard the Skua looking for the aircraft, which was carrying four Royal Roads Military College cadets when it crashed into the ocean.

Transport minister Benoit Bouchard presented 32 letters Wednesday at the Kitsilano Coast Guard base in Vancouver, commending the individuals serving on the Skua and the Victoria-based ship Sir James Douglas.

Ganges Coast Guard members Bill Noon, Jerry Moores, Ian Kyle and Ken Perry were honoured at the ceremony.

The Skua was called on to participate in the search for the Cessna 172, which crashed near Thetis Island on January 24. After several days of searching, a slight oil slick was detected on the ocean surface. Local Coast Guard officials were active in collecting samples of the slick, obtaining verification and marking the spot for divers.

A derrick aboard the Sir James Douglas pulled the plane from the water and the 32 crew members of the two ships worked at securing the wreckage onto the vessel.

It was important to keep the aircraft intact for investigative purposes — something which proved challenging due to choppy water conditions and gusty winds.

The lift took between 20 and 30 minutes, a Transport Canada spokesman said.

History of the Guernsey

The knitting industry in Guernsey dates back to the early 16th century, when licences were granted by the Crown to import wool from England. The Guernsey sweater came into being as a garment for seamen, who required a warm, hard wearing, yet comfortable item that would resist the sea spray. The hard twist given to the closely packed wool fibres in the spinning process, and the tightly knitted stitches, produced a finish that would 'turn water' and repel a surprising amount of rain or spray.

Salt Spring goalie rising to top levels of competition

By JIM BLACK

Just about every male-born Canadian dreams about someday playing in the National Hockey League, yet only a minute percentage of those who have strapped on a pair of skates and joined in a game of shinny ever get that far. But Derek Topping of Vesuvius has moved another step closer to someday making it to the big leagues, while still keeping everything in perspective.

Derek, age 16, has been playing hockey for the past eight years, the last five of those as a goaltender. This year he is playing for the Cowichan Valley Midget Triple A team. Triple A teams are the creme de la creme of each age group and only players with the most determination and talent make it to this level.

"Sure I'd like to make it to the NHL someday, but I would be just as happy to get a scholarship to a university," he said, showing wisdom beyond his young age. "Right now I'm just concentrating on playing well and keeping my grades up," he added.

While most people might think it a little strange for anyone to actually like getting dressed up in enough padding to make you look like a sumo wrestler, and to have opposing players come flying down the ice to blast a frozen piece of rubber towards your head at speeds up to 100 miles per hour, Derek loves it.

"Playing net was the only position that I ever wanted to play," he said. "It isn't as dangerous as everybody thinks, goalies wear a lot of protective equipment."

Like most young hockey players, Derek also has his own hockey hero: Sean Burke, the sensational rookie goaltender who took his team, the New Jersey Devils, to the Stanley Cup semifinals last year. "I like him, I think he has a great style," he said.

Derek manages to stay sharp for the winter hockey season by playing all year-round. During the winter months he plays with his team in Duncan at the Cowichan Community Centre, and in the summer months he attends hockey schools and plays in summer leagues.

Next summer, though, he won't just be attending a hockey school — he will be instructing at a number of hockey schools across western Canada. He was the only player out of about 60 who was chosen at his hockey school this past summer to take part as a teacher-trainer for next summer, when he will travel throughout the western provinces and Alaska helping to train other young goalies.

Along with that, Derek and his teammates will be travelling to Finland on December 26 to play in a 20-team tournament involving teams from Canada, Europe and Russia. While there the Canadians will be billeted with players from Finland and will tour the towns and cities of Finland, as well as the KoHo hockey stick factory, where each member of his team will receive two hockey sticks and a hockey bag.

After completing their stay in Finland, the team will travel to Czechoslovakia to play a series of exhibition games against local teams.

Until then Derek and his teammates will continue to hone their skills against rival teams in Victoria, Nanaimo, Duncan and Vancouver.

