Gravett moving to bigger pond

Paul Gravett, executive director of ArtSpring, is leaving Salt Spring Island.

Gravett has accepted the position of executive director of the new Kay Meek Centre for the Performing Arts in West Vancouver, effective September 1.

"This is an opportunity to further my current career goals and achieve personal growth within the new company," Gravett told the Island Arts Centre Society (IACS) board of directors last Thursday.

"Now, with ArtSpring in a very strong operational and financial position, and as the board of directors prepares to take ArtSpring to the 'next phase,' I know this is the appropriate time for transition."

IACS president Judy Norget said, "It was with deep and sincere regret that the board accepted Paul's resignation. The board recognizes the amazing commitment, energy, and fine combination of skills that Paul brought to the job, and how difficult it will be to find someone of equal calibre to replace him.

He will be a very tough act to follow."

The board added: "In so many ways Paul Gravett has made ArtSpring what it is today — perhaps the best arts centre in Canada for a community of an equivalent size. Through Paul's efforts, over the seven years of his tenure, ArtSpring has experienced tremendous growth and now is firmly established as an exciting and vibrant arts centre. It has become Salt Spring's principal cultural asset, and the quality of its theatre and galleries, as well as its programming, has become recognized across the country."

The Kay Meek Centre opened in May of 2005, and serves a population of 40,000. It has two theatres — a 500-seat main stage and a 200-seat studio theatre, a two-storey open space main lobby and gallery.

A search committee chaired by Norget has already been formed and a recruitment process will soon begin to have a new executive director in place by September.

Legoland 'like nothing you've seen before'

By STACY CARDIGAN SMITH
Driftwood Contributor

A lot of actors might say a part was written for them, but when Gulf Islands Secondary School (GISS) alumnus Amitai Marmorstein says it, he actually means it.

According to Marmorstein, playwright Jacob Richmond wrote Legoland after seeing Marmorstein and another actor preparing for a role at the University of Victoria a few years back.

But the role wasn't necessarily written for Marmorstein's skills as an actor, or modelled after his personality.

Instead, it was inspired by his appearance, or rather, the resemblance between Marmorstein and his co-star.

Richmond thought they looked so much alike, he penned a play for the two to star in as brother and sister.

Legoland follows the siblings as they leave their home in a hippie-village nudist colony that Marmorstein says might be loosely modelled after Salt Spring.

Residents of the island can decide that for themselves when the play comes here in early June.

But that's about where the similarities between Marmorstein and the character he plays end.

In fact, he says the character he portrays is so unlike his own, family members didn't recognize him in the play.

"My mother, when she came to see it, didn't recognize me for the first 15 minutes of the play. She was wondering when I was going to come on."

In the play, the sibling duo goes out in search of the real world only to discover they've left paradise behind.

"The moral of the story is pop culture can be dangerous to impressionistic youth," says Marmorstein.

Marmorstein says the play is very stylized, with quick, witty dialogue and fast movement.

"It's like nothing you've ever seen before," he said, adding it's especially not like anything that's been to Salt Spring in the past.

The young actor, who is going into his final year in theatre at the University of Victoria, is filled with praise for playwright Richmond, who co-directs the show with Britt Small.

Marmorstein makes no secret of the fact he is a huge fan of Richmond's work.

"He's up and coming," said Marmorstein. "He's hip to the scene."

Celine Stubel co-stars in the show. Although she is not the original actress the piece was written for, Marmorstein says Stubel, who recently won Monday Magazine's M Award for Victoria's favourite actress, is wonderful in the part.

"I'm sort of in shock I get to work across from her," he said.

The Salt Spring performances will raise funds for the play's summer tour to Toronto, Victoria and Vancouver.

Twenty per cent of the local show proceeds will also be donated to GISS.

Promoter Raizy Marmorstein describes the play as "children's theatre, but not for kids." In fact, she recommends leaving the little ones at home due to its strong language.

An intimate audience of 60, some of whom will end up sitting on the floor, as well as juice boxes supplied by Thrifty Foods and cookies from Ganges Village Market and Embe Bakery, will help add to the youthful feel of the play.

Legoland runs from June 5-7 at the Second Story Theatre Room in the studio of drama teacher Jason Donaldson.

Tickets are only $10 and available at GISS Tuesday through Thursday at lunchtime, and at Watermark Books in Ganges.

People should buy them early, as the show is expected to sell out.

Art 'rodeo' rides at island gallery

Blue Horse Folk Gallery is staging a "Salt Spring Rodeo" before artists Paul Burke and Anna Gustafson head to Alberta with a selection of their rodeo artwork.

An open house at the gallery will take place this Sunday "before we round up all the cowboys, horses and calves and put them on the truck for Calgary," says a gallery press release.

Burke, Gustafson and their rodeo works leave shortly afterward for a show and sale in Alberta.

On show at the open house will be Burke's new sculpture series depicting various rodeo action, such as bare-back riding, steer wrestling and calf roping.

"The interplay between cowboy and animals is rich sculpturally," says Burke. "I have found myself working at a larger scale than usual and enjoying the challenge of evoking these remarkable events."

Besides attending rodeos, Paul has been inspired by the photographs of Louise Serka and local photographer Larry Melious.

Gustafson is in the final stages of work on an experimental series of vessels, which will be ready for viewing at the open house.

"It's difficult to really talk about new work until it finally emerges out of the kiln," she says. "I can't help being a little superstitious."

