

Art Beaddie serves up lamb at Chamber Barbecue

Barbecue may become annual event

Chamber event a success

The first-time Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce lamb barbecue, held on Saturday at the Harbour House Hotel, was described by chamber president Jack Cherry as being highly successful.

"It went very well considering it was the first time we put one of these on," he said. "We had a steady stream of people coming through all day long. The people seemed to really enjoy themselves. I would like to see this become an annual event."

More than 550 people took part in the fund-raising event which featured not only a lamb barbecue, but dancing by the Salty Wheelers and music by Second Wind.

Along with the proceeds from the lamb barbecue, money raised from Al Hall's car wash was also donated to chamber.

Altogether, something in the neighbourhood of $4,000 was collected.

Sailboats string out across Ganges Harbour in attempt to catch favourable winds at beginning of around-island race

Annual Sailing Club event Cobanli wins island circuit

The Salt Spring Island Sailing Club hosted its annual Around-the-Island race on May 20.

At 10 am, the 35 yachts started at the mouth of the inner harbour in light airs which freshened a little, allowing the leaders to round Beaver Point prior to the tide change.

Winds continued to freshen, reaching a velocity of 20 knots at times, permitting Kelea, a Rogers 39 from Nanaimo, skippered by Joe Webber, to take line honours — shattering the previous record with a time of nine hours, seven minutes and 10 seconds.

Most of the larger boats were home by 9 pm, when the wind unfortunately died. However, most of the fleet completed the race by midnight.

The sailing club present race prizes at a successful barbecue brunch at its clubhouse on May 21.

Overall winner on handicap was Bas Cobanli of the sailing club, skippering Foster's Light, a Martin 242. The win netted him a handsome silver tray presented by Carling O'Keefe Breweries.

Bas also won the Marshall Sharp trophy, presented to the top skipper from the club and was, of course, first in A division.

Winners of the other divisions were:
B Division — Ron Watson of the sailing club in Vandal II, a Cal 29.

C Division — John Huntley of the sailing club in Sandpiper, a Columbia 26.

D Division — Jim Sinclair of the sailing club in Windancer, a Grampion 26.

'Dead' crabs on beach part of nature's cycle

There was no cause for alarm over several hundred "dead" crabs reported along the shoreline in Fulford last week.

They aren't dead, just moulting.

Duncan fisheries officer Bob Tupniak, told Driftwood that he has visited the site over the past week, and that doctors at the biological station in Duncan informed him this is a natural yearly occurrence.

"We checked it out and found it just to be the crabs moulting," he said. "This is a natural occurrence which happens this time of year. What the crabs do is pull completely out of their shells. They look as though they are dead, but that's just the left-over shell."

Tupniak said that once the crabs get out of their shells, they bury themselves for two to three weeks until their new shells form and begin to harden.

"This is actually a sign that the crabs are in good shape," he said. "It means they are growing and need a larger shell. They will bury themselves now and live off algae until the new shells are strong enough to protect them from predators. This could continue to occur for up to another month."

The coast is currently closed to commercial crab fisherman due to the softshell season.

country gourmet

by john edwards

When I cook with the herb sweet cicely, it's impossible not to think of Oscar Wilde. Like his character Cecily in The Importance Of Being Ernest, this plant is charming, coy, self-possessed and a child of the country, yet, at the same time, it is superficial.

As Culpeper said in his 1653 Herball, sweet cicely "is so harmless you cannot use it amiss." Such an unassuming herb does not arouse passion in the kitchen the way truffles do, or fresh Pacific oysters, or the first sweet garden peas of the year.

On the other hand no empires were won and lost in the trade for this condiment, and its history is littered with none of the ghosts of the fleets and camel trains which once groaned under their cargoes of salt, pepper, cloves and cinnamon, and who sought to enrich one part of the earth while satisfying the tastes, and emptying the vaults, of another.

That's why I like it. The fabric of western cookery would be intact without the existence of sweet cicely. And so, also, without me. Using it suggests humility towards the public world at the end of the garden, or at least a healthy dose of indifference.

These days we are trained to think everything must be important to be noticed. Ayatollahs, ozone, opium and oil, for instance. But what will happen tomorrow or a thousand years from now? Probably what T.E. Lawrence said of the discarded religions of Arabia: "The fringes of their deserts were littered with the relics of their broken faiths."

Too much thought of this kind can lead to an existential crisis and, worse, an upset stomach.

No inherent symbolism or connotation

With sweet cicely you can remain at peace, sure in the knowledge that there is no inherent symbolism or spiritual connotation or indeed anything at all earnest to do with it, which is the point of being in the cosmic play in the first place.

You can be frivolous. You can concentrate upon something the bureaucrats can't tax, confiscate or repeal, and that the eating of it will cause no offence to Iranians, Jews or Hindus. You will not condone the destruction of a unique ecosystem in Brazil or the extinction of hereditary lifestyles of people in Burma and Patagonia.

I have Very Informed Friends who stare in horror at my chocolate bar, and leave the house in disgust if I brew a pot of coffee. They rub the skins of apples more violently than Lady Macbeth washed her hands after seeing Banquo's ghost. They are afraid of what the UBC students have done to the milk and ignore the cheddar. "And how knows what the French do to theirs!" they moan, and bravely push away the camembert.

Sweet cicely will never dominate the play but she will, through being polite, and sometimes obtuse, provoke others to speak their culinary lines more clearly, and so enlarge a dinner scene or two.