Golf Club members end season with presentations of trophies

The final event of the 1988 golfing season was held at the Salt Spring course on Saturday, October 29. The four-person, team best ball competition was won by the foursome of Tom Butt, Stu Hopkins, Jack Godwin and Nick Birks. They posted a score of net 53.

Tied for second were two teams: Irene Hawksworth, Marge Mills, Pat Taylor and Barb Maguire carded a net 58, as did the foursome of Lois Popkin-Clurman, Jackie Vibe, Phyllis Henderson and Chris LaGrow.

In third spot, at net 59, was the team of Jim Burford, Keith Lavender, Barry Mills and Mac Mout.

In the evening, 70 members attended a dinner and dance which saw trophies presented to all the winners in 1988 events. Following is a list of those winners:

"Fire chief for the day," Huntly Gordon (right) wears hat of "ex"-fire chief Les Wagg. Wagg gave up this hat three times last week to Grade Three students, who won the prize as part of fire prevention week. The name of a student from each of the Salt Spring elementary schools was drawn to decide the honour.

Elementary students pay attention to fires

Local fire chief Les Wagg took off his hat to three elementary school students last week.

Grade Three students Huntly Gordon, Justin Muir and Carmen Profitt each spent one day last week wearing Wagg's hat, and taking on the position of fire chief.

The students, representing each of Salt Spring's three elementary schools, were honoured with the day-long position after participating in fire prevention week. Students were asked to draw a floor plan of their homes and describe the best way to exit the premises if a fire occurred.

Names of the participating Grade Three students were placed in a hat and drawn for the position of fire-chief-for-the-day.

Gordon, who spent last Thursday with Wagg, said he enjoyed carrying the walkie-talkie and riding in the fire chief's truck. During their day together, they inspected a building, checked out a house that had had a fire and watched videos on fire prevention material.

Building permits on rise

In September, Salt Spring Island passed the $9 million mark in value placed on construction work underway to date this year. That left the industry roughly 30 per cent ahead of the pace set in the same period of 1987.

Statistics kept by the Capital Regional District (CRD) building permits office note that 49 permits for work worth $807,262 were approved on Salt Spring in September. It pushed the year-to-date figures to 406 permits let and work valued at $9.179 million.

A year ago, the total for the first nine months of 1987 stood at 358 permits and work valued at $6.38 million. That showing was helped by a September just as strong as in 1988: in the same month a year ago, the figures were 39 permits and work valued at $828,435.

Of the September, 1988, total of 49 permits let, nine were for single-family dwellings and the remainder for plumbing, chimney and other work. To date this year, Salt Spring has seen the CRD office approve permits for 58 single-family dwellings, four duplexes, 10 multiple-family housing projects, 20 mobile homes, one moved dwelling and 20 commercial or industrial structures. Plumbing, chimney and other work accounted for 293 of the 406 permits issued to date this year.

By comparison, figures for the same span of 1987 show approvals for 59 single-family dwellings, no duplexes or multi-family projects, 10 mobile homes and 15 commercial or industrial buildings. Plumbing, chimney and other work totalled 273 of the 358 permits issued.

Police apprehend impaired drivers as island crack-down continues

Two Salt Spring Island residents face separate charges of impaired driving after being stopped in local police spot checks over the past weekend.

A Ganges area man faces charges of impaired driving and driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 after police stopped a vehicle on Lower Ganges Road at approximately 9:30 pm on November 4.

Shortly after that, at 1:20 am, police stopped a car on Upper Ganges Road and have since charged a Ganges woman with impaired driving and refusing a request to submit a breathalyzer sample.

On November 4, police charged Margaret Joan Little of Fulford Harbour with making an unsafe left-hand turn after a two-vehicle accident on Fulford-Ganges Road sent her and the driver of the other vehicle to Lady Minto Hospital with undetermined injuries. The collision took place at about 2 pm and resulted in damage of $7,000 to the two vehicles.