The June 4 event takes place between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. at 175 North View Drive.

Mowbray and Wall at M&M

The sax/guitar duo of Mowbray and Wall is returning to Music and Munch at All Saints By-the-Sea church on Wednesday, June 7, after an absence of two years.

Paul Mowbray and Michael Wall began performing together on Salt Spring in 1998 and have been attracting adherents to their brand of music in the intervening years.

Their repertoire is an exciting mix of Latin jazz, modern jazz standards and music influenced by Eastern and African cultures. Their CD The Wave Project, released in 2000, voyages from Afghanistan to Salt Spring Island in its source of inspiration.

The pairing of sax and guitar is rare in jazz. Mowbray and Wall creatively explore the different tonal and emotional qualities of the three saxophones (tenor, alto and soprano) and two guitars (nylon string and electric).

"Mowbray usually plays the nylon string guitar which, combined with the sax, creates music evocative of warmer climes," states a press release. "Their improvisation is always fresh and fun."

Recent additions to the repertoire have included

Paul on vocals.

"They are ready to take you on a smooth ride to a world jazz sound that is always bigger than the sum of its two players."

Mowbray is a professional musician-composer, singer-songwriter, and teacher who now lives in Victoria. Wall claims that he (Michael) "is a mere amateur living on Salt Spring."

Mowbray and Wall's fun-filled session of always-entertaining music begins at 12:10 p.m. and is followed by an optional light lunch for $5.50 prepared by the Anglican Caterers.

Spectacular Norval Morriseau exhibition should not be missed

The Norval Morriseau stories are almost as fascinating as his art.

Canada's most important First Nations artist and originator of the Woodland School, Morriseau was the first to paint his Ojibwa legends for the white man to see.

A member elect of the Royal Canadian Academy, he was awarded the Order of Canada for his contribution to Canadian art and he is collected by the National Gallery of Canada, the only First Nation artist to have had a solo show there. He was dubbed "Picasso of the North" by the French press in 1969 and has honorary doctorates from McGill and McMaster universities.

The other stories tell of an alcoholic Morriseau drawing with any available tool on brown paper bags outside of liquor stores for 20 bucks, enough to get him a bottle.

Because of this, there is now a Norval Morriseau Heritage Committee of six people, mostly curators, historians and a lawyer, who are authenticating Morriseaus.

ART BEAT ON THE ROCK

Now at 73 -- though his exact age is questionable as Indian Affairs at the time deemed birthing data irrelevant -- he resides in a seniors' home in Nanaimo after living all over Canada.

Living with Parkinsons disease, he has his good days and his bad ones, which explains why he was represented by his adopted son and business manager Gabe Vadas at an impressive show opening at Thunderbird Gallery on Saturday.

It's a rare opportunity to see 10 ink drawings and nine large paintings from the Morriseau private collection. Though the ones on the wall are not for sale, Thunderbird can access a selection of his work for sale for you. Painted on illustration board with red and black felt pen, the drawings meld his spiritual beliefs with a message of hope.

In Interdependence, simply drawn creatures with fins, tales and alien-like heads are linked to each other with three figures in the centre held in womb-like comfort. A sun is inside each of these figures.

The fish creatures are the ancestors that are always with us and the sun is our life force that lights us from within. In the paintings, done in true, intense colours with no white or black mixed in, the figures are all outlined in black. Most of the paintings use portals as a theme with humans journeying on a path towards different realities. The family, migration and sweat lodge stories offer us other series with which to ponder.

Vadas explained that Morriseau, a Grand Shaman like his grandfather who raised him, uses his work to educate us in the different realities that exist on many realms that are always supported by the ancestors. We should open up our imaginations to the possibilities that await.

Vadas, now 40, met Morriseau on the streets of Vancouver and has stayed with him for 20 years. Morriseau suggested that they had been together in past lives and for Vadas, "Norval was the first person who ever made me feel like a person. He told me, 'All's well.'"

His work says the same thing. This spectacular show runs till June 3 at Matt Steffich's Thunderbird Gallery in Grace Point Square.

Metzner and Fox set to thrill Ganges crowd

Tree House Café in Ganges welcomes urban folk artists Sarah Noni Metzner and Corwin Fox for a Friday, June 2 event.

"These two put on a show that moves, grooves and stays in your head for days," states a press release.

"Both extremely talented artists, together on stage they create the unforgettable."

They will be joined for the Tree House gig by drummer Tim Watson.

Metzner is described as "a poet who writes folk songs in an unrestricted way. These poetic gifts are presented in a raw, eclectic and lyrically driven format by way of her sophomore release Daybreak Mourning on local independent label Dog My Cat Records."

Fusing elements of folk, bluegrass and hip hop, Fox has created his own evolving style of folk music that seems best classified as "neo-folk."

His recent recording Dream Water Rain Music marks Fox's third and most ambitious solo album in four years, released on his own label Coqi Records, which is based in Victoria.

"With his distinctive knack for ironic juxtaposition and a playful sense of humour, Fox takes another deep cut at big business, government practices and environmental politics, all while warming us with his deeply concerned and heartfelt words of compassion and wisdom."

Fox's new EP Tiger will release this summer during a chock-a-block tour of Canada and the U.S. west coast with Metzner.

Hammond organ anchors jazz concert

One of Canada's best jazz pianists performs on Salt Spring with the Pat Coleman Quartet on Sunday.