This remarkably unremarkable plant flourishes in our (generally) mild marine climate. By September the arching stalks with their bounty of leaves the shade of Hooker's green have fallen across the adjacent beds of rue and sage in my herb garden. The taste of sweet cicely is aniseed with a hint of lemon, and it goes marvellously with its sister, chervil, in a subtle sauce for sole.

Vancouver Island Sole

- 2 bottles dry cider
- the most trivial works of Oscar Wilde and Edmund Lear
- 1/2 t sweet cicely
- 1/4 t chervil
- salt
- 1/4 t pepper
- the juice of just one quarter of a lime
- 1 T slivered almonds
- wineglassful white wine
- 2 T olive oil
- some stock

Have an icy glass of dry BC cider with a wedge of lime. Now crumble sweet cicely and chervil between your fingers while quoting a few sententious lines from Oscar Wilde's Lady Windermere's Fan. Try not to think seriously about anything except the salubrity of herbs, an endless subject. Add salt to taste and pepper. Have a drink. Moisten with the juice of a lime. Save the rest of the lime for your next glass of cider. Add almonds and white wine and reduced stock. Bring up to the boil then simmer for as long as it takes to read three pages of Edward Lear, and then forget them. Saute the sole fillets in olive oil then spoon the sauce over each serving. Bon Appetit.

Corporate owners intruding on independent funeral home

The sale of seven B.C. First Memorial funeral services firms to a U.S. corporation poses a threat to independent, family-owned businesses in the same field.

That's the opinion of Libby Jones who, with husband Paul, operates Goodman-Jones Funeral Home in Ganges. She said that the First Memorial sale to Service Corporation International now leaves 39 of the 60 to 70 funeral homes in B.C. in the hands of conglomerates.

The other major operators are the Loewen Group, which owns 16 funeral homes in the province, and MGA, which owns seven. All three companies also own funeral homes in other regions of Canada.

One danger posed by the tightening grip of the conglomerates, Jones said, is that the larger firms now control the association of B.C. funeral homes — their 39 votes mean "there is no way they can be outvoted by the independents."

The association determines funeral home policies and lobbies for government legislation. At present, for instance, it is attempting to convince Victoria that funeral directors and embalmers should be licensed — B.C. is the only jurisdiction in North America without such a provision — and is adamant that telephone soliciting for funeral services should not be permitted.

Jones said another aspect of corporate ownership in her field is the monopoly of services provided by interlocking companies. She noted that Service Corp, for instance, operates companies which manufacture limousines and coaches, caskets, embalming fluid, clothing and stretchers. In addition, it owns crematoriums, funeral homes, vaults and a firm that sells funeral insurance.

The funeral insurance operation, she continued, would allow the company to circumvent any restrictions on telephone soliciting. Because the company offers insurance — even if it is for burials — it is not, technically, a funeral service being sold by telephone, Jones explained.

Another point to be considered by the public, she continued, is the system of bonuses and commissions paid to employees of corporate-owned funeral homes. This places care and concern for the family behind profit motives, Jones insisted.

"The smaller, independent operators are there because they care for the family," she said. "This (corporate ownership) is going to make it very difficult for the little guy to survive."

The larger operators can offer lower set prices for some services, Jones continued, but make that up with higher overall service charges. The customer must also pay to help maintain the more lavish funeral homes operated by the majors, she added.

Jones said that while the threat to the independents is real in B.C., there has yet to be pressure applied on the Goodman-Jones operation in Ganges.

"The point is the public should be aware of the changes going on (in the field)," she said.

WE GOT THE HOUSE on Dover Place all locked up and listed it. It sold the same day. Folks know a good thing.

Looks like the crew will be busy for a few months building me another one. Meanwhile I'll have to pitch a tee pee or something. Unless some more really capable carpenters show up to help me out, I better not book any more jobs for a while.

My sincere thanks and appreciation to John Forrest, Frank Coffey, Ted Baldwinson, Doug Atkins, and Rob O'Dare for their conscientious job at 110 Dover. Also to Stephen and Cameron for joining the team to ease the load so capably.

And to my family for not divorcing me for selling the house out from under them. (It's amazing what a 4 year old will swap for a trip to Disneyland).

Booking now for late August or early September. SHAUN ADAMS, Certified Professional Builder 537-4079. 20-tfn

- The secretary of the Salt Spring Island Library Association received a reply to the letter she sent to the Canadian Board on Geographical Names, on the history and correct spelling of Salt Spring.

The reply was thus: "Your letter enquiring on the correct spelling of Salt Spring Island is acknowledged. The spelling Salt Spring Island, as one word, was officially adopted by the Board on March 1, 1910, and it is thus shown on all our maps and charts. According to our records, it was spelled in this form on a map dated 1856 which accompanied Captain W. Colquhoun Grant's Description of Vancouver Island."

- Bedwell Harbour on South Pender Island is now an official port of entry where yachtsmen can go through customs and enter Canada.

This convenient and beautiful port was used by hundreds of American boaters last year on their way to cruise among the Gulf Islands. Bedwell Harbour lies between North and South Pender Islands and is only a few miles from Friday Harbour, on Orcas Island, the American customs and check-out point.

- The Queen of New Westminster, the newest addition to the Ferry Authority fleet, was launched this week.