Police reported laying charges against one hunter and checked 21 others over the past weekend while watching for infractions during the current deer hunting season. Local police were assisted by Conservation Officers from Duncan, and used a helicopter to keep a close watch on hunters on both Salt Spring and Galiano Islands. The one charge laid against a Salt Spring resident was for failing to cancel his hunting tag after shooting a deer. Police also seized the deer.

Radio sought by police

Ganges RCMP are requesting the public's assistance in locating a hand-held two-way radio that went missing in late June this year. The radio is described as approximately 8 inches high, 2.75 inches wide and 1.5 inches deep. It is grey in colour with a silver face plate, marked Motorola and MX350. The back is engraved with MPW105.

Anyone who either may have seen or have knowledge about this radio is asked to contact the Ganges detachment of the RCMP at 537-5555.

MB FALLERS DAVID JEWEL AND ROGER WRIGHT ON CLEAR-CUTTING:

“People look at you funny when you tell them you cut trees for a living.”

“I can still remember my first time up there. It was nerve-racking.”

“You have to develop bush legs. If you don't, you won't live very long, I can guarantee that.”

“MB is a safety-conscious company, you've got to give 'em that. They tell us, if it's not safe, don't do it.”

“If you're getting the wood down, they leave you alone. My wife don't like it, but nobody bothers you.”

“If you didn't make the money, who'd go falling? Nobody. You'd have to have rocks in your head to work in that kind of danger.”

“C'mon, everybody wants to be a faller.”

“The public don't like us because we make a lot of money, we work a short day and they think we're destroying the forests.”

“But clear-cutting is the only safe way of logging around here. Selective logging would be almost impossible where we work. A thousand foot hillside...you create hazards and people get killed.”

“I think our program is good where we are. Twenty years ago, I don't know, I didn't work here. But it is now.”

“Yeah, the whole thing's planted already and we just took it out last year.”

“And there's not one faller in Menzies Bay that would cut a bird's nest tree.”

“It gives you a sense of worth...taking pride in doing a good job.”

“It doesn't bother my conscience one bit as long as they're being replanted. I'm not a company man either. Don't get me wrong, that's the way I feel about it.”

If you would like to meet Dave and Roger and find out more, write MacMillan Bloedel, P.O. Box 6300, Vancouver, B.C. V6B 4B5.

WE TREAT FORESTRY AS A GROWTH INDUSTRY.

your garden

by chris schmah

Over the past week, the skies have opened up on several occasions and let the rain pour down with great generosity, bringing new flow to the seasonal streams, helping to raise well and lake levels and, finally, satisfying the soil's long-standing thirst.

It has been quite a few months since the ground had such an abundance of available soil moisture, and with this replenishment the fall plantings of shrubs, trees, biennials, perennials and bulbs can continue, without any further need for watering (ha, ha, ha.)

The virtues of the fall planting season make the months of October, November and early December the best time for establishing new plantings. Root callousing, development and growth continues right on through until the soil temperature drops below 4 C and, as the foliage is not as demanding of moisture at this time of year, plant stresses are minimized. The root system will have fully re-established itself by the time summer rolls around again.

The other benefit of fall planting is that most shrubs — including roses, trees and hedging materials — are dug or lifted at this time of year and held over for several months to furnish a continuous supply of stock while the ground is too wet to work with lifting or digging machinery. Right now is the time when selection is the greatest, the quality is the best and plant vigour is optimal. So, without a doubt, fall is for planting.

When digging the planting hole, loosen the soil over a wide area so that root establishment will be fast and easy, but don't excavate the hole too much deeper than required. When you hit solid clay or hardpan, stop, don't dig any deeper, for this is hostile rooting territory, and wet rots will claim any young roots that may establish in the clay bowls or water-filled dishes which will be created by digging into the clay.