Bob Murphy will perform on the rarely heard Hammond-B-3 organ in a concert that begins at 3 p.m. at Lions Hall.

"A professional musician by age 14, Bob Murphy stands today as a seasoned master of the art of jazz piano. He is a veteran of the Vancouver and Toronto music scenes. Bob has worked as a musical director and accompanist for CBC and CTV television on such programs as The Alan Thicke Show and The Alan Hammel Show. He has written and produced music for film, video and commercials and has often recorded his own compositions for CBC's various national jazz radio programs."

A few of the legends that Bob Murphy has performed with over the years include Ernestine Anderson, Chuck Berry, Richie Cole, Lionel Hampton, John Handy, Eddie Harris, Fraser MacPherson and Henry Mancini.

Leading his own bands,

Murphy has opened for Cannonball Adderley, Ornette Coleman, Miles Davis, Woody Herman, Buddy Rich and Sarah Vaughan.

"Bob has a highly recognizable personal style, but also reflects the influences of Bill Evans, Keith Jarrett, Miles Davis, Cannonball Adderley and John Coltrane, among others."

The event is a fundraiser for the Salt Spring Jazz Festival, which runs June 23-25.

Tickets are $20, or $15 for Salt Spring Jazz and Blues Society members. (Memberships and festival info are available at the Saturday market.)

Students holding valid ArtSpring youth passes get in for $5.

Next in the line-up of fundraising concerts is Fiesta! — an evening of big band Latin jazz with Swing Shift.

Then on June 17 at ArtSpring, the society presents an eclectic concert featuring saxophonist Roy Styffe, Pat Coleman, the Gumboot Dancers, Soul Shakedown, Simon Millerd on piano, vocalist Sue Newman and more.

Adalian leaves island for Vancouver and Performing Arts Lodge

Graffiti Theatre Company is losing its long-time artistic director as Yvonne Adalian gets set for a move to Vancouver.

Adalian has acquired a suite in the brand new Performing Arts Lodge, located on Coal Harbour, right next to Stanley Park.

"This facility will be home to many long-time performing artists and houses its very own 100-seat theatre," explains a Graffiti press release. "Yvonne intends to continue with her lifelong work in theatre, and may also move into TV and film work."

Adalian, along with Graffiti's executive director Amanda Spottiswoode, started Graffiti Theatre in 1997. Over almost a decade she has directed, acted in and produced many and varied theatre pieces for Graffiti, which have played to enthusiastic audiences at a variety of venues.

Adalian has been involved in Salt Spring's theatre community since 1981.

She wetted her directorial feet with the then Salt

Spring Players and with Diana Hayes created Theatre Alive, which presented plays at the former Off Centre Stage and the Activity Centre. Before moving to Salt Spring, Adalian performed at most major theatre centres across Canada and in London, England.

Well-known Salt Spring celebrity Scott Hylands will take on Graffiti's artistic director role, initially for a year.

Hylands has spent a lifetime in show business and has appeared with distinction in numerous Canadian theatres, including Toronto's Royal Alex, the Stratford Festival, Theatre Calgary, Edmonton's Citadel and the Belfry in Victoria.

"I know that everyone on Salt Spring joins me in wishing Yvonne all the very best in her new endeavours," said Spottiswoode.

"She will be sorely missed and Salt Spring audiences can look forward to future guest appearances by Yvonne, either in a directorial or performance role."

EXPLORE THE COAST

5-Day Desolation Sound Explorer

You've heard of Desolation Sound... deep, calm waters rimmed with majestic snow-capped mountains. Anchorages that offer spectacular beauty. Waterfalls and pristine lakes. Desolation is truly misnamed — it's a yachtsman's playground. We leave Maple Bay July 3rd to travel to this beautiful place. Along the way, we'll stop at Jedediah Island and enjoy a walk to the old homestead. The next day brings us into Desolation Sound and the adventure begins as we anchor in different anchorages to view and enjoy the spectacular scenery and maybe a swim in warm water. We disembark at Campbell River for ground transportation back to Duncan.

$1,750 plus GST pp, double occupancy, all-inclusive, including great food!

5-Day Princess Louisa Adventure Cruise

Your destination, Princess Louisa Inlet is one of the most spectacular cruising destinations on the southern coast. It's the contrast that I appreciate in all that I do and in all of the people I meet along my path, from the mountains of north central B.C. where I was raised, to the city sprawl of Calgary, Alberta, where I completed my academic studies in Swedish Massage in 1997. From the gratification of operating a successful massage practice for three years in Jasper National Park, to establishing a loyal clientele while performing massage for one of Victoria's premier spas. My massage has evolved over the years as I have travelled and learned to trust my intuition. I appreciate that massage gives me the chance to interact with people on such a personal level, and I respect the mutual trust necessary to form such a bond.

During an initial consultation I will usually try to get an impression from a new client as to what their expectations are, what experience they have had with massage, and a brief discussion to get an idea about what kinds of work and recreation they do. I believe that I do my best massage in a 90 minute session, which gives me time to mix in some relaxation while still giving attention to the areas of chronic tension.

It's always great when I hear feedback from people after a session, and I love to see the contrast from the way they were before I got my hands on them!

Bring Wellness to Life

Cancer survivors urge others to join them for Relay for Life Victory Lap

By STACY CARDIGAN SMITH
Driftwood Contributor

Many people have signed up to participate in the first annual Relay for Life, which takes place on the island on June 9, but organizers say there is still one area that needs more participants.