Premier W.A.C. Bennett took this occasion to announce plans for a number of further additions, chief among them being a large ocean-going ferry for the projected run between Kelsey Bay, on northern Vancouver Island, and Prince Rupert. The vessel is expected to cost in excess of $6 million and is planned to go into service in May 1966. A further addition is planned in a new ferry for the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run with calls in the Gulf Islands.

- Jim Campbell, well-known chairman of the Gulf Islands School Board, will put his name forward for the nomination at the upcoming Liberal convention to be held in Nanaimo in June.

Campbell has served on the School Board for many years, including terms as chairman for the past two. He was recently elected as president of the Vancouver Island branch of the School Trustees Association.

Birthdays marked

Life-long Salt Spring Island residents Ron Lee and Edna Fraser both celebrated their 80th birthdays last Saturday with an afternoon reception at the Fulford Community Hall. A strong contingent of friends and relatives of the two celebrants turned out for the festivities. Both Lee and Fraser were born and raised on the island.

decided to call a public meeting to discuss the advisability of establishing some kind of community planning machinery for Salt Spring.

Islanders will be given an opportunity to express their opinions, both pro and con, on matters of need and urgency.

- The Wagon Wheels Square Dancing Club from Salt Spring Island became fire-fighters on Galiano Island last weekend.

They were on the spot and saved Montague Marine Park from what could have been a nasty fire. Fortunately some of the group are Galiano Islanders and knew where to telephone while the rest fought the fire. While Gerry Keeping went to summon the fire engine David Weatherell, who brought some of the group over there in his new troller, went to his boat and got some buckets.

While the square dancers became firefighters, caller Bert Barber took command of the situation, giving out orders. By the time the fire engine arrived, the square dancing fire-fighters had the fire well under-control.

- Opinions of Salt Spring Islanders vary. The Department of Highways recently received two separate communications for the island.

"Please eliminate some of the road hazards on the island," pleaded the Chamber of Commerce. "Please leave our roads alone," begged the South Salt Spring Island Association.

- Upgrading of facilities and services at Lady Minto Hospital are to be undertaken at a cost of $500,000.

The funding was approved by the Capital Regional Hospital Board this week. Modernization and expansion of kitchen facilities and other services at the

- Voters from coast to coast will go to the polls on July 8 to elect a new government in Ottawa.

Last week the Liberal government fell when the NDP declined to support the budget introduced by Liberal finance minister John Turner.

- Ernest George Collins died on Sunday at the Lady Minto Hospital.

Collins was 93. He had lived most of his life on Salt Spring Island. With his two brothers, Ernest had become a near legend in his own lifetime. He represented one of the last of the island men who lived almost entirely off the land.

Mr. Collins was the son of J.T. Collins, who settled on Salt Spring in 1895, with his family from Bristol, England. His father purchased the farm property from Levi Davis, one of the original black settlers on the island, who had returned to live in Kentucky.

Ten Years Ago

- When British Columbians returned a Social Credit government at the provincial polls on Thursday, the government party ended up with no carte blanche.

Despite five more seats in the legislature, the Socreds ended up with three less seats than before the election. The NDP climbed from 18 seats to 26. There were no Liberals or Conservatives elected.

In Saanich-Gulf Islands, Hugh Curtis retained his seat, but with a reduced margin. The end of voting saw Curtis win with 15,695 against NDPer John Mika's 13,645.

- The Lady Minto Hospital is in full operation again.

On Saturday the extension to the islands hospital was formally opened by the same Mrs. Barbara Hastings who opened the hospital for the first time in 1958. Several hundred people gathered at the new entrance to the hospital to hear the opening remarks. Rev. S. Hildebrandt dedicated the structure.

Five Years Ago

- Either Crofton or Harmac is suspected of being responsible for a combination of fly ash and soot found floating in Stuart Channel on Tuesday.

A federal environment department spokesman said it was neither coal dust nor an oil spill. He said the black, sooty substance covered about two square miles.

In report for Master's degree

County government options explored

When the mayor of Castlegar asked city engineer Igor Zahynacz why he could not lend a grader to the school district, the public administration major could not provide a reasonable answer.

That question and that lack of a sensible response caused Zahynacz to consider the high number of local governments operating within certain areas, and the need for the inter-sharing of services. He recognized a potential need to have governments work together as a whole.

After 17 years of working with local government, these questions were resurrected when Zahynacz, who now lives in Victoria, began work on a consultant's report for his Master degree in Public Administration. The theme of the recently completed report is a county government system for the Southern Gulf Islands. A county government in the Southern Gulf Islands would create a single co-ordinated local government system which would provide services that could logically be combined under the umbrella of one government unit, the report states.

In other words, most of those agencies currently governing the Southern Gulf Islands — the Capital Regional District (CRD), School District 64, the Islands Trust, the Hospital District and Improvement Districts — would be co-ordinated into one governmental body.

The existing structure of local government in the Gulf Islands, Zahynacz says in his report, is characterised by "the numerous separate government units, the large number of elected representatives in comparison to the population, the under-representation of some parts of the area, and the absence of political decision-making centres."

"The county government system would combine various government units (except improvement districts) into one unit, redistribute and slightly reduce the number of elected representative (from 129 to 118) and would relocate the four decision-making centres to one location."

The report also suggests that creation of a county-style government for the Southern Gulf Islands would help preserve and enhance an historical sense of community among the Gulf Islands — something which has deteriorated in recent years, due in part to the changing transportation system.

The report outlines the following agencies, which currently govern the Southern Gulf Islands:

- The CRD, created in 1963 and extended to the Gulf Islands in 1966.