Liming and mulching timely

Mix in or incorporate bonemeal, rock phosphate or some phosphate-bearing fertilizer at the time of planting, as rapid rooting will be encouraged. Water the plants in well to settle the soil around the fine roots, and ensure good soil-root contact. Stake or guy trees or shrubs which may be exposed to extreme winds, and use a tree wrap for the first year or so to prevent sunscald and freeze-thaw damage.

In the vegetable garden, liming and mulching are timely, as is cleanup and the sowing down of a green manure crop such as winter wheat, winter peas, vetch or fall rye. Hill up around your celery and leeks to blanch the stems, and undertake the planting of garlic in loose, rich, well-drained soil. Space the cloves about six inches apart and place them one inch below the soil surface so that rooting will be well under way by spring. Any asparagus volunteers or seedlings you may have grown may now be transplanted into beds that have been deeply-worked, and have good drainage. Set the crowns two feet apart and 12 inches down, in a trench that will allow you to add a couple of inches of soil every few months. Rhubarb and horseradish may be lifted and split up this month and remember to incorporate plenty of well-rotted manure.

For the lawns, a final feeding with a winterizing fertilizer that contains higher levels of phosphorus and potassium will help the grass to resist disease, and cold weather damage. Rake up any leaves which fall onto the grass, as matted wet leaves will smother and kill the underlying grass.

Active month in orchard

This is an active month in the orchard, as tree planting, raking and cleanup are time-consuming jobs. Fall spraying is also a priority this month, especially on your peaches, to control peach-leaf curl (Taphrina deformans). This fungus is spread at this time of year by wind and rain and penetrates unprotected buds to develop and manifest its deforming symptoms next spring.

To seal out and kill any incoming fungi, spray at leaf drop or as soon as possible thereafter with fixed copper (6 gm/litre), lime sulphur (100 ml/litre) or ferbam (2 gm/litre) for good control.

A second spraying in March will ensure good results. To provide some control over European canker and bacterial canker, also called bacterial gummosis, spray this month with fixed copper (6 gm/litre) and practice good sanitation in the orchard by raking up and burning all leaves and prunings, and sterilizing your pruning tools after every pruning cut. Use a phenol-based cleaner such as Dettol or Lysol, as bleach will corrode and rust your tools.

In the shrub garden, pruning this month is timely for mock orange (Piladelphus), taking out most of the two or three year old wood, as blooming will take place on the wood produced in 1988. For the salt cedar (Tamarix) remove at least one half of the current year's growth, and cut back your P.G. hydrangeas very hard to leave only two pairs of buds on each stem. This pruning will induce vigorous growth and blooming next year. This hard pruning should also be undertaken on your Spanish broom if you haven't already done so. For better results next year, some hard work in November is needed.

Island entrepreneur places business on stock exchange

Here's this month's business riddle: How many VSE-listed companies have their head office on Salt Spring Island? If you answered "none," with the comment, "such a ridiculous question," guess again.

There is at least one — Odin Industries. This up-and-coming venture capital company, with holdings primarily in high-tech industries, has done it. Thanks to computers, modems, fax machines and other state-of-art means of communication, managing director Neal Beaumont can live where he chooses and effectively run his bustling little empire of companies.

Beaumont purchased land on Salt Spring about nine years ago. Although he usually spends one day a week in Victoria, Beaumont said "I try to spend 90 per cent of my time here (in the Ganges office)."

A university-trained economist, Beaumont spent eight years as a stockbroker in Vancouver. He also worked as a real estate investor in Alberta. Along the way, he got involved in raising money for various ventures, which influenced the direction his career has taken.

Beaumont founded the Odin Industries in 1985 by taking over Interoceanic Oil and Gas. With the continued downturn in the oil industry, management decided to concentrate their efforts in microelectronics. According to Beaumont, microelectronics "is the force keeping the economy going."

He added that Odin has taken over companies that were healthy and stable enough to survive the recession years. All of the companies under the Odin umbrella have products that Beaumont believes will be winners.