"We're really looking for more survivors to come forward and participate," said Lynne Fraser, who is a cancer survivor herself.

Relay for Life is a 12-hour event that raises money for the Canadian Cancer Society. Participants can run, jog or walk in teams of eight to 16 people.

"It's all about a celebration of survival," said Fraser.

John Wakefield, the Canadian Cancer Society's Relay for Life coordinator, said 22 teams were registered for the relay on last Thursday morning, and teams may continue to register up until the day of the relay.

The Salt Spring community's Relay for Life website notes some $38,000 has so far been raised, including an anonymous $10,000 donation collected by Karen Hosie for her team.

One way survivors can participate is through the Survivors' Victory Lap. The Victory Lap kicks off the relay and gives cancer survivors the opportunity to share and celebrate their successes. It also allows them to thank those who helped them during their battle, and to give hope to those who have been affected by the disease.

There are currently eight people signed up to participate in the Victory Lap; Fraser said they are hoping for at least 30.

Tracey Braiden is one participant. She beat her cancer in 1995 and is walking to give hope to others.

"It's worthwhile just to give people the opportunity to know it's not the end," said Braiden.

Both Braiden and Fraser expect the event to be an emotional one, but think it will be a positive experience for those who are ready to participate.

Fraser said there will be a quiet place for survivors to rest if the experience does prove to be too much for them.

There is no cost for survivors to walk the Victory Lap and they receive a T-shirt, have access to the VIP tent and are supplied with refreshments if they participate, said Fraser.

Survivors can also join a relay team; volunteer, or donate.

Fraser said there are a number of survivors who are competing on teams, but they are hoping more will come forward for the Victory Lap.

Another way to support the cause is to purchase a luminary for $5.

Luminaries are lanterns of a-sort made from fireproof white paper bags. Candles are placed in the bags to create glowing tributes to those who battle cancer. The luminaries light the relay track throughout the evening.

Fraser said she got involved with the events pertaining to survivors because it is a cause close to her heart. She said her 1996 battle with breast cancer is something she thinks about every day.

"I think it's one of the greatest gifts I could have been given," Fraser said.

"It changes your outlook. You choose to do the things that are really important. There's not a day that goes by that you don't think about it and there's not a day that goes by you aren't reminded about it by looking [in the mirror]."

To participate in the Survivors' Victory Lap, or for more information on the Relay for Life, contact John Wakefield at 537-4624 or visit www.bc.cancer.ca and follow the Relay for Life links.

Fall Grants Request for Letters of Interest

The purpose of the Salt Spring Island Foundation is to enhance the quality of life in our island community. Grants are given twice each year to support the work of a wide range of the island's registered charitable organizations and other qualified donees. Does your organization want to apply for financial assistance for a current project? If you do, you are asked to send a Letter of Interest to the Foundation's Grants Advisory Committee on or before August 30. Guidelines for this letter can be obtained by emailing ssifoundation@saltspring.com or by phoning Gladys Campbell at 653-4336 or Carol Biely at 537-8368. After reviewing the Letters of Interest, the Grants Advisory Committee will provide those organizations meeting the basic criteria with application forms so that they may submit a more comprehensive Grant Application.

Cunningham bikes across Canada for breath

The son of a Salt Spring couple will test his lung capacity as he gears up for a 7,000-kilometre cycling tour across Canada to raise money for the B.C. Lung Association.

Cameron Cunningham — the son of islanders Randy and Cathie Cunningham — is one of a five-person Biking for Breath team set to leave Vancouver June 10 and arrive late August on the coast of Newfoundland.

"We're cycling across the country to raise awareness about the importance of clean air, active living and environmental sustainability," said Cunningham.

"We chose to support the lung association because of the relationship between lung health and the environment. Our goal is to raise a total of $30,000."

A Simon Fraser University student and part-time campus health educator, Cunningham is currently completing his honours degree in kinesiology.

Anyone interested in supporting the ride, reading more about it, or following the Biking for Breath team's cross-country progress can visit the team online at www.bikingforbreath.blogspot.com or call the B.C. Lung Association at 604-731-5864.

FALL FAIR FOCUS

LIVESTOCK

By Sandy Barclay

The reasons why island folks raise livestock are as varied as the livestock themselves. The Fall Fair offers the perfect platform for all livestock owners to share in their pastimes, passion, and/or livelihood.

The livestock area of our Fair is an exciting and ever changing place!

Browsing the catalogue you will see that there are numerous sections with plenty of entry classes to entice the competitive edge in all of us. The display section presents the opportunity to showcase non-judged or unique livestock. The members of the 4-H clubs are given the opportunity to share their enthusiasm and knowledge. Ongoing demonstrations and visiting areas create the opportunity for all livestock owners to partake in the Fall Fair.

If you have livestock to enter, knowledge to share, a skill to demonstrate, or just want to be part of it ... then the Fall Fair's Livestock Area is inviting you to join in our great experience.

Check out the catalogue, which will be distributed in the July 6th edition of The Driftwood, and submit your entries. Feel free to contact any of the Section Coordinators for more info or to volunteer.

Imagine Salt Spring! What's in your plan?

Can you imagine Salt Spring Island in 2020 and beyond? What does it look like? Are we a community of neighbours? Have we protected our natural environment, our drinking water, our rural way of life? What sustains our local economy? Do you or your children still live here?