It provides services such as health, building inspections, animal control, parks and recreation, water supply, sewers, plus general government services such as elections, office services and grants-in-aid.

Based in Victoria, the CRD currently employs 400 people, of whom approximately 25 are employed to provide services to the Southern Gulf Islands.

- School District 64, which provides a full range of primary and secondary education within the Southern Gulf Islands.

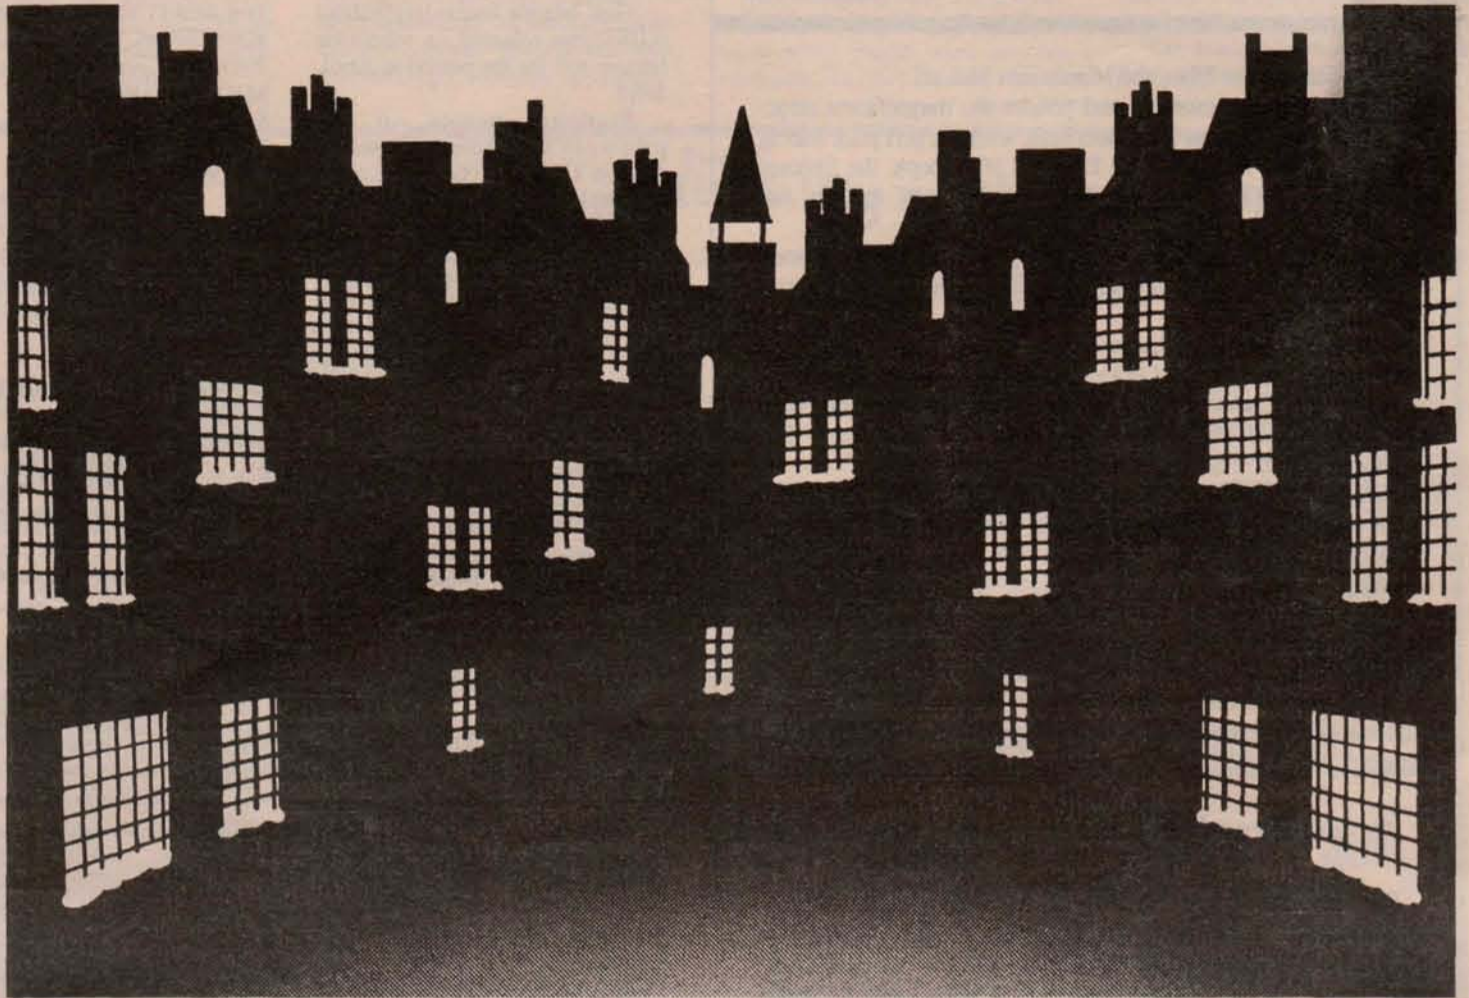

The school district is governed by a board of nine school trustees — five from Salt Spring and one from each of Pender, Mayne, Galiano and Saturna islands.

- The Islands Trust — a special regional planning authority created by the province in 1974 to "preserve and protect" 13 designated Gulf Islands.