Odin Industries currently has interests in five diversified high-tech companies, all based in Victoria. One, Forest Technology Systems Ltd., is successfully selling a variety of products to the forest industry in Canada and international markets, including New Zealand, Australia and the U.S. Forest Technology Systems has done particularly well with a battery-powered electronic recorder designed to automatically collect weather data for use in the calculation of fire danger ratings.

Another, Pacific Education Systems Ltd., has been getting positive reception for the unique language learning system it has developed. The PES "English in Japan" series is a computer-aided software system designed to simulate natural human speech. It allows students to interact with the on-screen activities, as well as listen to the spoken language. The system has been adapted under the title Japanese in America for teaching Japanese to English speakers.

Earlier this year, Pacific Education Systems entered into a $3 million marketing and product development agreement with MicroSystems Co. Ltd. of Tokyo. MicroSystems has the exclusive rights to market the PES software for teaching English in Japan's secondary schools.

Odin Industries is also actively involved with Resource Data

Neal Beaumont

Management Ltd., the sole authorized Canadian distributor for the Husky line of hand-held computers. These products have been designed for use in the forest industry; B.C. Forest Products is using them for all log-scaling in their coastal operations.

Odin has a minority position in AAL Autometrics Associates Ltd., a research and development and consulting firm specializing in industrial applications of artificial intelligence. Since 1985, AAL Autometrics has combined speech recognition and synthesis hardware and software, voice processing, data collection and communications technology into a variety of devices for public sector contractors. If things go well, Odin can exercise its option to acquire control of AAL in the future.

Rounding out Odin's Victoria-based portfolio is minority interest in Canadian Hovercraft Incorporated (CHI). British Hovercraft has awarded CHI an exclusive technology transfer licence for its well-known Hovercraft designs.

Beaumont said that although Odin is a VSE-listed company, promoting and selling the stock hasn't been a big priority. "During the last 14 to 18 months, our time has been spent in product development and getting our markets set-up. We've done no promotion of the stock, really." This will probably change as Odin Industries' companies move out of the product development stage into more active marketing and sales.

RETURN A SALT SPRING ISLANDER TO OTTAWA —

RE-ELECT PAT CROFTON

AUTHORIZED BY R. SAMSON, OFFICIAL AGENT FOR PAT CROFTON

Sea Capers distributes event profit

A profit of $1,900 realized from the 1988 Sea Capers festivities has been distributed to various Salt Spring Island groups.

The Sea Capers Committee, meeting November 3 under chairman Gary Greico, carved up its profit as follows:

- $800 was allotted to Parents for Playgrounds, to be used for the purchase of playground equipment to be installed at Centennial Park.

- An unspecified sum was granted for the purchase of 15 chairs to be donated to the Salt Spring Island Rod and Gun Club "in order to partially alleviate the chronic shortage of chairs for community use for special island events." The club, it was noted, has always been helpful by loaning its own chairs when needed.

- $500 was appropriated to buy additional equipment for use at future Sea Capers festivities.

- The Salt Spring Island Historical Society was granted $100 towards the cost of a fireproof, four-door legal-size filing cabinet estimated to cost $1,400. The cabinet is to be used for permanent storage of the Salt Spring Island archives, which consist of valuable documents, photographs, church registers and other records of earlier years.

(When the fireproof cabinet has been bought, it will be kept at the library in Ganges, making it readily-available to researchers and interested organizations. The Sea Capers contribution brings the total raised to $1,000 and leaves another $400 to be collected before the purchase can be made.)

- $100 was set aside to help local writer Tom Koppel complete his research into the early history of the Kanaka people from Hawaii, who were among the island's earliest settlers.

The Sea Capers committee traditionally returns all profits from each year's celebration to the community. In past years, for example, it has helped to fund improvements in Centennial Park and at the Fulford Community Hall.