If you have a 2020 vision of Salt Spring, the Islands Trust wants to hear from you. We've begun a review of our Official Community Plan (OCP), and we'd like as many islanders as possible to participate.

A community's OCP sets out its values, objectives, and general policies. It guides the decisions of the Local Trust Committee concerning land use and community planning. The Islands Trust staff and the trustees rely on the OCP as an important measure of the direction the community wants to take on a broad range of issues.

Most communities review their Official Community Plans about every five years. Our OCP was approved in 1998, so it's time to re-evaluate our vision of our island.

What's most important to you?

We're not intending to re-write the whole OCP. But we want to consider the key issues that the community, Trust staff, and the trustees believe are most urgent – and to include new policies where necessary.

The first phase of the review (ending June 30) is to identify the topics that people think are most important. For example, housing, drinking water, master plans for Ganges Harbour and for Fulford Village, and preserving farmland are issues that many people raise. There are lots of others.

We'd like you to get involved. You can complete an on-line survey by going to the Islands Trust website at www.islandstrust.bc.ca and clicking on Salt Spring Island – Renewing our Community Values and Vision. You can also drop into the Trust office and pick up copies of the current OCP and some discussion papers we've prepared. You can attend one of the public meetings soon to be announced.

And you can call the Islands Trust office to receive email updates on the review, or to let us know how you might like to participate. We can be reached at:

Environmental Excellence added to Terra Firma awards

An innovative Salt Spring company can add another honour to its growing collection of accolades.

Terra Firma Builders has won the 2006 VIATech Award for Environmental Excellence.

VIATech, an association that promotes the advanced technology industry on Vancouver Island, announced the award May 17.

Terra Firma Builders is well known on Salt Spring as the creator of rammed earth construction.

Founder Meror Krayenhoff — who developed the SIREwall system (Stabilized, Insulated Rammed Earth) — says he plans "to make the choice of insulated rammed earth homes available to everyone in North America."

Terra Firma homes have won 27 gold Canadian Home Builder Association awards, including six for environmental excellence.

To meet the rising demand for insulated rammed earth homes, Terra Firma now trains contractors and architects in the SIREwall system.

The VIATech Environmental Excellence Award is sponsored by Carmanah Technologies.

It is awarded to a company that has significantly demonstrated the environmental and economic benefits of sustainable technologies through the design, manufacture or implementation of "green" technologies.

WHAT'S ON THIS WEEK

A Weekly Feature of the Gulf Islands Driftwood

Salt Spring trails offer ideal outings for young families

By MITCHELL SHERRIN
 Driftwood Reporter

One of the best ways to appreciate Salt Spring's natural beauty is to take a stroll through the woods or scramble along a few local beaches.

That can be a bit daunting for families with young children, but some toddler-friendly strolls can be recommended.

Ruckle Provincial Park in the south end of the island is a must see, even for those who tremble at the thought of hiking.

One easy five-minute trail in Ruckle Park leads past a collection of quaint heritage farm buildings (often seen with sheep) through a lovely old orchard and down to Grandma's Bay where it continues along the shoreline. The trail begins near the first parking area.

Mouat Park, right behind ArtSpring on Seaview Avenue in town, has a short loop (under 10 minutes for an adult) that can even accommodate strollers or wheelchairs along a closed road. There's also a slightly longer (20-minute) trail loop that curves around the park.

Another easy hike is found at Dunbabin Park northeast of Ganges with trail heads at Robinson and Stark roads (each 500 metres from the intersection of those roads).

Dunbabin Park features a classic rainforest setting with large cedars and firs, along a well-built path by a creek. The walk is about 20 minutes each way with a few stairs and mild climbs.

Duck Creek, near Vesuvius, offers a 1.5-kilometre (45-minute) loop along a cascading creek and rolling meadows. The creek even bears salmon in the fall.

With a few stairs, a boardwalk and a well-marked trail, Duck Creek is a fairly easy walk. Trail heads can be found at Sunset Drive (across from mail boxes near 208 Sunset) and Broadwell Road.

Southwest of town, Fern Creek Park presents a brisk (25-minute return trip) walk with some steep inclines along a fern-lined gorge to an upland park. Access is off Isabella Point Road (approximately 750 metres south of Drummond Park).

Hiking with kids takes extra preparation. Plan to double or triple walk times based on the age of the youngsters.

Bring extra clothing, water and snacks (with a backpack to carry all their stuff) for even the shortest walks.

When the sun ducks down, take a seat in front of the blazing fire on one of the over stuffed sofas and order a pre-dinner cocktail from the well-stocked and competently staffed bar.

Move to your quiet and comfortable candle lit table and start your meal off with a combo platter which samples a little bit of everything, taking away the stress of deciding which scrumptious starter to choose.

Order a bottle of wine from the tastefully stocked cellar which boasts a variety of local and international wines or perhaps try a Saltspring Golden Ale and see what it takes to be an award winning beer.

For your main course, try fresh wild grilled salmon with capers, a Soya Nova organic tofu burger with half salad and half fries, or a 10 oz pepper steak Madagascar with mushrooms and onions. End your lovely meal with an ever changing selection of freshly made desserts and a steamy cappuccino.