The Trust is governed by a board of 26 trustees — two from each of 13 islands — including 12 from the area examined in the county government study.

- The Southern Gulf Islands are part of the Capital Regional Hospital District (CRHD).

A 19-member advisory committee for the CRHD board was established in 1974 to Bennett Bay Waterworks districts) is governed by a board of trustees. The delivery of services is often community-based, employing the aid of volunteers and appointed staff.

- The Southern Gulf Islands are also served by the provincial government in the following areas: road maintenance and subdivision approval; policing; tax collection; ferry service; and property assessment.
- In 1986, there were approximately 186 people employed directly in the provision of local services to the Southern Gulf Islands (not including contractors of B.C. Ferry employees).

Forms of the county government system are used in various countries, including the United States, Australia, New Zealand, Ireland and some provinces in Canada (Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario and Alberta).

In Alberta, the county organizational structure is similar to local government structures in B.C., according to the report, in that there exist a variety of standing committees which oversee specific functions like finance, parks, health and agriculture.

The proposed organization for a county government in the Southern Gulf Islands would see county voters electing nine councillors and five school trustees, using a ward system of representation. (The report proposes the county consist of five wards, with one of Mayne, Galiano, Pender, Saturna and Salt Spring islands in each.) Four councillors would be from Salt Spring, two from Pender, and one from each of the other major islands.

The County Council would include one "reeve" and eight councillors. It would take responsibility for corporate functions such as borrowing, passing bylaws, and taxation.

Four councillors would be appointed to the board of education, joining the five elected school trustees. One councillor would sit on the CRD Hospital Board.

Under the County Council would be one board of variance (responsible for the review and approval of development variances); five Advisory Planning Commissions (responsible for the review of development assist in the political decision-making on matters like hospital financing, construction and planning.

- The Gulf Islands have two hospital facilities (both based in Ganges): Lady Minto Gulf Islands Hospital and Greenwoods Intermediate and Personal Care Facility.

- At the time the report was undertaken, there were 26 improvement districts within the Southern Gulf Islands.

They provide services such as fire protection, health care, water supply and distribution, and street lighting. Each improvement district (i.e., the Fernwood and zoning proposals); a municipal services committee, with four councillors (responsible for all municipal functions except borrowing, bylaws, adoption of final budget and tax collection); and a health services committee, also with four councillors (responsible for all health services, including prevention and inspection).

Aside from the county government, the report suggests voters in each improvement district elect their own trustees — for a total of 104 trustees in 26 improvement districts.

The Council, Board of Variance and Advisory Planning Commissions would be responsible for all the services and functions currently provided by the Islands Trust and the CRD. Consequently, Zahynacz says, the Southern Gulf Islands County would be excluded from the Islands Trust and the CRD jurisdictions.

In his research, which took him to all the Southern Gulf Islands, Zahynacz said he found, in general, that people are happy with the Islands Trust.

He said he consciously incorporated aspects of the Islands Trust system into his proposed county government system. This can be seen, for example, in the ward form of representation which ensures each island maintains its identity and has input into the system. The APC function further establishes this point, he says.

In calculating the financial implications of a county government, Zahynacz bases his figures on the six-year period following 1986. Revenue, including a number of government grants for school districts and municipalities, as well as taxation, should create a surplus until 1991, at which time taxes would be increased.

Local services that would be more expensive to provide through a county system than under present government agencies — i.e., property assessment, hospital construction and police protection — are not included in the county government functions.

"All other local functions assumed by the county are anticipated to cost the same or less under the county system than existing government agencies," the report indicates. Reduction in costs would occur through the sharing of common lands, buildings personnel, office equipment, supplies, etc.

Zahynacz' report says the following criteria used to assess the qualities of good local government would be met through creation of a county-style government in the southern Gulf Islands: accessibility between elected representatives and voters; accountability of (it)one government organization; adequacy of service according to the needs and wants of specific areas; efficiency; rational land use planning (the report notes that school, zoning, local economy, lifestyle and transportation issues could be reviewed together); and simplicity.

"In conclusion," the report reads, "It appears that a county form of government for the Southern Gulf Islands is not only feasible, but desirable."

However, it is noted, this form of government does not have the necessary legislation in place to operate within the British Columbia government system. Zahynacz says the following two steps are recommended for further examination of this government form for the Southern Gulf Islands.

First, the province should prepare draft legislation for the incorporation and operation of a county government system at this time, to provide guidance for residents in the Southern Gulf Islands.

Second, a committee or task force with representatives from all major islands form to discuss creation of a county government in the area.

Zahynacz stresses that a report such as his is not a typical way of bringing in governmental change — usually the impetus comes from inside the community — and that his document is written as a consultant's report.

Three cheers for Man, the Monument Maker!

Just pause for a moment and ponder the magnificent structures this little hairless biped has built with his soft pink hands. Let's see now . . . there's the Pyramid of Cheops, the Sphinx, the Great Wall of China, the mighty ziggurats of Ancient Assyria . . .

France has La Tour Eiffel, Germany the Autobahns, Britain can point to Stonehenge and the palatial splendours of Buckingham and Windsor . . .

American stone chisels have transformed the face of Mount Rushmore into monstrous portraits of presidential heroes. And here too! We Canucks have also dared to dream on the Extra Large scale. Did we not give the world the CN Tower? The Sudbury Nickel? The Wawa Goose?

But my friends, all these artifacts look positively puny when compared with the breathtaking grandeur of a monument taking shape on Staten Island, New York, even as I type these words.