After distributing its 1988 profits at the November 3 meeting, the committee dissolved itself. A new committee to steer the 1989 festivities will be formed at a meeting to be called early in January.

Greico expressed the hope that many people, groups and organizations will join the new committee, pointing out there is always a chronic shortage of volunteer help. Membership is free of charge.

Mary and Don McCardia, Ron and Nancy Holcroft, Lynne Richardson, Ed Allan, Ian Fraser, Pat Beitel and Greico — all members of the 1988 committee — pledged to join the 1989 version of the group.

Before disbanding, the committee thanked treasurer Beitel for her work, and extended a vote of thanks to Bevis Walters for his services to Sea Capers.

Carl Folia, Lisa White

Former islander wed in mainland ceremony

Former Salt Spring resident Lisa White, the daughter of Mrs. Winsome White of White Rock and Grahme White of Victoria, was married recently to Carl Folia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Folia of White Rock.

The wedding took place in White Rock.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Alan D. Hedger of Ganges, wore an entrained white satin gown with a pearl-seeded bodice, sparkling tiara and veil.

Bridesmaids and candle-lighters were friends of the bride and the sister of the groom. All wore red taffeta gowns.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Nassau, where they witnessed the launching of a rocket from Cape Canaveral.

Nicaraguan disaster means call for additional assistance

A natural disaster in Nicaragua means more aid is needed in that country, Salt Spring Island's Tools For Peace organizers said last week.

Bluefields, the largest community on Nicaragua's eastern coast, was struck by Hurricane Joan. Hundreds of people were reportedly killed by the hurricane, which caused considerable damage to buildings and crops, left about 200,000 people homeless and crippled transportation and communications resources.

Tools For Peace, which annually collects and ships to Nicaragua an assortment of non-military supplies needed to improve the lot of civilians, said the country is ill-prepared to cope with the effects of Hurricane Joan. Consequently, Tools For Peace would like to send to Nicaragua a larger-than-usual shipment of goods this time around.

Coping with the aftermath of the hurricane means a large need for roofing materials, rubber boots, safety equipment, tools and school supplies, the group noted. Funds would also be welcome to cover the purchase of roofing materials.

Tools For Peace collection boxes have been set up at Gulfstream, et cetera, the United Church and Foxglove Farm and Garden Supplies. The organization has also scheduled several fund-raising activities, including the November 20 screening of the film, El Norte, at Central Hall, displays at the Holiday Festival at Mahon Hall on November 26, and a December 10 dance at the Activity Centre with Mango Dub.

Donations to Tools For Peace are tax-deductible if they are for $25 or more. Contributions can be made out to Inter Pares — Tools For Peace. For information, call 653-4353.

Auction realizes funding for school

Parents and pre-schoolers using the Little Red School House on Beaver Point Road can breathe a sigh of relief after last Saturday's benefit auction netted $3,500 to bring electricity and running water to the school.

One year ago school trustees were told by the local health officer that changes in provincial child care facilities regulations meant the school either had to be upgraded or it would face closure. Two years was allowed for completion of the upgrading.

School spokesman Anne Hohmann told Driftwood that the money raised at Saturday's auction should be enough to cover the cost of the upgrading. "We should have enough money to do the necessary work to bring the building up to standards," she said. "If not, we can apply to the provincial parks department for a matching grant of up to $1,000 to go towards the work."

The auction, which started at 8 pm, drew about 80 people. All of the items put up for auction were donated by local residents, businesses or artists.

A sampling of items on the auction block included a psychic reading by Rosalie Miles, a one-night stay at Southdown Farm bed and breakfast from Jonathan and Sue Yardley, and four tennis lessons from Bev Unger.

The item drawing the most interest — and revenue — was one of Robert Bateman's wildlife books, autographed and accompanied by a yet-to-be-done sketch of an animal of the buyer's choice to be done by Bateman. The item netted $900 for the school fund.