Harbour House Restaurant and Lounge also offers specials throughout the week (served from 5

- 9 pm) so mark these on your calendar: Monday - Cheeseburger and Fries ($4); Tuesday - Seafood Pot Pie with Salad and Dessert ($11.95); Wednesday - Prawn Night ($.25 each/Min. 10); Thursday - Wing Night ($.35 each/Min. 10); and Friday - "Alberta Beef Night" ($14.95).

Eight community stewards pegged annual Trust awards

A total of eight individuals and groups have been nominated for the fifth annual Islands Trust Community Stewardship Awards Program.

Nominees' projects include rainwater harvesting, land conservation, recycling, the Sensitive Ecosystem Inventory, wildlife tree stewardship and beach clean-up.

"The award program is a great opportunity to honour dedicated individuals and groups who have donated countless hours to the stewardship of the islands in the Trust area," said Trust Council chair Kim Benson.

"This year, the diverse nature of the work of the nominees and the quality of the projects in which they have been involved is outstanding," she added. "The nominations reflect the contributions of groups and individuals to improve the community, culture or sustainability of one or more of the Trust area islands."

Nominees are from Gabriola, Mayne, North and South Pender, Salt Spring and Thetis.

Individual nominations are:

- Bob Burgess, Gulf Islands Rainwater Connection Ltd. of Thetis Island, for his work on rainwater harvesting.

- Glenna Borsuk of Gabriola Island for her work with Centre Stage Holdings to dedicate and protect 707 acres of forest land.

- Ann Johnston of Mayne Island for her work on recycling.

- Jan Kirkby of North

Pender Island for her work on the Sensitive Ecosystem Inventory on North and South Pender islands.

Public Comment Invited on an Application for an Environmental Assessment Certificate Vancouver Island Transmission Reinforcement Project

British Columbia Transmission Corporation (BCTC) has applied for an Environmental Assessment (EA) Certificate for the proposed Vancouver Island Transmission Reinforcement Project. The Project is subject to review under the British Columbia Environmental Assessment Act, S.B.C. 2002, c.43 and the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act.

The Vancouver Island Transmission Reinforcement Project is a proposal to replace and upgrade existing 138 kV overhead transmission lines and submarine cables connecting southern Vancouver Island, Salt Spring Island and Galiano Island to the Lower Mainland with new 230 kV infrastructure.

The Project consists of overhead lines, underground cables, submarine cables, and modifications to two existing substations and four existing cable terminals. The length of the Project corridor is approximately 67 km, connecting Arnott Substation in Delta and the Vancouver Island Terminal in North Cowichan. Project facilities will be constructed and operated entirely within existing rights-of-way and on lands owned by BC Hydro.

The B.C. Environmental Assessment Office (EAO) has accepted BCTC's Application for review and a formal public comment period on the Project begins on June 1, 2006 and ends on July 27, 2006.

During this time, the public is invited to comment on the Application and potential environmental, economic, social, heritage or health effects of the Project. The purpose of the comment period is to document issues as they relate to the technical review of the Application. Form letters, petitions or other submissions that only state a position for or against a given project cannot generally be considered.

Yearbook students toast class of '06

By SEAN MCINTYRE
Driftwood Reporter

Gulf Islands Secondary's graduating class may get a chance to usher in their final days of high school with festivities scheduled throughout the week and over the weekend, but for the 16 students in John Cameron's yearbook class, Grad 2006 has been a year-long obsession.

"Working on the yearbook makes grad just a little bit more special," said Grade 12 student Kylin Lee only days after wrapping up production of the 2006 edition. "We're all really excited to see the final product."

Since the course began back in September, Lee and her classmates have been on a mission to collect thousands of pictures, cutlines and tidbits of personal info from as many of the school's students as possible.

In some cases, students would seemingly make a point of trying to escape the lenses of yearbook students on the prowl in the school's hallways and classrooms, whereas others would mysteriously end up in picture after picture.

The end result was a nine-month tour encompassing every club, society, athletic team, teacher and staff member in the school.

Lee said it is impossible to tell exactly how long students spent on the project, since so much of the work was done outside of class time.

"Events happen all the time and somebody has to be there," she said. "If you can't do it, you find somebody who can."

ONE FOR THE BOOKS: 2006 was a year to remember for yearbook class students Kylin Lee, Laura Biagioni and Emily Myers. The graduation ceremony takes place on Saturday afternoon.

At the beginning of September, students were given the basics and told to hit the ground running.

With a lab full of computers, digital cameras, photo editing tools, publishing software and a well-worn CD player, students set to work and never stopped.

They built the yearbook from the ground up, meeting to discuss every aspect of the book's final layout from fonts, pictures, colours and content.

According to Laura Biagioni, the class gave her the chance to test the waters and see if a career in journalism or design was really for her, and though the verdict is still out, she said, working on the yearbook was a great way to finish off her high school years.

The entire experience proved far less stressful than she expected when she first signed up for the class, she added.

"It was still a work environment, but everyone was just so tuned in to what they were doing," she said. "I've always had an interest in visual arts, but now I know so much more about production and working on a team with an actual product and deadline."

Neither does producing the 148-page hardcover books complete with glossy pictures come cheap, and even with 360 copies sold at $40 a piece, part of the yearbook class' task involved sales and advertising.

Emily Myers said raising money for the school yearbook may be a contentious issue, but said it's the only way to complete the project.

"A lot of people wanted to help out the school," she said.

"It wasn't too hard to get businesses, community groups and parents to step forward. I only had to harass very few people."