The monument is not yet finished. It is rising phoenix-like out of an abandoned gravel quarry and already it has passed ground level. Twelve miles away in Manhattan, harried executives peering out the windows of their high rise office buildings can perhaps, on a clear day, just make out a faint bulge on the earth's surface.

Ever higher, ever grander

For a city that's world famous for its cynicism, New York's commitment to this new monument is heart tugging to behold. Each day, 5,000 truckloads of offerings unload their contributions before the monument. Each day 25 huge barges wallow to its base, laden to the gunwales with more material to make the monument ever higher, ever grander.

And who contributes these offerings? Is it Donald Trump? Mayor Ed Koch? Some shady cabal of Wall Street power brokers? No. It is each and every average New Yorker. Joe and Josephine Citizen. Every Big Apple denizen — man, woman and child — kicks in contributions to the new monument to the tune of one ton a year.

You just don't see that kind of hands-on commitment any more.

And it's long-term commitment, too. The engineers in charge of the monument predict that it won't be finished in this century. They say it will take until the year 2004 to put the finishing touches on their structure. By that time it will tower 505 feet in the air, three times taller than the Statue of Liberty, bigger even than the Great Pyramid.

They are special engineers, these ones in charge of the massive Staten Island monument. They are what are called "sanitary" engineers. That's because the Staten Island monument is made of a substance seldom used for massive man-made monuments.

Garbage.

Mountain beginning to rise

The formation that's taking shape on Staten Island is New York's — possibly the world's — largest garbage dump. Each New Yorker generates approximately 2,000 pounds worth of refuse annually. Trucks and barges have been dumping that trash in the old quarry near Little Fresh Kills Creek since the end of the Second World War. Now the quarry is filled and a mountain is beginning to rise.

Name of the mountain? Well, New Yorkers who give it even a passing thought call it The Staten Island Dump, but to folks in the Sanitation Department it's known as Fresh Kills.

Gruesomely appropriate name, eh what?

And Fresh Kills is a living monument. The more than one million plastic garbage bags that get dumped on it daily eventually split open. The putrefying contents send out their siren call, attracting clouds of flies and screaming gulls and crows.

Then at night, of course, there are the rats.

By the time Fresh Kills reaches capacity in 2004 there will be 70 million cubic yards of decomposing Gotham garbage on the site. Which makes Fresh Kills about 15 times bigger than the Great Pyramid of Cheops.

Yessir, those Americans sure know how to do things big.

There's just one tiny, unanswered problem.

What are New Yorkers going to do with their garbage when Fresh Kills is finished?

'Country doctor' retires from practice

By A.C. WALDIE, MD

It may be hard to think of Dr. Ernie Jarman as a country doctor, spending years in isolation in the remote North, or making weekly trips to Galiano, Mayne and Pender by small boat, but it is even harder to think of him slogging it out in a city practice — something he has never done. Now, as he prepares for retirement, some of his background begins to emerge.

As a five-year-old from Lachine, P.Q., Ernie Jarman came to Vancouver where he attended King Edward High School, and then University of British Columbia at the outbreak of the war. It was here I first knew him, though somewhat at a distance, because he and my girlfriend of the time both belonged to the prestigious Letters Club, along with Lister Sinclair, Dick Bibbs, Pierre Berton and Jack Margeson. He seemed destined to become a professor or at least a writer, and so it was with some surprise 25 years later when one of my boys got "swimmers itch," the Dr. Jarman we consulted was the same one I had known in student years.

"You could treat him with calamine lotion and phenol," he said, "but here we find it more effective to dunk them in the bathtub across the street."

At a time when antibiotics were used with abandon, Dr. Jarman's treatment for sore throat was always "gargle with salt water."

Following graduation from Queens University Medical School in 1948, Dr. Jarman went to Ft. Rae in the North West Territories where the supply plane came but once a year. Later, he practised in Greenwood in the interior of B.C., Bridge River near Lillooet for a short time, and Britannia Beach near Squamish.

He tried suburban practice in Surrey for a while, but balked at the idea of seeing a patient every seven minutes in the clinic he was about to join. He then came to Salt Spring and bought the practice of Dr. Hjalmer Johnson, now a paediatric urologist at Children's Hospital in Vancouver.

Here he continued and even expanded the tradition of former doctors by making weekly trips to the Outer Islands — one a week to Galiano and Mayne, and the next to Pender. Travelling in the water taxi of the day — Daryl Georgeson's Sophia — he did his weekly rounds. Les Ramsey filled prescriptions at night, and they were delivered by water-taxi next morning. Such were the days when Ganges was really the epicentre of the Gulf Islands.

Never a joiner of service clubs or action groups, Dr. Jarman nevertheless has a host of friends and patients from all stations in life.

While he is a sensitive photographer, his passion in life is to play the piano or banjo — not to display his considerable musical talents, but to get a good, old-fashioned sing-song going.

Pharmacist Les Ramsey, at one time a pharmaceutical representative for Ayerst, tells of his first encounter with Dr. Jarman: "I had just delivered my pitch at the hospital for some new product when Dr. Jarman looked at his watch and said there would be a low tide at Fulford in one hour, and I was to get a pair of gumboots and meet him there. The harvest of the sea was bountiful that day, with crabs, oysters and clams, then he invited me back to his home for a wonderful feast of fresh seafood."