With the last of the advertising revenue collected and the final product now off to the printers, there remains little to do for the yearbook students except sit back and let the final weeks of the school year play themselves out.

"To see it come out will be really cool," Lee said. "It's a real source of pride, not only for us as a class but for the entire school."

Freedomland novel material too complex for film translation

Adapted from the novel of the same name, Freedomland was inspired by the real story of Susan Smith (a white woman who made up a story about black kidnapers in order to hide the truth about her child's death).

Julianne Moore plays Brenda Martin, who stumbles into a New Jersey hospital telling how a black hijacker took her car with her four year-old son. Samuel L. Jackson is detective Lorenzo Council, assigned to care for her personally and hopefully find out more about what may have happened.

Since the hijacking took place in a low-rent "project" the cops come in force and blockade everyone in. Tensions rise quickly between the black locals and the largely-white police, with Lorenzo in between.

Making things more complicated is the fact that the majority of child-kidnappings are caused by the person who reports them. Lorenzo finds himself at odds with a distraught and difficult Brenda, an angry neighbourhood, and a vengeful police force. There will be no easy solution, even if the child is found.

Freedomland isn't a good film by any critical standards. The plot is muddled and full of holes, and there appears to be no pace at all. The tone flits back and forth from raging histrionics to cautious monologuing without a care, saddling poor Julianne Moore with rant after rant that seem to go on forever.

Worst, the film misplays our sympathies for her character. Brenda is so unlikable right from the beginning of the film — blathering, crying, impossible to reason with — that I wasn't sure if I was supposed to care for her or want her to be the guilty party.

Understandably, that's what a grieving mother is supposed to be like, but the film never gives us a chance to see her as anything other than a white-trash ex-addict.

But I will give Freedomland credit for taking chances. It gives no easy answers to the problems of racism at both the personal and institutional level, and closes with a powerful sequence of urban chaos the likes of which we haven't seen often in film (despite the powerful effects of the L.A. riots).

This is probably one of those frequent occasions where the novel was simply too complex to reduce to two hours of film. Like many books (cough, Da Vinci Code, cough cough), a T.V. miniseries might have been more appropriate.

Tour of five gardens among new iris society's first events

A tour of five Salt Spring Island gardens, featuring tall bearded and Siberian iris, will be held Saturday, June 3.

The tour, sponsored by the newly formed B.C. Iris Society, will give local enthusiasts a chance to see these colourful plants in a garden setting.

The public is welcome and the tours are free, but people must contact Pat Parkes 653-4917 or Ted Baker 653-4430 for more information on locations.

In addition to iris, the local gardens on the tour feature mixed borders, a basketry-willow path, a nature-scaped garden to create a habitat for birds, stone work, ponds and other features, as well as roses and perennials.

Organized in January, the new society boasts over 60 members, almost half of them on Salt Spring. It has launched an ambitious program for its first year.

In May, society members visited five gardens in the Courtenay/Comox area and another tour is planned for June 10 in Chilliwack.

In addition, BCIS offers a twice-yearly newsletter and lists of local growers where iris can be obtained, along with a website: www.bciris.org.

Eventually the group hopes to add more members on the Lower Mainland and in the B.C. Interior, where growing conditions for iris are ideal.

ALS fundraisers seek donations

Islanders will be asked to help find a cure for Lou Gehrig's disease, or ALS (Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis) as Rita Dods and others hit the streets trading cornflowers for donations on Saturday.

Dods organizes an annual campaign in memory of her good friend Dennis Kaye, who died of the disease in 1995.

As described in a brochure from the Victoria chapter of the ALS Society of B.C., the disease "is a rapidly progressive, fatal neuromuscular disease which attacks the motor neurons responsible for transmitting electrical impulses from the brain to the voluntary muscles throughout the body. When these muscles fail to receive messages, they eventually lose strength, atrophy and die."

ALS affects two in every 100,000 people, with about 3,000 Canadians suffering from the disease at any one time.

Salt Spring resident Lauren Shipley describes the disease's impact in a letter to the editor in this week's Driftwood.

The group could use more helpers to canvass for donations this weekend. Call Dods at 537-9737 to help out or to make a special donation.

WARM WELCOME: Lynne Earwaker and Emily Stewart greet visitors to the grand opening of the new wing at the Salt Spring Island Seniors Services Society.

St. Mary's spruced up for anniversary

In 1889, John Sparrow donated land on which to bury his son Baptiste, who was killed in a hunting accident on Salt Spring.

In 1894, St. Mary's church was constructed in under four months at a cost of $705.

Saturday, June 3 will mark the 112th anniversary of the consecration of the south-end church. To celebrate over a century of service, the Guild of St. Mary's is inviting islanders to participate in a community churchyard clean-up between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Coffee, tea and birthday cake will be provided. People should bring a bag lunch and any garden tools they might like to use, such as a wheelbarrow, gloves, clippers, rake, pruners and pitchfork.

Those wanting to clean family headstones should bring a bucket and brush. Hot water and soap are available at the church.

Even if they're unable to work, people are welcome to come by to say hello and enjoy some coffee and cake.