Dr. Jarman has fulfilled his professional career with a quiet competence. His methods were never heroic, nor dramatic, but he worked patiently within his wide grasp of orthodox medicine.

One ex-nurse recalls that wherever a new piece of equipment arrived at the hospital, Dr. Jarman was one of the first to master it because he read the instructions so carefully. In later years he has been painstakingly working at improving the overall standards of patient care in Lady Minto, and has been very much the "elder statesman."

Not being a golfer, it is predictable that Dr. Jarman will continue to do some locum work and his successor, Dr. Ron Reznil, has already engaged him for one day a week while he goes to the city.

We wish Dr. Jarman well, and hope he will have a smooth transition into retirement.

Dr. Waldie is chief of staff at Lady Minto Hospital.

Fulford Days celebration being planned

Plans for the August 19 "Fulford Day" are moving quickly ahead, with a full day of competition, refreshment and music on the agenda.

The Fulford Day Committee, planner of the event, held its second meeting at the Fulford Inn dining room on May 10.

A number of plans were made for the celebration, which will raise funds for the community, plus create a sense of togetherness and pride in Fulford.

Potential beneficiaries of funds raised are the Fulford Hall, the Beaver Point Hall, Drummond Park and the Fulford Branch OAPO.

The May 10 meeting decided the August event will feature a raffle, offering a side of cut and wrapped beef as first prize, a Toro weed-eater (courtesy of Harbour Hardware) as second prize, and dinner for two at the Fulford Inn as third prize.

A refreshment garden and lamb and beef barbecue have been tentatively planned for Drummond Park. The refreshment garden is scheduled to run between 2 pm and 6 pm, with the Labatts sound truck in attendance.

Fine, jail term handed down on pot charges

A 38-year-old Ganges man will serve one day in jail and pay a $1,000 fine for cultivation and possession of marijuana.

Three character witnesses told Judge Filmer that Robert Helfrich, of Long Harbour Road, is an "honest, fair and reliable family man."

Helfrich, who was discovered harvesting numerous marijuana plants in a greenhouse by local RCMP last fall, pleaded guilty to the offence when he appeared in Ganges provincial court on May 10.

The Crown's evidence indicated police found other related paraphernalia inside the accused's house, such as seeds, a book on growing the illegal substance, and an amount of dried marijuana.

Defence counsel P. Freeman told the court his client grew the pot only for his personal use. He said the value of the quantity seized (more than $20,000 worth) is meaningless, because Helfrich kept only the bud portion of the plants.

Freeman and three character witnesses described Helfrich as an active and industrious community member, with no prior criminal record.

Judge Filmer told the court heavier penalties are handed out where trafficking is strongly suspected. He noted this was not the case in this situation. He said, however, that the accused was obviously aware he was involved in an illegal activity.

"I must bring home the seriousness of cultivation offenses," Judge Filmer said, as he handed down the $1,000 penalty and one-day jail sentence.

Lamb and beef will be accompanied by salad and a bun, and hot dogs and pop will be made available for the children.

Several events are currently in the planning stages, including a ball game between Fulford and Ganges at the Fulford ball park, scheduled to begin at 10:30 am.

Music for afternoon activities will be provided by High Risk Chili and other local musicians. High Risk Chili is also scheduled to play at a Fulford Hall dance.

The group also hopes to arrange for a tug-of-war between Fulford and Ganges, with the winner receiving the Jack Rowlands Memorial Trophy.

Planning for a number of children's events are also in the works.

The Fulford Day Committee hopes a number of people will turn out to its next meeting, slated for June 7 at 8 pm in the Fulford Inn dining room.

Canada Post Corporation

"A GOOD WAY TO PROVIDE REAL SERVICE FOR SMALL COMMUNITIES."

Ernie Willis, Area Director, Tulameen, British Columbia

Tulameen Area Director, Ernie Willis, is one of a growing number of municipal leaders to endorse Retail Postal Outlets. Over ninety percent of our customers say service at Retail Postal Outlets is as good as or better than the former post office.

COMMUNITY BENEFITS

In many rural communities across Canada, where postal services have been converted to a local business, community leaders appreciate the benefits the town receives from increased access to postal products and services.

Overall the change from a corporately-operated post office to a Retail Postal Outlet run by local business means:

- Longer hours of service, often including weekends and evenings.
- More outlets. Over the next few years the number of outlets will grow from 5,000 to 7,000 across rural Canada.
- More business. Retail outlets, operated as part of a local business, help strengthen the business base of the community.

*Canada Post Corporation is delivering on its promise.
We're in rural Canada to stay.*

Freemasons will provide hospital ride

Freemasons in B.C. are getting the behind the wheel to help the Canadian Cancer Society (CCS).

The organization has launched a $1 million, 15-year volunteer driver assistance program.

Operating under the slogan "Freemasons of B.C. Care," more than 100 drivers have volunteered to take cancer patients to and from treatment centres in the Greater Vancouver area.

The project began in mid-April with the Freemasons purchasing three vehicles — two sedans and one station wagon — equipped with cellular phones, to pick up patients at ferry terminals, the airport or their homes.

Jan Halliday, spokesman for the Canadian Cancer Society, said the Freemasons approached the CCS last year with the proposal. "They knew of the problem that some patients have with getting to and from the hospitals for treatment," she said. "They came to us with this idea and we think it is wonderful."

The Freemasons supply the cars and drivers, have paid for and equipped the dispatch centre, and provided the necessary computer equipment. They have also pledged to replace the cars every five years.

Gulf Island residents needing the service should contact the dispatch office at 872-2034.

Office hours are Monday to Friday, 7:30 am to 6 pm. While the office is closed on weekends, Halliday said that the Freemasons have stipulated they would make passenger pick-ups and drop-offs seven days a week.

Pensioners plan events

The initiation and planning of upcoming events topped discussions at the Fulford Branch 170 OAPO regular monthly meeting.

The May 16 meeting, held at Fulford Hall, also included discussion of financial matters and heard committee reports.

In the area of coming events, the group decided to send a delegate to the OAPO South Island Regional Meeting in Duncan on May 19. Others interested in attending were encouraged to go.

On June 6 the social meeting will take the form of a wine and cheese party, with musical entertainment provided by a local group. Awards will be presented by Ron Matthews, Regional Steward. The event will begin at 2 pm in the Fulford Hall.

A bus tour is being contemplated for an unspecified Monday in August. Members will soon be canvassed to determine their preferences. The tour will likely cover lower parts of Vancouver Island.

Finally, as the Fulford group did last year, it is co-operating with OAPO Branch 32 of Ganges in preparing a float for entry in the Sea Capers parade.

Fulford, Trucking win opening games

By GARY STYLES

Fulford Inn and Gulf Islands Trucking posted the first wins of the season in Salt Spring Men's Fastball League action last week.

Fulford Inn defeated Patterson's Store 12-1 on Tuesday evening at the Fulford ball park. Errors cost Patterson's five important runs.

Wayne Taylor for Patterson's went two-for-two in a losing cause.

On Thursday night at Portlock Park, Vesuvius Inn could only field eight players, including a fan, and committed three errors as Gulf Island Trucking beat the team 4-1.

Jay Small went three-for-three at the plate, including a triple, for GI Trucking.

Rumour has it the general manager of GI Trucking paid a hefty sum for the services of Colin Byron, who pitched the first game of the season.

Games this week are Vesuvius Inn at Fulford Inn on Tuesday (yesterday), and GI Trucking versus Patterson's on Thursday.

The men's fastball league need umpires. If anybody is interested, please contact Gary Styles or Dan Akerman. The league does pay!

Junior golfers on links

By MAXINE WHORLEY

A honey pot competition was played on Tuesday, May 16, by members of the golf club's 18-hole division. Winner was Marj Russell with 43 points.

Runners-up were Connie Broadbent (41), Alice Fraser (40), Mildred Mitchell (38), Cas Black and Jerry Alexander (37), Barb Maguire and Tash Hewison (35), and Olive Wilkie and Marj Mills (34).

Marj Mills took the putt pot, with 28.

In the senior button match — an off-island competition — Connie Broadbent and Chris LaGrow are five-time winners. They beat Prospect Lake at Metchosin.

On Thursday, May 18, the men played the third round of their ringer and best ball match. Low at net 65 was Herb Monro. Jack Fraser was next at 68, and Henri Jefferies followed at 69.

M.K. Mouat, Walt Turnbull and Malcolm Robertson all posted scores of net 70.

Next Thursday, the men play for the Lucky Mashie trophy. This is a two-man team best-ball event.

Junior golf officially began on Monday, May 8. This year the senior golf volunteers will play along with the juniors. It is hoped that the turnout will improve as the season progresses.

On Tuesday, May 9, a throw-away competition was played by members of the ladies 18-hole golfing division. Anne Munro turned in a low net of 41 to win first place; runner-up was Julie Godwin. The putt pot was taken by Helen Weliver with 28 putts.

On the same day, Salt Spring's ladies hosted Uplands in team play with the local side taking 86 points to Upland's 58.

On Monday, May 8, Salt Spring played at Galiano in the first round of the Georgeson Cup. Salt Spring recorded 540 points to 549 for Galiano and 561 for Pender.

In the off-island seniors button match, Connie Broadbent and Chris LaGrow played at Uplands, winning over Gorge Vale.

In the nine-hole ladies division, 28 members participated, with the low net going to Jean Williams. The putt pot was shared by Flo McLeod, Babs Ross and Pat Olding.

In addition, for parcels greater than 48 hectares (118 acres) or larger, the bylaw proposes to allow residential clustering of lots having a minimum area requirement of one hectare (2.47 acres). Additional residential lots are allowed if a large remainder is left in resource use.

Bylaw No. 238 cited as "Zoning Bylaw, Salt Spring Island, 1985, Amendment Bylaw No. 5, 1989", proposes to establish a Guest House (GH) Zone which permits guest house use of not more than 9 rooms for transient accommodation in addition to a self-contained dwelling unit for the accommodation of the owner and family or the operator of the guest house use. In addition, the proposed bylaw establishes site coverage, minimum site area for a guest house, height, setback, off street parking, minimum service level, and minimum parcel areas for the proposed zone. The zone applies to Lot 7, Section 3, Plan 13007 and Lot 15, Section 3, Plan 18728, Salt Spring Island as shown on the following sketch.

Bylaw No. 239 cited as "Zoning Bylaw, Salt Spring Island, 1985, Amendment Bylaw No. 6, 1989", would permit marina facility use including washrooms and showers, and marina administrative facility use as accessory uses to marina use in those locations that are zoned Comprehensive Development 2 (CD(2)). In addition, Schedule "A" of the zoning classification of the water areas as shown on the following sketch is being rezoned from Water-A (WA) Zone to Water-C (WC) Zone.