He especially enjoyed woodworking, helping family, friends and the community with many projects. He was Betty's best friend, a great dad and a tremendous Grandpa. He will be sadly missed and never forgotten. A special thanks to Dr. Malherbe, Dr. Woodley and the nursing staff for their kindness and care during Jack's stay in hospital. This Week's Horoscope

Aries (Mar 21 - Apr 20)
Your mind is extra active, alert and sharp these days. However, your ability to maintain a clear focus upon anything or anyone in particular may be challenged. With so many places to go and people to see you may feel a little stretched. At best, your curiosities are being satisfied as new answers and insights come to you. Of course, answers often evoke more questions so be patient with the process. Relationship fronts could also be a source of tension now. Take some time to dig deep enough to determine your core values and priorities.

Taurus (Apr 20 - May 21)
How many talents do you have that you can turn to yet another source income? Probably, more than you realize. Firing with new possibilities for economic return, self-sufficiency and/or the cultivation of hobbies will keep you busy. Finding your place in the world partially includes inventing it. Facing fears to lay claim to latent abilities will become especially evident over the next few weeks. Be willing to get new instruction and learn from 'how to' sources. Take some time to brainstorm for ideas; the heavens are poised to cooperate.

Gemini (May 21 - Jun 21)
With the Sun in your sign you will increasingly feel the urge to explore new territory in mind and/or body. Learning new things and gaining facts is part of the plot. Feelings of closeness with family will become evident over the next few weeks. Mixing both work and play will strike the balance. An ambitious drive to create more security will continue for about another week. Confidence in your abilities and especially in a vision and subsequent strategies to create a healthier lifestyle remains a core theme and will for the rest of the year. Tend to the health of mind, body and emotions in your approach.

Cancer (Jun 22 - Jul 22)
Tending to things behind the scenes continues. You may find that you are extra hungry for knowledge. Sharing in informative conversations, reading books, watching films and documentaries, attending information workshops, lectures and the like will all gain appeal for you. Making changes in your self as a means of contributing to needed changes in the world is an important step to take. Spiritual awakenings are likely as well. Patience with your process remains the key. You can expect this process to deepen over the next month and continue well into the future.

Leo (Jul 23 - Aug 23)
Bringing more definition to your sense of individuality continues. This implies identifying priorities, activating personal boundaries and asserting your creative visions with confidence. Accessing the full measure of your confidence will probably require the most effort. Intend to recognize and to move through this internal resistance. In any case, learn skills now and trust that you will gain the confidence to support them eventually. Increasing your network somehow remains important. Activate communications and make contacts.

Virgo (Aug 24 - Sep 22)
The time is ripe to make your debut somehow. You will gain more recognition now if you want to, hopefully for the better. Approaching authority figures for favors and earned rewards stands a good chance for success. With your sights set on the future, learning new communication skills and strategies will go a long way. As you open yourself to new approaches, allowing them to replace old one's, you will be in tune. Especially honor your intellectual capacities now. Make your presence known and you will get attention.

Libra (Sep 23 - Oct 22)
The Sun in Gemini is probably stimulating your thirst for knowledge. Your ability to appreciate the details and the subtle facts about whatever you are studying will become apparent; however be careful not to lose sight of the forest for the trees. Defending rights and freedoms with a strong offence may be more your style, at this time anyway. Returns are coming your way, yet patience will payoff especially in about a year. If you are selling a business or real estate or something of such value, think twice about letting it go now. Avoid reaction and activate your vision!

Scorpio (Oct 23 - Nov 21)
Experiencing both your light and your darker sides is likely while the Sun is in Gemini. Your light represents a deep sense of connection and service to people and life in general. Your darker side represents excessive ambition and bullying tendencies to get what you want - needs aside. Meanwhile, taking a closer look with the help of some research to gain necessary facts, is keeping you busy. Career challenges and opportunities continue to present themselves and you will soon be giving and/or receiving some coaching and training. Be open to learning.

Sagittarius (Nov 22 - Dec 21)
Encounters with new friends, clients and some characters, is in the spotlight. At best, you will be dazzled and amazed with who they are and what they know or have experienced. At worst, you could get caught in some cross-fire where fault and blame describe the game. Where reactive behavior stirs issues unnecessarily, do what you can to see it for what it is and rise above the mellow drama. Be aware of your own tendencies towards feeling victimized. The more you can access inner faith, the more peace you will experience, and vice versa.

Capricorn (Dec 22 - Jan 19)
Paying extra close attention to the details continues. This may well include encounters with others, especially those hired or appointed to handle some of your affairs. Alternatively, new interests will make their way into your daily routine. New artistic activities or projects with an innovative twist or encounters with significant people bearing gifts of key knowledge are all likely possibilities. In any case, you will be moved to engage your energies more passionately, very soon. Deepening commitments to close relationships features prominently.

Aquarius (Jan 20 - Feb 19)
Exploring new past times and modes of creative self-expression continue as a central theme. The learning curve may be slower than you like and it will take follow-through over time to achieve success. Gaining instruction from an authority on the subject is a good idea. This will prove especially inspiring in as much as the learning includes art, games, sports or romance. Your ability to see the vision behind these activities will help you to stay the course. Creating beauty close to home is part of the plot. Explore alternatives!

Pisces (Feb 20 - Mar 20)
Working on the home front or perhaps upon your home away from home is keeping you busy these days. Perhaps you are in the mood to camp and hike and the like and this is all the work you want to do. What at first was play may soon begin to feel like work. Fortunately, you will probably have the energy to meet the challenge. This is especially so where new instruction of some kind is implied. Learning new tricks and techniques will prove inspiring. Clear the old to make way for the new!
